PREFACE

It is now more than forty-five years since the monumental work entitled ANTIQUITIES OF CHAMBA STATE, Part I (Inscriptions of the Pre-Muhammadan Period), appeared as Vol. XXXVI of the Archaeological Survey of India, New Imperial Series. Its veteran author, Dr. J. Ph. Vogel, the then Superintendent, Archaeological Survey, Northern Circle, had intended to publish the whole material in two parts, the first, as has been indicated above, dealing with the Pre-Muhammadan period, and the second covering the rest, namely, the Muhammadan and Post-Muhammadan periods.¹ After having completed the first part, he had already started on the second, but had to leave it unaccomplished owing to his departure from India to Holland. Then set in the Great War which made any further progress with the work impossible. However, Dr. Vogel has 'all along been anxious to see that the work commenced by him is somehow or other finished, and to that end he had been negotiating with the Director General of Archaeology in India. And it was as a result thereof that I was entrusted with the task of writing the second part of the ANTIQUITIES OF CHAMBA STATE dealing with the inscriptions of the mediæval and later periods. It has been a matter of great pride to me that I have been personally associated with the learned Professor, Dr. J. Ph. Vogel, having worked under him for some years in the rooms of the Kern Institute at Leyden, Holland.

Dr. Vogel, as stated above, had commenced working on the present volume. When in the summer of 1938 Rao Bahadur K. N. Dikshit, the then Director General of Archaeology in India, and myself visited Chambā in order to take stock of the material to be worked, we found inter alia Dr. Vogel's own manuscripts, comprising well nigh three hundred pages, preserved in the Bhuri Singh Museum there. These were later on sent to the office of the Director General of Archaeology in India, New Delhi, and were subsequently placed at my disposal.

These manuscripts concern only the copper-plate charters which form the bulk of this volume. They contain transcripts, in some cases complete and in the other partial, explanatory notes here and there, translations of parts of a few inscriptions, identification of some of the places mentioned in the grants, and notes touching the plan of the work as envisaged by Dr. Vogel. All this material, it gives me pleasure to record, stood me in good stead; it afforded me both guidance and assistance in carrying out the allotted task more or less according to the plan visualised by Dr. Vogel himself.

The Bhuri Singh Museum at Chambā had in its possession also impressions of the great many of the copper-plate inscriptions dealt with here, which were likewise sent to the office of the Director General of Archaeology in India, New Delhi. A similar collection of impressions existed in the office of the Superintendent, Archaeological Survey, Frontier (then Northern) Circle, Lahore (now in Pakistan) which in like manner was made available. The two collections supplemented each other, though some few gaps still remained to be filled.

When the whole of the existing material was thus assembled in the office of the Director General of Archaeology in India, New Delhi, two post-graduates, namely Mr. S. K. Dikshit, M. A.,¹ and Mr. Krishna Deva, M.A.,² availed themselves of the opportunity of studying it. Besides checking it, they added some useful notes of their own.

It was early in the year 1939 that I was formally called upon to undertake the task and to visit Chamba in that connection. Mr. Krishna Deva was then deputed to accompany me for rendering assistance in the work.

A personal visit to Chamba was essential for various reasons. The eighty odd copper-plate charters treated of here are substantially couched in the Bhāshā or the local dialect called Chambyāli in a form which, in consonance with the nature of the subject-matter, necessarily differs from the common parlance and abounds in obscure expressions and abstruse terms, and, on top of that, is more or less obsolete at present. Such hard nuts could be cracked only with the help locally available. Secondly, it was possible readily to identify different places, rivers, mountains and so forth, that are mentioned in the records, likewise by personal enquiries. Thirdly, if any of the original documents were required either for examination or for comparison, they were easy of access only within the State. Besides, there was a possibility of discovering additional epigraphs.

Speaking of additional discoveries, it may be pointed out that three of the copper-plate inscriptions dealt with here, namely Nos. 33, 81 and 82, have not been noticed by Dr. Vogel. Nor do the two collections of impressions referred to above include any impressions of them. They thus appear to be subsequent acquisitions. The first of them, that is No. 33, pertains to Balabhadra, while the remaining two, Nos. 81 and 82, belong to Śrīsimha. It is of course, quite likely that Dr. Vogel was aware of the existence of these last two, but that he considered them to be of too late a date to be included in his collection. There is, however, one consideration that militates against such a supposition: The last copper-plate charter noticed by him is said to be dated V.S. 1941, which is not included here. The two records in question (Nos. 81 and 82) are earlier than that by one quarter of a century. On the other hand, it can be said, at least of the last record (No. 82), that, built as it is in the right wall of the main entrance leading to the temples of Lakshmi-Nārāyana and other divinities, it is so prominently situated that it can hardly escape notice, even of a casual visitor there.

² Then scholar under training in the Archaeological Survey of India, and now a Superintendent in the Department.

As indicated above, estampages of some of the copper-plate charters were still wanting. Since necessary facilities were not to be had in Chamba for taking the required inked impressions of such records, we had to be content only with their photographs which were prepared by Mr. Mangāt Rai Mehta, then attached to the office of the Superintendent, Archaeological Survey, Frontier Circle, Lahore.

During my stay in Chamba, which lasted for two months, much spadework was done : fresh transcripts prepared, elucidative notes taken and rough translation drawn up, all this with the help so generously lent by the Rājaguru, Paṇḍit Thākūr Das, who had formerly assisted Dr. Vogel in like manner, and to whose ability and worthiness Dr. Vogel has paid a well-deserved tribute of praise while acknowledging his assistance.¹ In fact, he is admittedly the only person alive in the Chamba State who can understand and interpret the language of the old documents edited here ; and it is a matter of deep gratification that his services have still been available.²

Before closing this note, I wish to record my grateful acknowledgments for the help received from different quarters in the production of this work. First of all, my sincere thanks are due to Professor Dr. J. Ph. Vogel and the late Rao Bahadur K. N. Dikshit, both of whom from time to time favoured me with various useful suggestions and encouraging remarks while the work was under preparation. Next, I wish to express my gratitude to the then Council of Administration, Chamba State, consisting of Col. H. S. Strong, C. I. E., the President, Dewan Bahadur Madho Ram, the Minister, and Rai Sahib Har Govind, the Judicial Member, who readily and willingly provided me with all facilities in connection with my study of the inscriptions during my stay in Chamba and also evinced keen interest therein.

To the Rājaguru, Paṇḍit Thākūr Dās, I am greatly indebted for his ungrudging help which has proved most valuable and indispensable for a proper treatment of the records concerned. Further, I am thankful to Mr. Jaiwant Ram, B.A., B.T., the then Head Master, State High School, Chamba, and Curator, Bhuri Singh Museum, Chamba, who likewise lent me a helping hand in solving some of the knotty textual problems.

Last but not least, I have to acknowledge equally thankfully the assistance received from Mr. Krishna Deva, M.A., now a Superintendent in the Department. His collaboration at that stage has helped in expediting the work.

Completion of the task fills me with joy, amply compensating for the pains it has cost me : kleśaḥ phalena hi punarnavatām vidhatte !

² It may be added though that in spite of the best help available certain expressions in the said records still remain unexplained.

POSTSCRIPT

The publication of this Memoir at long last, it may gratefully be recorded, is mainly due to the active interest taken by Professor Dr. J. Ph. Vogel. I have constantly been in touch with him and have all along been receiving advice and encouragement from him. Luckily for us, he continues to be hale and hearty, and, in spite of his advanced age, he keeps himself busy with his scholarly pursuits. He celebrated his 86th birthday on the 9th January, 1957, and is thus now running his 87th year. "Let me conclude by saying", writes he in his letter to me, written just a day earlier, i.e. on the 8th January, 1957, "that I am in excellent health and still working on my book on the hamśa. I hope to complete it in 1957, if my āyuhśeshatvam allows it."

It is nearly 17 years since the foregoing preface was written and the work was made press-ready. During this period many changes have taken place. A stage came when the idea of publishing the work was almost given up. Professor Vogel then came forward, urging upon the Government of India the necessity of expediting the publication of Part II of the Antiquities of Chamba State. He even suggested that the work might be entrusted to the Royal Asiatic Society of London or to some other learned society abroad if it were not possible to have it published in India. After some correspondence, it was decided that the work should be split into two sections—epigraphy and general archaeology. It may be recalled that originally Part II of the Antiquities of Chamba State was designed to contain both these sections in one volume, written jointly by Dr. H. Goetz and myself. The former was to write on the temple architecture, paintings, etc., of Chamba, and myself on the inscriptions. The section of Dr. Goetz has since been published as Memoirs of the Kern Institute No. 1 under the title The Early Wooden Temples of Chamba. With the publication of the present work the rest of the material has now been published.

It may be observed that during the long interval some more inscriptions have been discovered in Chamba. I hope to edit these subsequently and also to prepare an index to both Part I and Part II of the Antiquities of Chamba State.

Owing to certain unavoidable circumstances, the printing of this Memoir had to be delayed for several years during which period I received further welcome help from Dr. G. S. Gai as well as from Messrs. M. Venkataramayya and Satya Shrava, all of the Department of Archaeology, especially in checking and reading the proofs.

Finally, I take the opportunity also to express my gratitude to Messrs. M. K. Majumdar (General Manager), G. Mathen (Asstt. Manager) T., A. K. Das (Foreman Class I) D.M.E. and others of the Government of India Press, New Delhi, for the personal interest and trouble taken by them in pushing the matter through the press.

INTRODUCTION

COPPER-PLATE INSCRIPTIONS

The total number of copper-plate inscriptions that are included in this work is eighty-two. The first of them is dated V. S. 1337, and the last V. S. 1915. They pertain to twelve successive rulers, from Vairisimhavarman to Śrīsimha, as detailed below :—

Serial numbers	Ruler's name	Number of plates
1	Vairisimhavarman	1
2—5	Bhojavarman	4
6—8	Samgrāmarman	3
9—10	Ānandavarman	2
11—19	Gaṇeśavarman	9
20—26	Pratāpasimha	7
27—69	Balabhadra	43
70—76	Prithvisimha	7
77	Śatrusimha	1
78	Umedasimha	1
79—80	Rājasimha	2
81—82	Śrīsimha	2

It will be seen that literally more than half of the total number of these charters belong to Balabhadra alone. This striking disproportion testifies to the excessively generous disposition¹ of this prince, of which we shall by and by have more evidence.

COMMON FEATURES OF ALL PLATES

Some characteristics are common to all the copper-plate charters discovered in the Chamba State and are peculiar to them inasmuch as they are not commonly met with in similar contemporary documents found elsewhere in India. They may be summed up as follows: (1) Every charter consists of a single sheet of copper, though the size varies greatly. (2) Each plate is provided with a handle to its proper right. The plate thus puts on the appearance of a takhtī or a wooden board

¹ [This is no doubt true to a certain degree, but on the other hand we have to take into consideration the exceptionally long reign of Balabhadra. I have calculated the number of grants per regnal year, and found that his grants work out less in number than those of Pratāpasimha, and even than those of Gaṇeśavarman which he issued subsequent to the arrival of Surānanda. I regard the great number of copper-plate grants chiefly as the result of cultural conditions, i.e., a conscious renaissance of Mediaeval civilization. The time before was too barbarian, the later times adopted paper administration on the Mughal model.—H. Goetz.]

used by school children. In some cases this handle has broken away, partly or altogether. Again, some of the handles have a hole pierced in the centre through which may be passed a cord by means of which the plate could be hung on to a peg in a safe corner—that is what the owners of the plates probably used to do. (3) Every one of the plates is invariably engraved only on one side. The predilection for such an arrangement is very much in evidence on certain plates, where the text runs on into all the margins, not excepting the handle, while the size of letters in its concluding portion is gradually diminished into the bargain. A typical example of this kind is supplied by the inscription No. 32, though No. 23 beats it in respect of congestion. (4) Almost every plate has a seal engraved usually in the top left corner in the shape of a rosette or some other ornamental design. The space in its centre is occupied by a legend invariably in Nāgarī characters, containing the name of the king to whom the deed concerned pertains. In a few instances the seal is replaced by the word sahī likewise in Nāgarī characters. The significance of this has been discussed below.¹

LITHIC RECORDS

The stone inscriptions dealt with in this volume do not compare favourably—neither in quantity nor in quality—with the copper-plate records. Their number amounts to twenty-one. The most outstanding of the lithic records is the Chabūtrā stone inscription of V. S. 1717. It is the precise dating in it that vests it with importance, which has been duly considered elsewhere.²

The nineteen short epigraphs of the Vajreśvarī temple are mere labels giving names of the artisans, except one which is dated and informs us that the (reparation) work was started on the given date.

MISCELLANEOUS INSCRIPTIONS

The short inscription appearing on the massive bell suspended from the ceiling of the maṇḍapa of the Chāmuṇḍā temple stands out by itself, as it cannot be included in either of the preceding two classes. It is dated, gives the names of the dedicator and the manufacturer of the bell, and mentions its weight and cost.

PALAEOGRAPHY

Our inscriptions represent two distinct characters : Devanāgarī and Devāśeṣha. The use of the former is restricted mostly to the legends appearing on the seals of the copper-plate charters. Later on, however, Devanāgarī alone is employed in such records. The earliest of this kind in Chamba is Umedasīmha's grant of V.S. 1805 (No. 78).³

³ Dr. Vogel's statement to the effect that Rājāsīmha's grant of V.S. 1833 ranks as such may be modified. ACS, Pt. I, p. 45.

Devāśeṣha refers to a later development of the Śāradā alphabet. Dr. Vogel has made an exhaustive study of the subject and has arrived at definite conclusions which may, with advantage, be recapitulated here. The evolution of the scripts in question is, in brief, like this : Brāhmī→Western Gupta→Kuṭila→Śāradā→Devāśeṣha→Tākari. Kuṭila, of which Śāradā is shown to be the immediate descendant, continued up to the end of the 8th or the beginning of the 9th century A. D., which thus becomes the epoch of Śāradā. The script continues undergoing slow but sure changes until, by the beginning of the 13th century A. D., its appearance is sufficiently altered to justify a separate designation. That is then Devāśeṣha. Dr. Vogel has pointed out that scholars like Bühler applied the term Śāradā even to this later phase of the character, though distinguishing it as 'later Śāradā, but that a special name was desirable.'¹ Although the term Devāśeṣha is but little known outside Chamba, yet it has been adopted for the sake of convenience.²

Dr. Vogel was concerned mainly with the Śāradā characters. He has fully described the formation of each individual letter. In doing so, he has drawn attention to the peculiarities of Devāśeṣha as well, illustrating the points by referring to the two inscriptions written in that alphabet, facsimiles of which had by then been published, namely the spurious Sai copper-plate inscription of Vidagdharvarman³ and a copper-plate grant of Bahādur Śiṅgh of Kuḷlū.⁴ These records belong to the 16th century A. D.

The inscriptions edited here are fairly numerous and range in date from the early part of the 14th century to the middle of the 19th century. As such, they afford us ample scope for studying the peculiarities of the character and its gradual development in the course of over five hundred years with greater precision.

Before proceeding with a detailed examination of this nature, I may point out that the original nailheads or wedges of Kuṭila, which turned into small horizontal strokes in Śāradā, in turn, developed into top strokes in Devāśeṣha and lend it a distinctive appearance. Devanāgarī, as we know, represents the climax of this process. In Devāśeṣha some letters, like gh, th, n, p, m, gh, and s, still appear with an open top, while in Devanāgarī they are provided with a top stroke.

Initial Vowels

"In Devāśeṣha initial a and ā preserve essentially the same shape as in Śāradā, but the top is closed by means of a top stroke as in Devanāgarī, and the wedge at the foot of the vertical sometimes becomes a triangular loop."⁵ To be exact, the foregoing remark applies to a only (1).¹ The length is denoted by a hook instead of a triangular loop at the foot (2). Examples of the latter are comparatively rare. The triangular loop of a may be taken as a regular feature of the sign. The instances, as in No. 72, line 12, are only ephemeral. Examples of a may be seen in almost every inscription, while those of ā are met with in No. 14, line 3 ; No. 22, line 8 ; No. 37, line 14, etc. The form of a in No. 1, line 5, is rather unusual.

² It may be observed that Dr. Vogel has himself used the term Tākari where he means Devāśeṣha. (ACS Pt. I, p. 170). However, while editing "A copper-plate grant of Bahādur Śiṅgh of Kuḷlū", he had drawn attention to the term Devāśeṣha. (ARASI, 1903-04, p. 267). It is to be noted that Tākari is a later stage in the transition. A cursive variety of it is represented in one of our inscriptions, namely in the treaty between Rājāsīmha and Samsārachanda (No. 80), which presumably provides us with a specimen of Rājāsīmha's own handwriting.

Initial i has retained its original shape, which consists of two dots and a curve below (3). For examples, see No. 12, lines 7 and 10 ; and No. 37, line 10 where it occurs thrice. In certain cases, the two dots are replaced by two small circles (4), instances of which may be seen in No. 5, lines 15 and 16 ; No. 8, line 15. The sign of i in No. 1, line 16, appears irregular inasmuch as it is inclined towards the right. The signs in No. 76, lines 8 and 10, exhibit the mark of medial o instead of two dots or circles, though the same inscription in lines 7 and 8 shows the first sign as well. The sign with the superscribed medial stroke instead of two dots or circles appears also in No. 67, lines 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 14, 15, etc. Thus, this constitutes a regular variety of the initial i.

The sign of initial ī is of rare occurrence, but it presents a very interesting phase in its development. Discussing its form in Śāradā, Dr. Vogel observes that "the upper and lower dots of ancient sign, which consisted of four dots,² have been converted into a vertical stroke with a wedge on each end."³ This is exemplified by the Sarāhan praśasti,⁴ where it occurs only once (5). In Devāśeṣha its development is remarkable and quite consistent with the peculiarities already noticed. In the case of initial a, we have observed how the wedge at the foot of the vertical becomes a triangular loop. We have also observed that a wedge at the top of letters in general becomes a horizontal topstroke. This dual process has taken place in the case of initial ī, with the result that the vertical stroke with a wedge on each end has assumed the form of the letter ra (6). In the disposal of the two dots also, the writers of Devāśeṣha have introduced a modification: they have removed them from the flanking position and placed them on the top. Thus the form of the letter appears as (7). Instances of this may be seen in No. 38, lines 8 and 10 ; No. 39, line 11.

The sign of initial u has not differed much in shape from its original (8). The observations made by Dr. Vogel concerning this hold good: "The upward stroke differentiates the u from t. In the later inscriptions the two aksharas are often hard to distinguish."⁵ The upward tendency of the stroke (9) is, in some instances, carried to the extreme, so that it curls over the body of the latter. See, for instance, in No. 1, lines 11, 13, (10) and 17. Instances of the normal sign are abundant.

No instance of initial û is afforded by our inscriptions. However, it presumably retained its original shape which is that of û with a mark of length consisting of a downward curve attached to the middle of the letter on the right(11).

The form of initial ṛi is met with in some inscriptions, e.g., in the word rājarikhi in No. 28, line 3 ; and No. 37, line 3. It resembles that of the letter ṛ, which is generally retained in its medial position as well.

Like initial i, initial e and ai also show several forms slightly varying from one another. Its essential feature is an equicrural triangle, which alone represented the ancient form, its base forming the top stroke. The wedge, which came to be attached to the left end of the top-stroke in Śāradā, becomes a downward vertical stroke in Devāśeṣha (12), e.g., see No. 37, line 15. In some instances; the triangle assumes the appearance of a circle, while the vertical stroke is lengthened and slightly curved to the right, which tendency leads to the formation of the Devanāgarī e (13), see, for instance, No. 12, lines 9 and 10. A superscribed e stroke added to this sign usually makes it initial ai (14), but all the instances in our inscriptions show that this, too, stands for initial e. Its value as such is determined by the words such as taye used side by side with tae, compare No. 2, lines 5 and 8; No. 1, line 8. A parallel instance is afforded by Gurumukhī wherein initial e is composed of the sign for initial i provided with a superscribed e stroke (15). Moreover, in this variety, in certain cases, the vertical stroke appears on the right instead of on the left (16), as may be seen in No. 1, lines 8, 13, and 16.

As regards the form of initial o, our records furnish any number of instances.¹ It resembles the sign for initial u with an additional small vertical stroke hanging down from the top end of the letter (17). A typical example of it may be seen in No. 37, lines 11, 12. The one occurring in line 13 of the same record appears in its modified form; the bottom curve is shortened and the small vertical stroke is correspondingly lengthened (18). The same inscription, in its line 1, also exemplifies how the sacred syllable om is usually formed in these inscriptions: the sign of o has not only an anusvāra over it, but also a semi-circle; in other words, it has an inversed anunāsika over it(19). In a few inscriptions, this is expressed by a special symbol as was the practice in earlier inscriptions, e.g., No. 8, line 1. A more rational instance is supplied by No. 5, line 1, where this sacred syllable consists of the sign for o with a regular mark of anunāsika over it. The vertical stroke in this case is replaced by a slanting one.

Only a doubtful instance of initial au occurs in No. 1, line 8, but here, too, as in the case of ai, the sign in question is more likely that of o only. It consists of the sign of initial u with a superscribed o stroke (20).

Anusvāra and Anunāsika

A simple dot over a letter represents anusvāra. In a few inscriptions a small circle is used instead of a dot, for instance in Nos. 5 and 60. Anunāsika is seldom used in these documents, except perhaps, as noticed above, in the sacred syllable om. Of that, too, only one instance gives its correct shape (21), in No. 5, line 1.

Visarga, Jihvāmūliya and Upadhmāñiya

Visarga is represented by its usual sign, two dots one above the other after a letter. Here, too, dots are occasionally replaced by small circles as in No. 5.

Jihvāmūliya and Upadhmāñiya are not met with in our inscriptions. The sh before ka in such expressions as -kṛit-āntashkaraṇa occurring in several inscriptions, seems to be a mistaken copy of jihvāmūliya formerly correctly used in such cases.¹

Consonants

The original Brāhmī sign for k, which consisted of a vertical stroke and a cross-bar (22), undergoing the usual changes (23), assumed a totally different shape in Śāradā, having developed an angular loop to the left (24). In Devāśeṣha this form continued in earlier inscriptions, e.g., No. , but later on the curve to the right also developed into a loop (25), so that it approached the sign for chh in shape. In combination with certain vowels and consonants such as u, ri, r, sh, both the loops so disappear that its original shape cannot be recognised. See, for instance, kuhla, Kṛishṇa, Vikrama, and pakshe in No. 37, lines 13, 2, 1 and 2 respectively.

The letter kh is expressed by two different signs, one of which has the same appearance as in Śāradā (26) and the other resembles the sign for sh (27). The former is, in fact, the proper sign. The latter has resulted from the variant pronunciation of sh as kh in the north. This latter, it may be observed, has become established as the regular form of kh in Gurumukhī (28). Examples of the first may be seen in No. 37, lines 2, 6; and of the second in No. 1, lines 8, 9; No. 70, line 2.

The form of the letter g has proved more conservative than those of many others. It is the same in Śāradā, Devāśeṣha, Gurumukhī and Devanāgarī (29).

Nor has gh changed its form much (30). Examples of it may be compared in No. 33, line 12; No. 44, line 16.

The letter ṇ appears single in the word maṇaṇī (for maṇgaṇī) in a few inscriptions where its form can be determined as somewhat resembling the figure 8 in Devanāgarī (31), see No. 34, line 14. It also occurs in the names Pāñī² (for Pāṇḡī) in No. 70, line 6, and Dalanāṇe in No. 37, line 13. As the first member of a conjunct it may be seen in the name Gāṇḡguyā in No. 18, line 3, where the same form is recognisable.

The form of ch has been described as quadrangular in Śāradā, which has developed a cursive loop at the lower left end in Devāśeṣha (32).³ In some instances its right limb has become a vertical stroke, in which case it is confused with the sign for ś, compare, for example, chaṇpaka and prakāśita in No. 5, lines 1 and line 2 respectively. Its normal form may be seen in No. 33, lines 1, 2.

¹A similar instance in the case of upadhmāñiya has been noticed by Dr. Vogel, ACS, Pt. I, p. 170.

²This instance has been pointed out by Dr. Vogel in ACS, Pt. I, p. 52, n. 1.

³*Ibid* p. 52.

The form of chh, as has been indicated above, is sometimes confused with that of k (33). On the whole, however, it is fairly distinct. In some cases it also resembles the usual sign for the cerebral l (34). Examples may be compared in No. 1, line 14 ; No. 12, line 9 ; No. 67, lines 13, 14.

The sign for the letter j has been singled out as the most conservative of all. The only modification that it has undergone in Devāśeṣha is, according to Dr. Vogel, the disappearance of the wedge which was attached to the right end of the top stroke (35).¹ See, for instance, in No. 1, line 5; No. 67, line 5. It may, however, be observed that in many instances the wedge has turned into a small upward stroke which is apt to be confused as the sign for medial ā. For example, see No. 5, lines 6, 7 and 8. The medial ā in connection with j is indicated mostly in the ancient fashion namely it is attached to the central prong, see mahārājādhirāja in No. 33, line 8. In the conjuncts jj and jñ the original form of j is clearly recognisable. See No. 33 line 7 and No. 33, line 6.

The instances of jh are not rare in our inscriptions. They may be compared in No. 6, line 7; No. 7, line 7; No. 37, lines 13, 14. The form consists of the sign for r or Śāradā k with a curve attached by means of a small horizontal stroke to the middle of it on the right (36).

The letter ñ appears only as the second member of the conjunct letter jñ where it has the appearance of l without the top stroke. See, for examples, No. 5, line 7; No. 33, line 7.

The sign for the letter ṭ, on the whole, has retained its old form in Devāśeṣha which has the same appearance as initial ri, but provided with a top stroke (37). See for instance, No. 9, line 10; No. 25, line 7. Sometimes, a hook, pointing downwards is attached to the right end of its top stroke, as twice in No. 37, line 11. This usually denotes medial ā, as may be compared in the same inscription, No. 37, lines 11, 16. The form of the subscript ṭ in ṭṭā is remarkable in No. 18, lines 2, 4 and No. 33, line 4, as compared with the same in No. 37, line 7. Perhaps the former stands really for ṭṭhā. In some cases the Devāśeṣha ṭ appears exactly like the Devanāgarī ṭ, as is evident in No. 12, line 14.

The letter ṭh is represented by a very simple sign, consisting only of a circle (38), as may be seen in No. 5, line 16. In its subscript form, however, it looks exactly like a subscript r. See, for example, No. 33, line 18. This inscription also illustrates the fact that subscript ṭ and ṭh are often interchanged see pratishṭā for pratishṭhā in line 2, shashṭhi for shashṭi in line 17, and ṭṭhā, as noticed above, in bhaṭṭhāraka for bhaṭṭāraka in line 4. The form of the final ṭ with the virāma stroke, crossing the top right end of the letter, is also remarkable, in No. 33, line 10.

The sign of the letter ḍ in Devāśeṣha is peculiar, having developed two loops, one above the other, the upper one being circular, and the lower triangular (39). See, for example, No. 37, line 13 where it occurs thrice. The forms with medial u and ū are noteworthy, see in No. 7, lines 4, 12 ; No. 33, lines 9, 11. So also is the form of the conjunct ṇḍa, as in No. 5, line 9 ; No. 39, line 8.

The form of the letter ḍh has also acquired two loops but both in one line (40). If the loop in the right be drawn nearer to the vertical line in the centre, the sign will resemble that for chh. Its examples may be seen in No. 1, lines 7, 8; No. 37, lines 10, 12.

The sign of ṇ may best be described as the Devāśeṣha numeral 3 with left side down (41). When the medial a is attached to it, it assumes a peculiar shape (42). Both ṇa and ṇā may be seen in No. 37, line 5. When forming the first member of a conjunct, it does not lose its serif on the right; but when subscript, it appears without that with the result that it looks similar to subscript l and ñ. See maṇḍala in No. 5, line 9; Kṛishṇa in No. 37, lines 2, 8; Kēhlana in No. 37, line 8; and pratijña in No. 33, line 7.

The letter t, as has been indicated above, is very similar to initial u in form. For example, t in paṇḍite and u in ukīritam, both in No. 5, line 16, may be compared. With a subscript r, it looks like the numeral 3 (44), as may be seen in No. 20, line 6; No. 33, line 13. When the top stroke is a little longer, it cannot be mistaken for the numeral 3, as in No. 5, line 2. The formation of the conjunct tta is noteworthy, see, for example, in No. 33, line 5; No. 37, lines 4, 11. Other ligatures with t will be instanced below.

The form of th is similar to that of sh, with the only difference that sh has an open top while th has its top closed by means of a top stroke (45). See, for example No. 33, line 11; No. 37, line 15, where it appears twice. In the ligature rtha, it is entirely different—the ligature has the appearance of Bengali ja (46), as may be noticed in No. 33, line 10.

The letter d is represented by a sign which differs from that for ch only slightly—ch is closed on the top right, while d is open (47). Moreover, the angular portion at the bottom right is more pronounced in the case of d. Both the letters may be compared in No. 33, line 1. The form of the ligature dra and dda may be observed in No. 33, line 15, and No. 37, line 5 respectively.

No change seems to have taken place in the form of dh, which appears in Devāśeṣha the same as it is in Śāradā and even in early scripts, which resembles the Roman letter U with the top closed (48). See, for example, No. 20, lines 5, 8; No. 37, lines 5, 6. In a few instances, the right vertical line projects a little downwards, giving the letter the appearance of Devanāgarī p (49), as may be seen in No. 5, lines 1, 6. In the same inscription a peculiar form of the ligature ndha may be observed in line 2.

The letter n appears mostly in its uplooped form (50), as may be seen in No. 33, line 14. In some later inscriptions, its looped form (51) also occurs. See, for instance, No. 77, lines 4, 5, though the same inscription gives also the unlooped variety in line 1.

The sign for p remains without a top stroke throughout, even in Tākari and Gurumukhi (52). It does not present much variation of form even in ligatures.

The instances of ph are few and far between, but enough to show its form clearly. It resembles that of dh or h (53). If the curve is made into a loop, it will correspond to the form ḍh, and if the loop on the right is reduced to a mere curve, it will answer to the sign of h. Instances of ph may be seen in No. 25, lines 6, 10, 13; No. 37, line 9.

As remarked by Dr. Vogel,¹ no separate sign for b has been used in Devāśeṣha. It has throughout been expressed by the sign for v. In giving the texts, therefore, the same sign has been rendered by b or v as required by the case.

The sign for bh shows a further development from its original shape: the triangle has become a triangular loop and later on a circular loop (54). The latter form can be easily confused with the looped t. For instance, see t and bh in pūjita-pāda-piṭha-nija-bhuja-bala in No. 77, lines 6, 7. The examples of the other form are found in No. 20, line 5; No. 37, lines 7, 8, 10, etc. In line 18 of No. 37 we have the instance of a subscript bh, which is quite recognisable.

The letter m is expressed by a sign which has an open top and a loop below on the left (55). It differs from the sign for s only by the absence of a small horizontal stroke attached to the top left (56). This distinction is, however, not always observed, with the result that both the letters appear alike. The examples of the distinct m and s may be compared in lasamāna-mānasa in No. 33, line 7. Instances of the confused forms may be seen in māse in No. 37, line 2; No. 52, line 2, etc.

The form of y in Devāśeṣha is the same as in Devanāgarī (57). The top stroke in Devāśeṣha is usually a short one, while in Devanāgarī it extends a little on either side (५). The subscript y appears like subscript ri in shape. See No. 20, lines 1, 2, 4, 8, 10. In the ligature rya, however, it shows a downward stroke added to its lower end, and the ligature looks like Devanāgarī da (58), as may be seen in paryamta in No. 20, line 9; No. 52, line 9; in surya in No. 9, line 4, and in sūrya in No. 33, line 8.

The sign of r is similar in shape to that of v. In well executed forms the loop of r is more angular and that of v more circular (59). As the first member of a conjunct it usually retains its own form, and is not superscript, as may be seen in dharma-setur-narāṇām in No. 33, line 14. The best example of it is perhaps to be found in the ligature rṭyū in chakravarty-uttama in No. 33, line 5, where r is seen very prominently as the chief member, while the other letters are subscribed to it. In some cases, however, its position is reduced to a mere superscribed stroke as in rcha of archanīya in No. 33, line 2. In combination with v, this stroke is not superscribed, but added on to the loop of the letter so that it assumes the appearance of Devanāgarī ch. This may be seen in sarvadā and sarvān in No. 33, lines 4 and 14 respectively. As subscript letter, r shows two forms, one just like in Devanāgarī when written cursive-ly, a small stroke pointing to the left at the foot of the letter, and the other more like the cursive Devanāgarī medial ū, a looped stroke, pointing to the right. The first may be seen in chakra in No. 33, line 5, and the other in śrī-Pratāpa in No. 33, line 12. In No. 28, lines 4, 5, however, the word chakra has a different form. Here, the subscript r resembles the looped form of the Devāśeṣha medial ū.

The form of l has no peculiarities to exhibit. It is the same as in Devanāgarī (60), and occurs in every inscription.

Our inscriptions also show the use of cerebral l in abundance, which is represented by the usual l form with a dot below, as is seen in No. 1, line 7.

The form of v we have already discussed in connection with that of r with which it often gets confused, as is exemplified by deva in No. 20, line 6.

The form of ś is similar to that of s with the only difference that the former has a closed top and the latter an open one (61).

The same difference, as has already been noticed, occurs between the forms of th and sh, that are otherwise alike (62). It has also been shown that the sign of sh stands sometimes for kh.

The form of h has been explained while discussing the sign for ph. The example of h may be seen in No. 37, lines 7, 11, 12, 14, 15, etc., where it appears in its well-developed form. Sometimes it is confused with t, see, for example, in No. 20, lines 5, 10.

Virāma

In connection with the form of t we have shown above how a final consonant is so denoted by a slanting stroke running across the right end of the letter. More examples of this are provided by t in No. 20, line 10; n in No. 33, line 14; and m in No. 33, line 10.

Medial vowels

In Devāśeṣha medial a is expressed still in the old fashion, by a little stroke attached to the right end of the letter on the top, and not by a prishṭha mātrā as in Devanāgarī. That little stroke, however, takes various forms. In its simplest, it merely stands vertical or slightly slanting, as may be observed in No. 37. In others it forms a v-shaped bend (63), the position of which again varies, and in still others it takes a cursive loop (64). All these fanciful varieties are illustrated in No. 20.

Medial i and ī are expressed in Devāśeṣha in the same manner as in Devanāgarī (65).

Two different signs are employed to denote a medial u, one consists of a curve, as in Devanāgarī, and the other of a triangle, attached at the foot of the letter. The triangle is very often confused with the subscript v. For example, there is no difference in shape between su of suta in No. 33, line 4, and sva of svayam in the same record, line 16. The medial u with r is expressed in the same way as in Devanāgarī, as may be seen in Rupunu in No. 5, line 16. The Devāśeṣha ru thus looks like bha and the Śāradā ka.

Medial ū is also expressed in two different ways. In one, the curve representing a medial u, is reduplicated, while in the other the cursive Devanāgarī medial ū appears reversed or, in other words, the looped form of the Devāśeṣha subscript r or of ṭh is reversed (66). This last may be compared in śreṣṭhā-sūrya-vamśa in No. 33, line 8. The other form is seen in bhūyo bhūyo in No. 33, line 15.

As already indicated, the sign of medial ṛi is similar to that of subscript y. The point will be clear by comparing gya in No. 33, line 4, and kyā in No. 37, line 17—where, in the foregoing word smṛiti, the medial ṛi opens upwards instead of to the right and is thereby quite distinct from the subscript y. It is this type of medial ṛi that occurs in pri of pṛitaye of No. 1, line 5, which has such an unfamiliar look.

A superscribed horizontal stroke represents a medial e, and two such strokes, placed one above the other, denote a medial ai. In later inscriptions they become slanting and appear quite like Devanāgarī signs for medial e and ai, as may be seen in No. 77.

A superscribed wavy line consisting of two downward curves (67), as appear in one of the varieties of initial i, expresses a medial o. This combined with the sign of medial ā makes it into a medial au. Examples of both of them may be seen in No. 37, line 2. Later inscriptions show the continuation of the same practice as may be verified in No. 72, No. 77, etc.

Ligatures

In the foregoing discussion forms of a number of ligatures have already been demonstrated. Below are cited some more that present noteworthy features: sti, No. 1, line 1; No. 5, line 1; No. 20, line 1. In the last quoted instance the subscript t has a loop.—stra, No. 1, line 1; No. 20, line 1; No. 33, line 1. ṇha, No. 1, line 1.—hma No. 1, line 6; No. 33, line 10.—hya, No. 1, line 12.—ddhi and kṭi, No. 5, line 5.—ndra, No. 5, line 6.—rka, No. 5, line 14.—rju, No. 8, line 5.¹—ścha, No. 8, line 5.—khyā, No. 8, line 8.—mṅrā, No. 8, line 9.—mbha and stha, No. 14, line 7.—dra, No. 14, line 8.—smāi, No. 14, line 11.

Numerals

The Chamba inscriptions employ the system of decimal numeration wherever there is occasion for using numbers. The signs of the figures are fairly uniform throughout on the whole, though variations in certain cases are distinctly observable. Below is given a brief description of each individual figure.

The figure 1 is represented by two different signs, one a circle (0) and the other an incomplete circle resembling a horse-shoe with its ends facing downwards or resembling the Roman letter U placed upside down (68). In some inscriptions both the signs are used side by side, e.g., 1651 in No. 35, line 1. It may be noted that the circle always denotes 1 and never the zero which in the Chamba inscriptions is expressed by a mere dot. For instance, see 70 in the same inscription and the same line as cited above.

The sign for the figure 2 resembles that which ordinarily stands for the figure 3 in Nāgarī (३). Sometimes its bottom stroke is drawn further with an upward tendency, while the upper curve appears closed forming almost a circle. For examples, see No. 20, line 13; No. 21, line 11; No. 33, line 16.

The next figure, 3, is represented by the same sign with an addition of a tail hanging down from the bottom stroke where in some cases it forms a loop (69). The same sign is used in Nāgarī also, having the same value. The occasional features noticed in the case of the figure 2 are seen here also. See, for instance, No. 1, line 1; No. 14, line 1; No. 25, line 1; No. 28, line 10.

The sign for the figure 4 is essentially similar to that in Nāgarī for the same figure (४). In execution, however, it assumes various forms (70) of which the one with a downward stroke, attached to its right end is noteworthy. Examples may be seen in No. 9, line 1; No. 28, line 1; No. 14, line 1; No. 25, line 7; No. 37, line 1. The sign taken as standing for the figure 4 in No. 5, line 15, is entirely different. The sign read as 6 in 62 in No. 26, line 1, is more likely to be read as 4.

The symbol for the figure 5 resembles the Devāśeṣha letter pa (71) and does not show much variation in shape. Compare, for example, No. 9, line 1; No. 21, line 1; No. 25, line 1; No. 37, line 2.

The figure 6 is denoted by a symbol which would be the same as that for 4 if placed upside down (72). In its more elaborate form it has a serif attached to its left end and a downward stroke to its right (73). There are some intermediate modifications as well. The instances are supplied by No. 1, line 1; No. 20, line 2; No. 28, line 1; No. 33, line 1; No. 37, line 2; No. 50, line 1; No. 52, line 1.

The symbol for the figure 7 more or less resembles that for the figure 1 in Nāgarī (74). See, for example, No. 1, line 1; No. 9, line 1; No. 12, line 5; No. 20, line 12; No. 28, line 1; No. 35, line 1; No. 37, lines 1, 2. It may be remembered that the sign for the figure 7 in Nāgarī represents 9 in Devāśeṣha, as will presently be shown. This is best illustrated in 97 in No. 12, line 5.

The forms of the symbol for the figure 8 vary greatly, but the one resembling the letter ha may be taken as a standard one (75), which appears, for example, in No. 25, line 7. It may be observed that if the curved line, instead of turning to the left ran straight towards the right, it would correspond to the figure 8 in Nāgarī (76). A tendency towards that is noticeable in the symbol for 8 appearing in No. 33, line 1. Some other variations may be seen in No. 1, line 1; No. 25, line 1; No. 44, line 1; No. 52, line 1. This last instance is a very remarkable one. The one in No. 53, line 1, lacks the top stroke and looks like the letter ṭa (77).

The sign representing the figure 9, as has been indicated and instanced above, resembles that for 7 in Nāgarī. More examples, with slight modifications in its formation, may be seen in No. 33, line 1; No. 44, line 1; No. 50, line 1.

A small dot stands for the zero, as has already been shown.¹

LANGUAGE

The bulk of the inscriptions edited below are bilingual, the two languages represented being Sanskrit and Chambyāli. The latter is, properly speaking, only a dialect spoken in the Chamba hills. In the inscriptions it is referred to merely as Bhāshā. It is akin to the Panjābi dialect current in the eastern parts of the Panjāb.

These bilingual records generally begin and end with Sanskrit, while their middle portion is composed in Chambyāli. The initial part usually contains the date, the conventional preamble and a brief statement of the object. The concluding portion as a rule, comprises some customary verses and a mention of the writer of the record. The most important part, however, comes in the middle. In fact, that constitutes the deed proper. Since it is meant to be understood by the common people, petty state officials and peasants, who are, generally speaking, ignorant of Sanskrit, it is composed in their tongue and gives out the fullest details possible after their fashion. This accounts for the clumsiness, incoherence and obscurity to be noticed in such portions of the records.

The specimens of Sanskrit composition afforded by our inscriptions betray the fact that Sanskrit scholarship in Chamba was then, on the whole very poor. Mostly they are mere repetitions of certain set phrases, bristling with grammatical errors. Some pseudo-Sanskrit forms are persistently met with, such as upabhūjanīya for upabhojanīya, dhavalākṛita for dhavalikṛita, satyapratijñatva for satyapratijñā, etc.

Terms like lābhālikā or lābhārikā for lāhaḍī 'a land measure', and ghāri 'a landslide' are, however, ingenious adaptations in Sanskrit. The records composed by Surānanda and Ramāpati contain comparatively few mistakes.

As regards the Bhāshā compositions, we have no criterion by which to judge their merits and demerits. They, however, exhibit the freshness of a spoken language as opposed to a literary vehicle of expression, with all the defects that go with it, such as unnecessary repetitions, clumsy constructions, disregard of grammar, and the like.

Like other dialects in the Panjāb, Chambyāli also is a derivative of Sanskrit. The original forms of a great many of Chambyāli terms are easily traceable. In some cases two forms are current for one and the same word, one nearer the original than the other, e.g., अस and अह for अस्ति; भोन and होन for भवन्,¹ अगर and अव for अय, etc.

ORTHOGRAPHY

In respect of orthography, our inscriptions present very little of real interest; they exhibit more mistakes than peculiarities, as may be typified by शुक्ले पक्षे पूर्णमयं तिवड श्रीचम्पकपुरिवस्तव्यश्रीपरमदेवताअरचनीयः परमगुह परमसुष्ठ श्रीसूर्यवंशप्रदीपक (No. 2, lines 2-4) for शुक्ले पक्षे पूर्णमायां तितौ श्रीचम्पकपुरिवस्तव्यश्रीपरमदेवताअरचनीयपरमगुहपरमश्रेष्ठश्री सूर्यवंशप्रदीपक ! This passage is cited from a Sanskrit preamble, though it is one of the worst examples, and it needs hardly to be pointed out how much Prakritic influence is in evidence here.

Where such is the way of writing Sanskrit, how the Bhāṣā would be treated can well be imagined, especially when there is no standard spelling in existence. Each writer employed his own arbitrary method in reducing the dialect to writing. A single instance of how one and the same word is variantly spelt will illustrate the point: उरी, उरे, ओरि, ओरी, ओरे, औरो, खर, खरे, खरो, खार, खारे, व्वार; all these forms represent the Sanskrit word अवार

PUNCTUATION

The use of punctuation marks in the present inscriptions is very promiscuous. In most cases it is better to ignore them altogether. They mislead rather than guide. It would have been extremely tedious to point out each and every stroke as being an unnecessary mark of punctuation or to supply one where necessary. The texts have, therefore, been reproduced here as they appear in the original charters, with or without the signs of punctuation.

HISTORICAL GLEANINGS

The historical data afforded by the records edited here have, for the most part, already been discussed by Dr. Vogel and others in various publications.¹ Again they have been summed up by Dr. Goetz in the historical sketch which he has drawn in the foregoing section of the present work.² Moreover, the most salient points of historical and topographical import occurring in every individual inscription have been noticed in the introductory remarks that precede the text and translation in each case. Still there remain certain questions of a general character, which may be considered here.

Vairisimhavarman—The *Vamśāvalī*³ gives the name of this ruler as Vairivarman whereas his inscription—the only one (No. 1) pertaining to him—presents him as Vairasivarman or Vairāsivarman⁴ which indicates that the full and correct form of his name must be Vairisimhavarman. The inscription, however, does not give the name of his father. It is no doubt given in the Vamśāvalī, but the text of the verse concerned is so obscure that it could not be made out with certainty, though it has been supposed to be Jimūta.⁵ The charter under discussion is issued from the city of Champaka which is likewise the place of issue of nearly all the subsequent charters. It plainly stands for the town of Chamba, the capital of the State. It is interesting to note that the form Chambā, for the Sanskrit Champā as given in the Rājataranginī,⁶ or Champaka as met with in the inscriptions, occurs in the Bhāṣā portion of the very charter of Vairisimhavarman.⁷ This shows that the modified form, Chambā, which is current to this day was in common use already in the time of that ruler. Its origin has been discussed by Dr. Vogel.⁸

The charter of Vairisimhavarman is dated V.S. 1387 (=A.D. 1330), which is presumed to be the first year of his reign.¹ There is one significant reference in the Bhāshā portion of the record. It is to the effect that the king conferred the grant on the donee because he was pleased (with him). This indicates that the recipient of the gift must have performed some heroic or otherwise remarkable deed which won him the royal favour.

Māṇikyavarman—From the *Vaṃśāvalī*² we learn that Vairivarman or Vairisimhavarman had a son called Māṇikya. He is believed to have succeeded his father to the throne, but no copper-plate charter or any other inscription pertaining to him has yet been found. His name is, however, mentioned in one (No. 5) of his son's grants, which also discloses that of his wife, being Jugyaradevī.

Bhoṭavarman—We have got four (Nos. 2—5) copper-plate charters of this king, one (No. 3) of which is decidedly a forgery. In one (No. 5) of his genuine records he is described as 'meditating on the feet of the illustrious Māṇikyavarman', who, as is known from the Vaṃśāvalī, was his father. Besides, the same record mentions the name of Bhoṭavarman's mother as Jugyaradevī which is as peculiar as his own. Rao Bahadur K. N. Dikshit believes that the name Bhoṭavarman has something to do with Bhoṭa, the name by which Tibet is known all over the Indian hills. It may also be pointed out that names of royal personages similarly ending in ṭa are by no means rare in Chamba inscriptions. Analogous instances may be found in such names as Āsaṭa, Jāsaṭa, Somaṭa and Bhogaṭa. Of these the first two are borne by two Chamba kings³ and the other two by two barons or *rāṇās*⁴ of that state, all of whom preceded Bhoṭavarman by a couple of centuries. The name Jugyaradevī may have been after the name of the village Junḡurāra⁵ whence she might have hailed.

The name of Bhoṭavarman's wife was Jijilidevī, as is known from one (No. 8) of his son's charters.

One (No. 4) of Bhoṭavarman's four charters is peculiar inasmuch as its grantee is not a Brāhman, but a Kshatriya who received the gift of land and an annuity cash as a reward for what appears to be an extremely daring act on his part, involving much risk.

Samgrāmarman—Three (Nos. 6—8) of the copper-plate grants belong to this chief. In the Vaṃśāvalī he is stated to be son of Bhoṭavarman, which information is confirmed and supplemented by one (No. 8) of his own inscriptions, adding the name of his mother as Jijilidevī. Another of his records refers to the śrāddha ceremony of his father and thereby affords us a clue for arriving at an approximate date of the latter's demise.⁶

⁴ Bhogaṭa is son of Somaṭa. Ibid., p. 152.

⁶ See below p. 35, where this and the allied questions have been discussed in some detail.

His wife's name was Sāmpūrṇadevī, as is revealed likewise by one (No. 10) of his son's charters.

Ānandavarman—We know more of this ruler from other sources¹ than from his inscriptions, which are represented by only two (Nos. 9—10) copper-plate charters. It is only from one (No. 10) of his inscriptions that we learn his mother's name.² He is reputed to have been deeply religious and endowed with magic powers. The aforesaid inscription of his (No. 10) mentions a Śiva-pratishṭhā, which possibly alludes to his reconstruction of a Śiva temple.

From the Vaṃśāvalī we learn that Ānandavarman married a daughter of the lord of Trigarta (Kangra), but her name is not mentioned there. Her name occurs as Prayāgadevī in some of the grants of Ānandavarman's son.³

Gaṇeśavarman—Of the nine (Nos. 11—19) copper-plate inscriptions pertaining to this ruler, two (Nos. 14—15) register grants made by his son and co-regent Pratāpasimha who is styled therein Mahārājaputra.⁴ One (No. 12) of his records refers to his coronation, though it does not give the actual date of this ceremony. The same document adverts to the immersion in the Ganges of the bone-remains of Ānandavarman, father of Gaṇeśavarman, as well as to the latter's mother, Prayāgadevī having performed a charity at a place called Siṃgarapura. In an undated record (No. 17) of his, a queen Apūrvadevī is also stated to have made a land-grant with the king's approval. Presumably she was Gaṇeśavarman's wife. He had another wife, called Sāhibadevī, from whom was born his son and successor Pratāpasimha, as is revealed by one (No. 23) of the latter's grants.

Considering the dates of his records, Gaṇeśavarman had a long reign of well-nigh half a century (A.D. 1513—1558).⁵

Pratāpasimhavarman—As has just been stated, Pratāpasimha was the eldest son of Gaṇeśavarman from the queen Sāhibadevī and succeeded his father to the throne. We have got seven (Nos. 20—26) copper-plate charters belonging to him. One (No. 22) of these, however, is apparently a discarded copy of another (No. 21) record, as evidenced by the contents.⁶

The expression Bhaṭṭi di gu(ru)-dakṣhiṇā ⁷ in one (No. 20) of his inscriptions is not clear, but viewed in the light of another which occurs in a subsequent record (No. 23) and is more or less explicit, it alludes to Pratāpasimha's occupation of the Bhaṭṭi

¹ For instance, the Vaṃśāvalī. See ACS, Pt. I, p. 88, verses 92—97.

² That is Sāmpūrṇadevī, as has been indicated above.

³ Nos. 12, 13, and 16 where the name is spelt as Prāgadevī, Prīṇadevī and Prāgadevī respectively.

⁵ He may have reigned even longer. He died probably in A.D. 1566. See n. 3 on p. 73 below.

territory. The other passage referred to reads : Bhaṭi lai tā diti guru-dakṣiṇā diti.¹ This last mentioned record is unusually long and contains a good deal of other valuable information.² The grant registered by it is stated to have been made by Pratāpasimha's grandson Balabhadra who is styled Mahāyuvarāja. The title Mahāyuvarāja is rather uncommon, but perhaps not without a special significance here. The term yuvarāja ordinarily denotes 'prince', 'heir', 'heir-apparent' or, more precisely, 'that son of the ruling king who is to succeed his father as king.' We know that Balabhadra was not a son but a grandson of Pratāpasimha. Thus the word mahat (mahā) prefixed to the usual term yuvarāja in its application to Balabhadra presumably carried the sense that he was to succeed his grand-father Pratāpasimha, superseding his father Virabhāna. This presumption receives support from various other considerations. The same inscription (No. 23) mentions Virabhāna,³ but without any title or honorific. Dr. Vogel, referring to this, remarks, "Balabhadra-Deva, his grandson, is called Yuvaraja and Tikkā: though Vir-Vahnu, his son, was alive, and succeeded to the gaddi. The title was probably accorded to both father and son."⁴ It is not known on what Dr. Vogel bases his statement that Vir Vahnu (Virabhāna) succeeded to the gaddi. A perusal of the text of the inscription in question will show that Balabhadra is styled Mahāyuvarāja, and not Yuvarāja and Tikkā as stated by Dr. Vogel. In line 38 of that inscription an expression reads ṭikka karī bhumī sūthā lāga, of which the first word seems to have been taken by Dr. Vogel for the title Tikkā, but the context will show that it cannot be taken as such. The word ṭikka-karī here means 'having fixed or demarcated.' The same usage is found in some other inscriptions as well.⁵ There is thus little ground to hold that 'the title was probably accorded to both father and son.' On the contrary, from the way in which Balabhadra is repeatedly mentioned⁶ in that inscription, it follows that he was not only the heir to the throne but was also a co-regent then, whereas Virabhāna finds mention there only once and that, too, in a way that presents him as a non-essential so far as the administration of the state was concerned. Moreover, we have not found any inscription pertaining to him, which fact again tends to show that he never came to the throne. Dr. Vogel assigns him a brief reign of 'only four years at the most,'⁷ that space of time being an interval between the dates of the latest known record⁸ of Pratāpasimha and of the earliest known record of Balabhadra respectively. In this assignment we have obviously to assume that Pratāpasimha died in the very year in which his latest known charter is dated and that the earliest known grant of Balabhadra was made in the very first year of his reign. This in itself is by no means impossible, but still it appears to be improbable, especially in view of the above considerations.

⁸ This is the Chamba plate of Pratāpasimha of Śāstra 62 (No. 26). The reading of the Śāstrī year as 62 has been disputed. Instead it had been suggested to read it as 42 which would make the record the earliest rather than the latest known one of Pratāpasimha. See below, p. 73, n. 3.

Further, Virabhāna is mentioned in several inscriptions of Balabhadra as the latter's father, but in no case it can be made out that he was ever in power as a ruler. There are, however, indications to the contrary. To wit, in one (No. 35) of Balabhadra's grants, which refers to Virabhāna's śrāddha and where, therefore, it may be expected that he should have been introduced as 'the late king,' as has been done in the case of Bhoṭavarman¹ and Ānandavarman² in similar circumstances, Virabhāna's mention there³ is conspicuous by the absence of any such epithet to his name. This much, at least is clear from this inscription, which is dated V.S. 1651=A.D. 1594, that Virabhāna was alive at the time of Balabhadra's heir-apparency and co-regency under Pratāpasimha.

Virabhāna—Besides the fact that he was son of Pratāpasimha and father of Balabhadra, nothing of importance is known about Virabhāna. Although the *Vamśāvalī*⁴ styles him mahipati 'king', yet the foregoing discussion leads us to the conclusion that he never assumed the regal powers, but was superseded by his son Balabhadra. And this was to all appearance in accordance with Pratāpasimha's own choosing—he might have nominated his grandson Balabhadra to be his (Pratāpasimha's) successor in supersession of his (Pratāpasimha's) son Virabhāna—though the reason for such a choice on his part is not known.

In the opinion of Dr. Hermann Goetz, Virabhāna did reign but not rule. He has favoured me with an interesting note on the question, which I give below in its entirety:

"This is a very difficult problem. I accept the arguments adduced above but the conclusions arrived at do not convince me. So much is certain that Virabhānu did never rule, but another question is whether he did reign. That Balabhadra-varman was appointed regent and heir apparent in 1579 is also certain, but another question is whether after his grandfather's death he did regard it advisable to accept the crown. Can we disregard the statement of the Vamśāvalī? According to my observations this chronicle has proved completely reliable for the period since A.D. 1330; besides, it must have been composed under Balabhadra-varman and supplemented under Prithvī Singh. Under these circumstances it is impossible to push aside the statement that Virabhānu had been king. May we then try the explanation that he did reign, but not rule. I think so, for Balabhadra-varman himself is the best other instance during the regency of Janārdana, 1613-1623. Then Janārdana had all the prerogatives, epithets and power of kingship except the title of king which was left to powerless Balabhadra-varman. I think we are entitled to assume a similar state of affairs during the last year of Pratāpasimha-varman and those of Virabhānu. Balabhadra-varman must have been the actual ruler since 1579, but did not assume the royal title before 1589. The key to this abnormal situation must be found in the grant No. 23. From this latter it is evident that the party of Paṇḍit Ramāpati had been overthrown in 1575 and reinstated by Balabhadra-varman in 1579. Now the party of Surānanda and Ramāpati must have been the instigators of the war against Kāngrā and must be responsible also for the renewed extension of the royal influence over the outlying provinces (the forward foreign policy begins immediately after the coming of the two paṇḍits). The opposition against Ramāpati must have come from (1) the old aristocracy pushed aside by the foreign Brahmīns, (2) the rānās who had lost their virtual independence. Their success had been possible because of the loss of prestige of the Ramāpati party in consequence of (a) the annexation of the Kāngrā conquests by the Mughals in 1573, (b) the death of Surānanda in 1575. After the flight of Ramāpati, Pratāpasimhavarman must, thus, have lost most of his control over the old and new landed aristocracy. When in 1579, Balabhadra-varman brought back Ramāpati, it was his own success, and he would probably have been able to depose his grandfather if he had liked to do so. Now the party of Ramāpati which Balabhadra-varman had restored, stood obviously for an increased royal power supported by the priests, as is evident from all the events of this period. But for this reason it was necessary to strengthen the prestige of the king in every possible way. It would, however, have been detrimental to the royal prestige completely to depose a crowned king, and so Pratāpasimhavarman continued to reign. It would also have been detrimental to push aside the next person entitled by his birth to the throne, and this was Virabhānu. And, as all the actual power was already in Balabhadra-varman's hands, there was no reason why he should dishonour his father after he had already left the appearance of royalty to his grandfather. There is another argument in favour of such an assumption. Why did Virabhānu not rule, why is he hardly mentioned? I have always suspected a mental anomaly, and I have discussed all the evidence in detail with a doctor who was before at the Mental Hospital in Poona. In the whole family from Ānandavarman to Balabhadra-varman a hereditary strong religiosity is evident which in later life seems often to have assumed morbid forms so that we have four regencies within a single century. It seems thus most probable that Virabhānu had the same religious obsession, characteristic for Balabhadra-varman's last years perhaps in a still more pronounced form. Now it is very improbable that Balabhadra-varman, himself very pious, should have removed a saintly father; likewise it would have been in contradiction to the very principles of the Ramāpati party to remove a saint from the throne, as religion was one of their main props to strengthen the royal power. Finally, we cannot suppose that after Ramāpati's return the opposition was completely crushed. If 1582 was in fact the last year of Pratāpasimhavarman's reign—and we must suppose this, since the grant of 1586 has shifted on to 1566,—this happened only three years after the end of the rebellion, and Balabhadra-varman's position was certainly not yet so strong as that he could have risked any more without the utmost caution. This caution may perhaps also explain the absence of copper-plate grants under Virabhānu, the latter king being unable to deal with the question and Balabhadra-varman not risking to do it on his own account. I am quite aware, that my explanation here is audacious and complicated, but I suppose it takes into account all the available facts and can be further strengthened in practically every point by analogies from the history not only of the Himalayan Rajput states, but also from the history of similar epochs in other countries."

Balabhadravarman and Janārdana.--From Balabhadra onwards the history of the Chamba State has been well chronicled and it seems needless to expatiate on it. It is well known that the state saw many vicissitudes from the time of Balabhadra onwards.

CHRONOLOGY

Since most of the records edited here are dated, there is little difficulty in fixing their chronology. It is, however, only in a few cases that the dates are verifiable. The most conspicuous of such epigraphs is indeed the Chabūtrā stone inscription of V.S. 1717 (No. 84), as has been indicated above. Next come two later inscriptions, and they are from among the copper-plate charters, namely Nos. 79 and 81. The first is dated V.S. 1833 and the second V.S. 1913. In this last instance, even though the week-day is not specified, the clue for checking the date is afforded by the mention of the Ardhodaya yoga which falls on a specific week-day.

In most of the remaining dated documents, the details of the dates are not fully stated, so that they cannot be controlled. In some cases, certain details of such a nature do occur as ordinarily lead to the verification of the date, but there the dates, so far as I could examine, appear to be irregular. For instance, the spurious Sarā plate of Bhoṭavarman (No. 3) does mention the week-day which, however, does not tally, though the difference appears to be only of a day or of some hours. The spurious nature of the record, however, has marred its interest and importance. No. 6 also mentions the week-day, but the reading of the number of the year is so uncertain that it requires only guess work to make the date appear regular. No. 11 states the occasion being a sūrya-parvan, which generally refers to a solar eclipse. Such a reference is a sufficient clue, which in the present instance proved the mentioned date to be irregular. No. 14 refers to the Kumbha festival, but the date here, too, proves irregular. No. 27 gives the week-day, but the nakshatra stated is irrelevant, rendering the given date uncontrollable. No. 61, again, refers to a solar eclipse, but likewise proving of no help in checking the date.

COPPER-PLATE INSCRIPTIONS

NO. 1. GUROLI PLATE OF VAIRASIVARMAN; V. S. 1387

(Plate I, A)

The copper plate¹ on which the subjoined inscription is engraved is now preserved in the Bhuri Singh Museum at Chamba, and is No. B, 7 of its catalogue. It was found in the possession of a Brāhman, Lochā or Lochiyā by name, at the village of Guroli in the Gudyāl parganā. It measures 8" high by 10" wide, excluding the handle on the left. It is a fairly well-preserved record. The writing on it covers 21 lines of which lines 17-19 appear in the left and lines 20-21 in the top margin. There is a seal engraved in the upper left corner of the plate, in the form of a rosette with a three-line legend in Nāgarī characters in its centre, containing the king's name.

The language of the record is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The Sanskrit portion is full of errors, while certain terms in the Bhāshā portion are obscure.

The object of the inscription is to record the grant of the village Guroli by the king Vairasīvarman to Maṇikaśarman, a Brāhman of the Kāśyapa gotra. The boundaries are specified, though the details thereof are not wholly intelligible.

The charter is issued from the city of Champaka and is dated in the Śāstra year 6, Vikrama Samvat 1387, on the 12th day of the bright fortnight in the month of Kārttika. Since the week day is not mentioned, the date is not verifiable, but as it is, it corresponds to Wednesday, 24th October, A. D. 1330. The grant was written by Paṇḍit Ananta.

As regards the geographical names occurring in the inscription, Champakapuri is the same as the town of Chamba, the existing capital of the Chamba State. Almost all the subsequent charters have been issued from this very place. Guroli or Giroli, the gift village, is identical with the present-day Guroli, the provenance of the plate. The boundary village Maṇoga also exists to this day under the same name and is included in the Gudyāl parganā.

TRANSLATION

Seal: (This is) the order of the illustrious Vairasīvarman.

(L. 1) Om. Hail; In the Śāstra year 6, (corresponding to the year) of the illustrious king Vikramāditya 1387, in the month of Kārttika on the twelfth day of the bright fortnight; during the victorious reign of the illustrious Paramabhaṭṭāraka Mahārājādhirāja Vairasīvarmadeva, in residence at the glorious city of Champaka, who is as adorable as an illustrious supreme deity, highly venerable, pre-eminent among men, a devout worshipper of Vishṇu, the most excellent, the light of the Solar race, a paramount ruler; here,^६ for pleasing Lord Kṛishṇa, (and) for the sake of annihilation of his^७ own sins, the village named Guroli has been given to the Brāhman Maṇikaśarman of the Kāśyapa gotra.

^१ The formation of this letter does not answer to pri, though this is undoubtedly the intended reading.

^२ Or perhaps तए as before.

^३ The syllable वृष्ठ appears below the line. It was evidently first omitted and later supplied.

^४ For the correct reading of this verse see below, p. 178.

^५ The visarga after svasti had better be omitted, because the word is, as a rule, an indeclinable. The form with visarga occurs in a few more inscriptions of Chamba as well as in the Chipurupalle plates of the Eastern Chālukya Viṣṇuvardhana I. In the case of this latter record, Fleet doubts the appearance of the visarga by remarking that it is 'probably only due to a mark of punctuation, imperfectly cleared out,' (Ind. Ant., Vol. XX, p. 16, n. 3). In fact, the sign of visarga is plainly visible on the facsimile and cannot be taken for anything else. See A. C. Burnell's Elements of South-Indian Palaeography, London, 1878, 2nd ed., Pl. XXVII. In the Vedas, however, the word is treated as an indeclinable and as a substantive, e.g. svasti pūshā nara dadhātu nah, (RV, V. 51. 11); svastim nā nīmaruto dadhātu, (RV, II, 29.3).

^६ This refers to that ate as well as to the place of issue.

^७ This alludes to the donor who, in this instance, is the king himself.

B.—MHESA PLATE OF BROHAVARMAN; SAKA 1318.

(L. 7) The boundaries thereof (are) : On the east behind the large field of Giroli up to the sloping Kuṇḥalā field, inwards from the ridge, as far as the mound with the small k'lāi tree,¹ behind the upper cliff of Śyala, within the Śukaraihlā ridge, behind Laśyali, behind the footpath of Halyaṇā; on the south right up to the current of the brooklet of Halyaṇā; on the west inwards from (and) along the larger brook, on the north inwards from the brooklet of Thaṇeda, as far as Thlada at the bank of the larger brook, below the footpath of Maṇoga, up to the Phaguḍula water, the watercourse issuing from the waterfall. With the boundaries thus defined, the king has granted (the land) to Maṇika. Further, the king has exempted Maṇika from personal service, forced labour, daṇa, toll and dues for grazing (his cattle or sheep) on hills.

(L. 15) In future the descendants of this Brāhman are to enjoy this (grant). The king's successors should in future [protect] this pious gift. The cow and the Brāhman are witnesses.the illustrious father and mother for the sake of the king.....of Maṇika.

(L. 20) (Here follows one of the customary verses.)

NO. 2. MHESA PLATE OF BHOTAVARMAN; SAKA 1318

(Plate I, B.)

This plate² comes from the village Mhesa of the Lilh pargaṇā, where it was found in the possession of Maṇḡā, Ghīṅku and other Brāhmanas. It is now preserved in the Bhuri Singh Museum at Chamba and is numbered B, 8 in its catalogue. It measures 7½" wide by 6" high, excluding the handle on the left. There is a small rent beneath the handle, while the upper left corner of the plate is broken off and missing, resulting in the loss of some letters. There are twelve lines of writing, of which the last two appear on the top margin. A seal in the shape of a rosette with a two-line legend in Nāgarī characters in its centre is incised at the top of the plate in the middle. The engraving is deep and clear.

The language, as usual, is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī, abounding in mistakes, though the sense is clear.

The charter registers the grant, by the king Bhoṭavarman, of the village Bhaiśa in the Lihla maṇḍala to Birmaśarman, a Brāhman of the Vaśiṣṭha gotra. It is further stated that the gift was made at the Ganges. From this it is evident that the grantor had at that time gone to Hardwar (Haridvāra) on pilgrimage. This example was followed by some successors of Bhoṭavarman, in whose charters it will be seen that they likewise performed charities at that distant holy place.

The grant is issued from the city of Champaka and is dated in the Śāstra year 73, the Śaka Śaṁvat 1318, the full-moon day of the month of Kārttika, which is possibly the date or the donation itself. The corresponding Christian date would be Tuesday, the 17th October, A. D. 1396. The writer of the deed was Paṇḍit Agasti, and the engraver a smith named Rupuṇu.

¹ Or possibly trees. In such cases it is difficult to ascertain whether the singular or the plural number is meant.

² No. 84 of the APRAS, NO, 1904-05, p. 16.

As regards the localities mentioned in the record, Lihla maṇḍala is the same as the present Lih parganā. The donated village Bhaiśa is identical with Mhesa, where the plate was found; but since it is the headquarters of the parganā, it is now called Lih or Lih-koṭhī. It is situated on the left bank of the Guher rivulet, opposite Daberh. The granted land, as appears from the definition of the boundaries, extends over both the banks of the Guher. Śudora, the boundary village on the east, is below Mhesa and is now known as Sundaur. Pohrula is now called Paṛhaul after Paṛhaul-Dhār, the hill above Daberh. The waterfall Makoli on the west is known to this day under the same name. It is formed by the Guher nālā above the village Golūm. Makoli is so called because of its white sand (makol). The Śiṃgha ridge on the north is the one that lies on the left side of the nālā.

NO. 3. SPURIOUS SARA PLATE OF BHOTAVARMAN; V. S. 1461

(Plate II)

The present owner of this plate,² as recorded by Prof. Vogel, is one Basheshar, a resident of Sarā in the Sāho parganā. It measures 12" in breadth and 10" in height. It has no seal and no handle. Originally perhaps it had a handle which is now broken off, as there is a small gap about that place, resulting in the partial loss of three aksharas. The proper left side of the plate is also damaged a bit. There are altogether 22 lines of writing, of which lines 20-21 appear along the proper right margin, while line 22 runs inversely along the top margin.

The language of the record, as usual, is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The composition of the Sanskrit part is extremely faulty. It purports to register a grant by king Bhoṭavarman of three villages, called Śarā, Charoṇa and Koila, to two Brāhman, Nilaka and Bhiya by name, belonging to the Bhāradvāja gotra. The reading of the date is highly uncertain. Still, as far as it can be made out, it is the Vikrama Samvat 1461, corresponding to the Śāstra year 80, Thursday, the twelfth day of the bright fortnight of the month of Āshāḍha. It is slightly irregular inasmuch as the week day on the given tithi was Friday and not Thursday, the corresponding Christian date being 20th June, A. D. 1404.

The gift villages of Śarā, Charoṇa and Koila are to be identified with the present Sarā, Charhūṇ and Kurilā, all in the Sāho parganā. When I was in Chamba during the summer of 1939, I had occasion to visit Sarā where I could personally verify the boundaries of the donated area. It was amazing to find how accurately they answered to the description. Most of the boundary-marks can still be recognised in the existing mountain ranges, hill-tops, passes, ridges, streams, footpaths, etc. Thus, in the east we have the Sarā range as well as the hills of Dūgā³ Bhudrāh, Kālāpānī and Biṭhrūnī, that are identical with the Śare-dī-dhara, Bhadra, Kalapanī and Biṭharoṇī of the inscription. In the south-east Belī and Roṭha are mentioned which are respectively the names of a mountain range and a village. The latter is now known as Romṭhā. It is about three miles south of

³ The term dūgā means 'deep'.

Sarā and is also included in the Sāho parganā. The inscription speaks of a stream called Gokha in the vicinity of Roṭha. That is now called Gūkh. One has to cross it, while going from Sarā to Romṭhā. The Paṭanali stream, or Paṭnālī as it is now called, is about three miles south-west of Sarā. By pakhamṇa (Skt. pāshāṇa) Tamgaha is probably meant Tramghe-dī-ḍhag, 'the precipice of Tramgha.' Bhaṭolā is the name of a streamlet near that precipice. Bagoḍī is three miles north-west of Sarā, and the brook of Chhamḍī is there nearby. The rivulet of Śarā is so called after the village of that name. One has to cross it before climbing the hill on which the village of Sarā is situated. Dhakaloṭha is supposed to be the name of a goṭha, like Baḍe-dā-goṭha 'goṭha of the pīpal tree,' the term goṭha signifying a natural shelter among the hills where shepherds stop their flocks of sheep and goats overnight. The Draṭeḍa-khaḍa is now called Drāṭī-dā-nālā. It is about two miles north of Sarā. Nadeṇa is the name of a hilltop above Sarā. The Kīranaḍe-rā-naḷa is now known as Kailū-rā-nalā. In this way, almost all the boundary marks mentioned in the inscription can be precisely located without much phonetic change in their names. This very preciseness, however, arouses a suspicion as to the genuineness of the document. The suspicion is further heightened when we consider how vast an area the aforementioned boundaries comprise; for, in no other charter of Chamba the extent of donated land is even half so extensive as the present grant gives out. Moreover, the extremely corrupt and slovenly composition of the present charter ill assorts with such a grand donation as it purports to record. For that, one would expect the language of the document to be chaste and, in a corresponding degree, more stylish. Apart from these considerations, there is an internal evidence which definitely proves the record to be spurious. We shall see that the writer of the record is stated to be the Gauḍa Brāhman Ramāpati, son of Surottama (who is also called Surānanda in some other records). This statement betrays the forgery; for, we know that Ramāpati appeared on the stage much later, more than a century and a half later than Bhoṭavarman's time. We have two of Gaṇeśvarman's charters, wherein Surānanda figures as the writer, while it is in some of the grants of Gaṇeśavarman's son Pratāpasimha that Surānanda's son Ramāpati is for the first time mentioned as the writer, and that is in A. D. 1575. It is, however, still later, during the reign of Pratāpasimha's grandson and successor Balabhadra-varman, that Ramāpati composed a number of royal grants. The preamble of the present record, it will be seen, is but a poor imitation of that mostly found in Balabhadra-varman's charters. Viewed in this light, the obscurity about the date given in the beginning of the charter under discussion will also appear to be a deliberate mystification on the part of the fabricator. It is difficult to assign a definite date to the fabrication, but in any case it is much later than A. D. 1575.

(L. 1) Om. Hail! (In the year) 1461 of the illustrious king Vikramāditya in the Śāstra year 80, (the month of) Āshāḍha, the [12th] day of the bright fortnight on Thursday; during the victorious reign of the illustrious Paramabhaṭṭāraka Mahārājādhirāja Bhoṭavarman, in residence at the splendid city of Champaka; whose

⁵ This is an abbreviated form of śuklāyā m tithau.

⁶ This and the following epithets will be met with in their correct forms mostly in Balabhadra-varman's grants.

⁷ The words tithau dvādaśyām should properly have come in the first line after śu° ti°.

⁸ These three words अगने उदन and अश्य are not intelligible.

prowess is comparable with that of Rāma, Paraśurāma and Balarāma; whose mind is intensely devoted to Viṣṇu (Ramāramaṇa) and Śiva (Umāramaṇa); who is skilled in warfare; who has all the quarters filled with the effluence of his glory resembling the autumnal moonbeams; who has gratified the desires of suppliants with incessant flow of gold; who is as adorable as a supreme deity; highly venerable; pre-eminent among men; the most excellent; the light of the Solar race; worthy of all honour; (and) endowed with all virtues;

(L. 6) here, on the twelfth day, for propitiating Lord Kṛiṣṇa, the villages Śārā, Charoṇa and Koila, have been donated to the Brāhmins, Nilaka and Bhiya by name, of the Bhāradvāja gotra..... Both of them, and their progeny may enjoy them as long as the moon, the sun and the earth endure. Whosoever, whether of my family or anybody else, will encroach upon this (gift), will fall in hell—will fall in dire hell!

(L. 9) Here the eastern boundary is (formed by) the mountain range of Śārā and the (hills named) Bhadra, Kalapanī and Biṭharonī, (and runs) behind the landslide at the Galaṇa pass, below the pass, behind the Joaliśa cliff; the south-eastern (boundary lies) inwards from the Belī path, below the path of Roṭha, behind the Gokha brook, in the south-west as well as in the west are the Paṭaṇalī brooklet, the precipice of Taṁgaha, (and the stream of) Bhaṭolā; on the north-west (the boundary lies) behind the Bagoḍī ascent, inwards from the brook of Chhamḍī; in the north-erly direction are the brook of Śārā, the Dhakaloṭha, behind the Taṁgaha cliff, behind the goṭha of the pīpal tree, behind the Draṭeḍa stream; in the north-east-erly direction (the boundary is marked by) the aforementioned mountain range, including the tīlā of Bhaḍaraka, behind the Nadeṇa pass, behind the brook of Kīraṇaḍa, including the long ridge, behind the lake, inwards from the landslide, within (the....of) Maheda, beyond the Bakaroṭha range. (The land with) the boundaries thus defined has been given to the Brāhmins Bhiya and Nilaka as a śāsana with libation of water. The descendants of the illustrious king Bhoṭavarman are to preserve (this gift). Those of Bhiya and Nilaka are to enjoy it. This charity should be protected as long as the heavens, the earth, the fire, the air, the water, the sun and the moon endure.

(L. 19) The boundaries have been drawn in the presence of Bhaṭa Pach, Sām, Maku, Khakha, Pahra, Śaśī, Taraśu, Dratā, Durugu, Kebī and Lakhmi.¹

No. 4. BHOTAVARMAN'S GRANT OF V. S. 1507(?)

The present owner of this plate is stated to be Daroga Paras Ram of Chamba. It differs from the other plates in several respects: it has no handle; the writing on it runs breadthwise and not lengthwise as on other plates; and the engraving consists of dotted letters. All these features mark it off as a much later work than it purports to be. As we shall see presently, there are some pieces of internal evidence as well, pointing in the same direction. It measures $8\frac{1}{2}$ " high by $6\frac{1}{2}$ " wide. In the top left corner it bears an oval seal, drawn likewise in a dotted line. Within the seal is a two-line legend which consists of an invocation to the god Manamaheśa (Maṇi Maheśa), and does not contain the name of the royal donor as other records usually do. The same invocation heads the document which consists of 11 lines.

¹ The reading of some of the names is not certain.

² This portion probably mentioned the name of the engraver, but its reading is very uncertain.

The script of the inscription is purely Tākārī, while its language is entirely Bhāshā. The usage of such Persian or Urdu terms as jam (zamīn), baksanā (bakhshnā), chākarī, khijmat (khidmat) and hājar (hāzīr) is noteworthy. It testifies to the Muslim influence on the popular language of Chamba. Since such terms are absent from the inscriptions of Bhoṭavarman's successors, the present record appears to be a later one, and probably a spurious one. The Tākārī character and the use of Bhāshā throughout, combined with its external characteristics, as have already been observed, go to prove further that the present plate is a mere fabrication. Still, there is one thing for which the record may not be regarded as a forgery: it is not a grant to a Brāhman, but an ordinary deed registering the bestowal of a reward on a state servant of Kshatriya extraction for his gallantry displayed on a particular occasion—possibly for rescuing a royal member from a perilous plight. This deviation may justify all that makes the record appear a spurious document.¹

The beneficiary in this instance is an individual called Jadhika Aṭalā—Jadhika being the name of his caste now known as Jadhek. The gift consisted of $15\frac{1}{2}$ lāhadīs of land at Sārāgo and 2 lāhadīs at Guḍa, besides an annuity of Rs. 123. The villages cannot be identified. The reading of the date is uncertain so far as the number of the year is concerned. It is read as Samvat 1507, the 10th day of Māgha. This would correspond to A. D. 1450-51, whereas Bhoṭavarman is supposed to have died in A. D. 1442.²

In my opinion the fraud must have been committed after 1641 when the Chamba administration had to be reorganized after the occupation by the Nurpur State. The many Muslim words fit well into this time. Also Prithvi Singh's gifts to Dāi Baṭlū, who had saved his life, may have been an inspiration for it; perhaps also another grant (No. 56) to non-Brahmins, with Prithvi Singh's collaborator, —H. No. 5. JUNGRAR PLATE OF BHOTAVARMAN

(Plate III)

This well preserved plate⁴ came from Jungrār, a village in the Churāh wazārat, where it was discovered in the possession of its owner, Chanaṇ by name, a Brāhman resident of the said village. It is now preserved in the Bhuri Singh Museum at Chamba where it is enlisted as B, 9.⁵ It measures 10 ¾" wide by 8" high. It has no handle and bears no seal. The engraving is beautifully done. The writing covers sixteen lines besides the sign manual of the royal donor, which is incised in the proper right margin.

The script of this plate provides an excellent specimen of the Śāradā or rather Devāśeṣha characters of the time. The signs of the letters ch and ś here may be found hardly distinguishable from each other. The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The Sanskrit portion is pretty corrupt, though the style adopted in the preamble is fairly ornate.

¹ The Virāma sign attached to k looks more like a medial ā or ī. The same is used in t of Vrajet, line 9, and in m of Vasudharām, line 10.

² For the correct reading of this verse see below, p. 178.

³ For the correct reading of this verse see below, p. 178.

⁴ Possibly No. 17 of the APRAS, NC, 1903-04, p. 6.

⁵ In his Catalogue of the Bhuri Singh Museum at Chamba, Prof. Vogel gives the name of the village as Jungharār. It may, however, be noted that there is another village of this name in the Gudyāl parganā within the Chamba wazārat, while that in the Churāh wazārat is included in the Jasaur parganā. The difference of spelling between the two names is very small; जुंघराड़ in the case of the former; जुंगराड़ in the case of the latter which is the provenance of the present plate.

 १६ ॥ अथ श्रीगणेशाय नमः ॥ इति श्रीमत्पद्मसूत्रे प्रथमोऽध्यायः ॥

The inscription records the gift of land at the village of Jumgurāra in the Koshthāgrahāra in the Chaturāha maṇḍala as a perpetual grant by the king Bhoṭavarman to a Brāhman called Vadi, son of Sujana, of the Kāśyapa gotra. The boundaries of the donated land are given, but some of the details thereof are not quite intelligible. The village Jumgurāra is obviously the same as Jungrār, the find-spot of the plate, while Chaturāha maṇḍala refers to the Churāh wazārat. Koshthāgrahāra, which seems to be the name of the parganā, cannot be identified. The modern name of the parganā in which the village of Jungrār is included, is Jasaur which does not appear to be a contraction of Koshthāgrahāra.

The charter is not dated, but is issued, as usual, from the city of Champaka, i.e., Chamba. It mentions the names of Bhotavarman's parents : his father was Mānikyavarman and mother Jugyaradevī.

The record was composed by one Paṇḍit Agasti, and was engraved by a copper-smith named Rupuṇu.

No. 6. BAKAN PLATE OF SAMGRAMAVARMAN

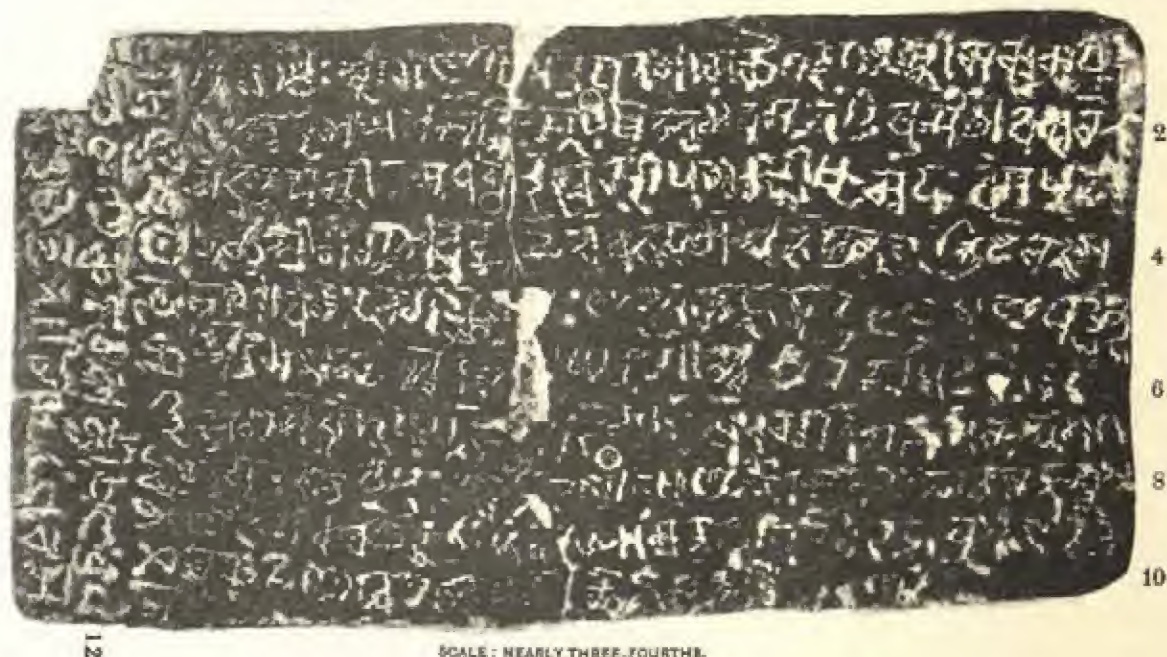

(Plate IV, A)

This plate is now kept in the Bhuri Singh Museum at Chamba, where it bears the number B, 10. It was discovered in the possession of its owner, a Brāhman named Gokaṭ, in the Bakāṇ or Bakāṇī parganā within the Chamba wazārat. It measures 11" wide by 5½" high, and has no handle and no seal. It was broken into two pieces which have now been railed together so as to form one whole. In its left corner as well as in its middle, it is slightly chipped off, resulting in the complete loss of a few syllables. The plate has evidently suffered from fire, as it looks very much singed. Consequently the writing on it has for a considerable part been blurred, and cannot be made out entirely. The engraving has been rather clumsily executed, and this adds to the obscurity.

The language, as usual, is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyāli, abounding in mistakes. The record is dated but the reading of the date is not absolutely certain. As it is, it reads Śaka 1316, the Śāstra year 70, Monday, the new-moon day of the month of Māgha. This is irregular. The Śāstra year corresponding to Śaka 1316 should be 62 and not 70. The reading of the Śaka year in the inscription may perhaps be 1314, in which case the figure of 4 appears inverted. But the corresponding Śāstra year would again be 60 and not 70. If we accept the reading 1314 and regard 70 as a mistake for 60, the date would regularly correspond to Monday, 13th January A. D. 1293, taking the month as pūrṇimānta. As, however, the year A. D. 1293 falls in the reign of Bhoṭavarman's father, Mānikyavarman, we have to presume that either the record is spurious or the date given is wrong.

As regards the object of the inscription, though much of the part containing important details has been lost, the preserved portion gives out that the inscription recorded the gift of a village called Bhiṭera, by the King Saṃgrāma-varman, to a Brāhman, named Kahnaśarman. The donated village is possibly identical with the modern Bhaṭerā in the Bakāṇi parganā. The record further refers to one village in the Maihla parganā, but it is not clear in what connection that has been referred to. Possibly some additional land was granted to the same donee, as is also indicated by a further mention of 6 kunus in line 11. The Maihla parganā, now known as Mehlā, is adjacent to the Bakāṇi parganā.

The writer of the grant was one Pandit Rāma.

No. 7. SAMGRAMAVARMAN'S GRANT TO BADU LEGHA

(Plate IV, B)

The present owner of this plate¹ is reported to be one Baḍu² Gūmal alias Chhajju of Chamba. It is a well preserved plate, only a very small bit has been chipped off from its upper right corner. It measures 7½" high by 11" wide excluding the handle to its left. It contains, all told, 17 lines of writing, of which lines 14-17 appear in the left margin, the last two being short lines.

The language is Bhāshā except in the first three lines where it is intended to be Sanskrit, but it is awfully corrupt.

The inscription records five gifts of land, to one and the same individual, made on different occasions, but apparently confirmed and registered on the last occasion when the charter was issued. This last occasion was an udyāpana on the 11th day of the bright fortnight of the month of Jyeshṭha in the year 22. The year in all probability is referable to the Śāstra reckoning and hence may be equated with A. D. 1446. Since, however, the week-day is not specified, the given date cannot be verified. As it is, it corresponds to Sunday, 5th June, A.D. 1446. The aforementioned tithi in the month of Jyeshṭha is known in the Punjab as Nirjalā Ekādaśī and on that date every pious Hindu is supposed to keep fast and perform charities. The term udyāpana denotes 'successful termination of a fast.' It follows, therefore, that the royal donor, Saṁgrāma-varman, must have observed fast on that Nirjalā Ekādaśī day and made gifts at the time of breaking his fast. The grantee is the priest called Baḍu Leghā.

Three of the other occasions of the donations are definitely stated in the record. They are : first, when Baḍu Leghā had carried the bone-remains of Saṁgrāma-varman's father Bhoṭavarman to Hardwar (Haridvāra) for immersing them there in the Ganges ; second, when Saṁgrāma-varman had performed the fourth annual *śrāddha*³ of his father ; and third, when Saṁgrāma-varman was anointed king.

³ Pandit Thakur Das informed me that this is what among his people is called śuddha śrāddha, a term which is actually met with in a later record (No. 35). Any śrāddha performed before the fourth year after the demise of the person concerned is regarded śuddha. The reason for this is shown in the fact that no high class Brāhmin participate in an śuddha śrāddha, that function being left to a particular section of the community known as Achāryas (Śkt. śāhāryas) who take part in obsequies as well.

The details of the gifts are as follows : a large tripartite field of wet land, known as Batreṭikā, in the village of Jakharāḍi; two fields, called Paṭi and Nāgathāṇi, at Kiriā; four plots of land at Paḍi in the Hubār parganā; one kunu of land at Chheni; and three kunus of land at Kulōḍi.

Of the localities mentioned, Jakharāḍi is identical with the modern Jukhrāḍi in the Panjlā parganā of the Chamba wazārat. Kiriā is now called Kiriā and is in the same parganā of Panjlā. Paḍi is probably a mistake for Sapaḍi or Sapaḍī, which village is in the Hubār parganā of the Bhaṭṭiyāt wazārat, while Chuḍūḍū in the same parganā is at present known as Chaḍūrū. The other localities could not be identified.

From the mention of the fourth annual śrāddha of Bhoṭavarman in this inscription, Prof. Vogel has concluded that Bhoṭavarman died in A. D. 1442.¹ This is correct only if the śrāddha was performed in the very Śāstra year 22 when this charter was issued. Apparently the inscription refers to the śrāddha as an event which was then past though we cannot ascertain the exact extent of its priority.

No. 8. MINDHA PLATE OF SAMGRAMAVARAMAN

(Plate V, A)

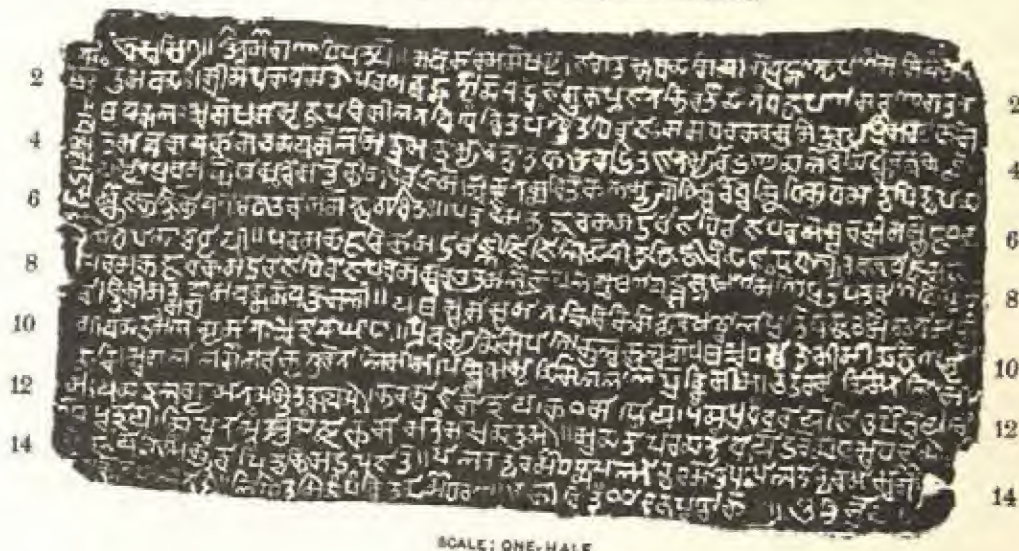

As recorded by Dr. Vogel,¹ the last owner of this plate was a Brāhman, Siv Karṇ by name, in the village of Miṇḍhā of the Panjā parganā, on whose death the grant lapsed. The plate is now deposited in the Bhuri Singh Museum at Chambā, where it bears the number B, 11. It measures 6½" high by 12½" wide, and is in a good state of preservation, except that its handle is broken off and corners are somewhat damaged. The writing on it covers sixteen lines, of which the last, containing only the subscription, appears in the left margin.

The record is couched in Sanskrit throughout. The composition does show a number of mistakes, but on the whole it is much less faulty than that of any of the foregoing inscriptions.

Its object is to register the gift, by P. M. P. Saṃgrāma-varman, of a village called Miṇḍha, included in the Kirikiśindara maṇḍala, as a perpetual grant to a Brāhman named Chipu, son of Rāśi and grandson of Jin, belonging to the Bhāradvāja gotra with the five-fold pravara and to the Kaṭha śākhā. The record is not dated.

The granted village is the present Minḍhā in the Panjālā parganā, while Kirikiśindara is identical with Kiriā of the preceding inscription and is now known as Karihā. This village was formerly the headquarters of a separate parganā, having the name Kirikiśindara or simply Kiriā, but now that parganā forms a part of the Panjālā parganā within which Kiriā is a village. Mugalā, a boundary village, retains its name to this day and is also in the Panjālā parganā.

The writer of the grant was one Pandit Dāmodara, while it was engraved by a copper-smith, named Rupunuka.

This inscription informs us that king Samgrāma-varman's mother was Parama-bhaṭṭārikā Mahārājñī Jijilidevi, and his father, P. M. P. Bhotavarman.

No. 9. UHAM PLATE OF ANANDAVARMAN

(Plate V, B)

This plate² is said to have been discovered in the possession of a Brāhmaṇa named Atrā at the village of *Uhām*³ in the Mehlā pargaṇā of the Chamba wazārat, and is now kept in the Bhuri Singh Museum at Chamba. The plate is in a good state of preservation. It has a handle on its left and measures 6" high by 7½" wide excluding the handle. The engraving is done in dots and on account of that it is not very clear. Consequently the reading at several places remains doubtful. The writing covers eighteen lines in all, of which lines 12-15 run inversely in the top margin, while lines 16-18 appear in the left margin; line 15 consists of only two syllables. In the left top corner of the plate there is engraved a seal in the form of a rosette, which bears a legend in its centre in Nāgarī characters, reading 'Śrī-Ānandavarma ā.'

¹ The phrase udaya-sailo mitra-maṇḍalasya has also a secondary sense here: 'mountain from behind which rises the orb of the sun.'

² No. B, 12 of the Catalogue.

³ In the list of villages at my disposal there is no village of the name of Uhām in the Mehlā pargaṇā, but there is one called Uṭāp and possibly this is what is meant.

The language of the record is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī and the composition is very faulty.

The inscription refers itself to the reign of P.M. Ānandavarmadeva and records his gift of a village named Umha in the Maihlā maṇḍala to a Brāhman called Malukaśarman, of the Śaṇḍilya gotra. The boundary-limits are well-defined.

The composer of the record was one Paṇḍit Bedūnā of the Gautama gotra, while it was evidently written on the plate by one Mehatā Makhaṇa.

The date of the document is mentioned in lines 1-2. It has been read as Śāstra year 57, Śaka 14 [0*]2, the twelfth day of the bright fortnight of the month of Kārttika. In the catalogue of the Bhuri Singh Museum, Dr. Vogel gives the Śaka year as 1403. In fact, as is clear from his manuscript with me, he read the figures as 1423 and corrected it into 1403. Obviously he thought that the third figure namely 2, was wrongly written instead of a zero by the scribe, since by calculation Śaka 1403 rightly corresponds to Śāstra 57. According to my reading, however, we have only 142; what Dr. Vogel read as 3 after that is in reality an initial a. I, therefore, think that the scribe omitted the zero altogether and that the intended number was 1402. In this case we may take it to refer to the expired Śaka year and not to the current. Anyway, the week-day having not been specified, the date is not verifiable. As it is, it corresponds to Saturday, 3rd November, A. D. 1481.

As regards the localities, the donated village Umha is identical with the present Uhām or Uṭāṇ situated on the left bank of the Rāvi above Mehlā, the headquarters of the parganā of the same name, which is mentioned in the inscription as Maihlā maṇḍala. The mountain-pass stated to be in the east of the gift village refers to the neck, near the village Dāḍuī, through which the road from Mehlā to Bakāṇ and Basu passes. The brooklet of Śakalā is now known as Sakālī, while the sacred foot-prints of Mehlā refer to a pillar bearing foot-prints of the goddess Jalamukhī or Jālapādevī under which name she is now known and worshipped at Mehlā.¹ The river spoken of in the north is no doubt the Rāvi.

NO. 10. CHAMBA PLATE OF ANANDAVARMAN

(Plate VI, A)

This plate¹ was in the possession of one Baḍu Chhajju at Chamba. It is fairly well preserved, except that a small bit from its lower right corner has chipped off, resulting in the loss of two or three letters. It has a handle to its left with a hole pierced in its centre. The engraving is rather poorly executed on account of which some portions of the text are not clear. The writing covers seventeen lines in all, of which the last line appears in the left margin.

The language of the record is incorrect Sanskrit mixed with Chambyāli.

Its object is to register the gift of several parcels of land by king Ānandavarman to two Brāhmins of the Bhāradvāja gotra, Gaṅgādhara and Gayādhara by name. The donees are brothers, the names of their father and grandfather respectively being Leghā and Sarma. Their father, Leghā, is possibly identical with the donee in one of Saṁgrāma-varman's grants, namely in No. 7 above. The record is not dated, but the occasion of the gift is stated to be the udyāpana of an ekādaśī (vrata) when there was also a Śiva-Pratishṭhā. It is not clear what this latter ceremony refers to. In some inscriptions from Chamba the term pratishṭhā is employed also in the sense of 'a ceremony performed on the completion of repairs to a temple.' Thus, in the present instance, the Śiva-pratishṭhā means either 'installation of śiva-linga' or 'completion of repairs to a Śiva temple.' No village is mentioned in the document. Only the names of the different fields donated occur, which cannot be identified.

We learn from this record that Ānandavarman's father was Saṁgrāma-varman and mother Paramabhāṭṭārikā Mahārājñī Sampūrṇadevī.

The writer of the inscription was one Paṇḍit Maṇo, while it was incised by a goldsmith whose name is not preserved.

No. 11. GHURETHA PLATE OF GANESAVARMAN ; SAKA 1434

(Plate VI, B)

The owner of this plate¹ was one Gharathu Prabndyāl of the village of Ghureṭha in the Bhariyā pargaṇā. It is now preserved in the Bhuri Singh Museum at Chamba and listed there as B, 13. It measures 5½" wide by 4¾" high. Its handle and a part of its upper left corner are broken off. There is a seal in the damaged corner, as usual in the form of a rosette with a Nāgari legend in its centre.

The language is partly incorrect Sanskrit and partly Chambyāli.

The inscription records the gift, by king Gaṇeśavarman, of a village called Yvaila to a Brāhman named Jaso of the Śāṇḍilya gotra. There are two villages of the name of Ohli in the Bhariyā pargaṇa. One of them probably represents Yvaila, the gift village.

The record is dated the Śaka year 1434, the Śāstra year 88, the new-moon day in the month of Māgha, the particular occasion being a sūrya-parvan. This last usually refers to a solar eclipse. The given date corresponds to Saturday, 5th February A.D. 1513, but there was no solar eclipse then. There was, however, a solar eclipse on the next following amāvāsyā day, that was in the month of Phālguna, Monday 7th March, A.D. 1513.² Probably this was the intended date, but by mistake the writer wrote Māgha instead of Phālguna. The writer was one Paṇḍit Ramā.

(L. 1) Om. Hail ! In the glorious Śāstra year 88, (corresponding to) the glorious Śālivāhana Śaka year 1434, in the month of Māgha, the dark fortnight, on the new-moon day, on the occasion of the solar eclipse ; during the victorious reign of the illustrious Paramabhaṭṭāraka Mahārājādhirāja Gaṇeśavarmadeva, in residence at the splendid city of Champaka, who is as venerable as an illustrious supreme deity, who is the most excellent, who is an ornament of the solar race, who is a paramount ruler ;

(L. 9) The boundaries thereof are : On the east the brooklet of Koḷa, Dhadhu and the Uṭora rock ; on the north (the boundary runs) alongside the river. This area is given.

No. 12. CHAMBA PLATE OF GANESAVARMAN ; SASTRA 97

(Plate VII, A)

The owner of this plate¹ also is stated to be Baḍu Chhajju² of Chamba. The plate is entire and has a handle to the left with a hole pierced in its centre. It measures 10" wide by 7½" high and has no seal. The inscription on it runs into 14 lines of which the last one appears in the left margin.

The language is incorrect Sanskrit mixed with Chambyāli.

The object of the inscription is to register two grants of land at the village of Gvaḍi by king Gaṇeśavarman jointly to two Brāhmans, Baḍu Kaṁhno and Baḍu Amno by name. It is stated in the record that one grant was made by queen Prāgadei (Prayāgadevī) at a place called Śīṅgarapura, while the other was made on the occasion when Baḍu Kaṁhno had immersed the bone-remains of king Ānandavarman in the Ganges. As is clear from the next inscription (No. 13), queen Prāgadei was Ānandavarman's wife and Gaṇeśavarman's mother.

The date of the document is given as the 8th day of the navarātra in the month of Chaitra of the year 97. The year obviously refers itself to the Śāstra reckoning. The navarātras occur twice in a year, once in the bright fortnight of Chaitra and for the second time in that of Āśvina. Towards the end of the record it is stated that the grants were formally conveyed to the donees at the time when Gaṇeśavarman was anointed king. This would show that the above date also refers to Gaṇeśavarman's accession. But Pandit Thakur Das informed me that the month of Chaitra is considered not auspicious enough in Chamba for the ṭikkā ceremony. We have, thus, to suppose that the two gifts had been earmarked on two previous occasions as specified, that they were conveyed to the donees at the time of Gaṇeśavarman's accession to the throne and that the title-deed was issued later, on the given date. It is not verifiable, but the year corresponds to A.D. 1521-22.

The village Gvaḍi, where the donated lands were situated, is identical with the modern Guḍi in the Panjlā parganā. Śīṅgarapura (Śrīṅgarapura ?) must be a place outside the Chamba state. It is supposed that queen Prāgadei must have gone on pilgrimage at the same time when her husband's bone-remains were taken for immersion in the Ganges and that Śīṅgarapura must have been a holy place that side, where she made her charity.

No. 13. DHADHYADA PLATE OF GANESAVARMAN; SASTRA 17

(Plate VII, B)

This plate was in the possession of one Nāgar Brāhmaṇ of Dhadhyadā in the Panjlā parganā. Except that both of its lower corners are slightly broken off, it is a well preserved plate. It has no handle and no seal. It measures 11½" wide by 7½" high, and bears twelve lines of inscription, the last line appearing in the left margin.

It records the gift of a field, called Dhadhyadā, by king Gaṇeśavarman to a Gvāḍu Brāhmaṇ named Raṇāso, son of Śambhu, of the Bhāradvāja gotra. The boundaries of the land are well defined. The grant was not absolutely rent-free. The donee had to give to the state a tax in kind, called māṅgaṇī, consisting of three piḍas of grain, presumably from every harvest.

The date of the gift is not specified. Only the year 17 is mentioned, which is to be taken as referring to the Śāstra reckoning. It corresponds to A.D 1541-42.

Dhadhyadā is the same as Dhadhyādā which is said to be within the Panjlā parganā. It is evidently not the name of a village, but only of a land.

The inscription informs us that Gaṇeśavarman's mother's name was Priāgadevi (Prayāgadevi).

No. 14. LAKSHMI-NARAYANA TEMPLE PLATE OF GANESAVARMAN'S TIME; SASTRA 34

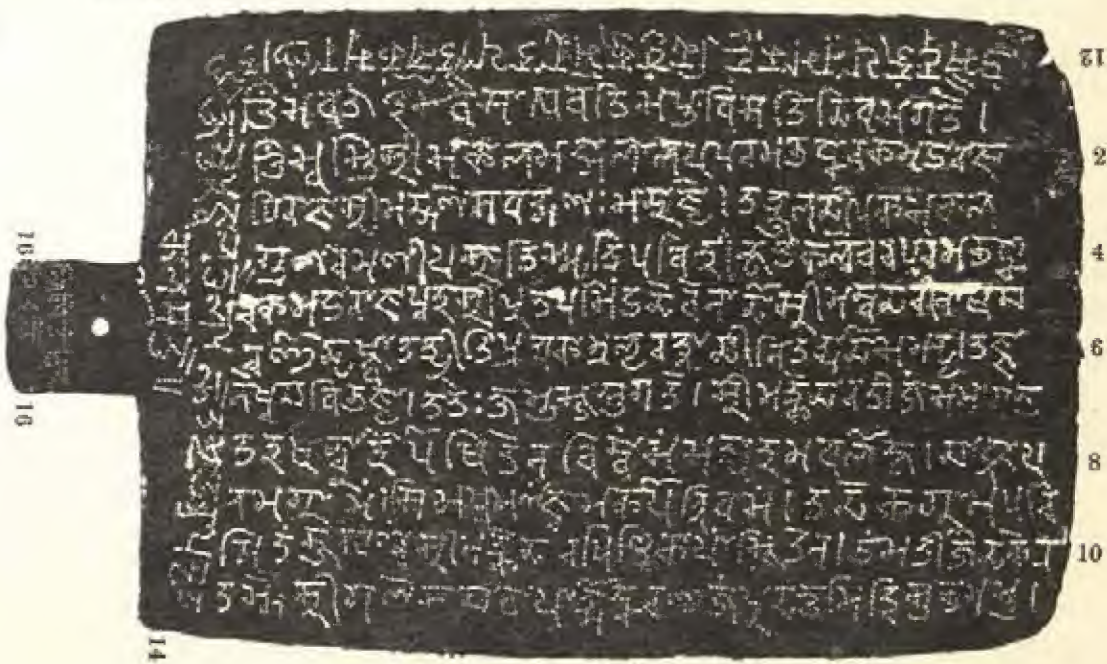

(Plate VIII, A)

This plate¹ belongs to the Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa temple at Chamba and is now preserved in the Bhuri Singh Museum there, its catalogue number being B, 14. It measures $8\frac{1}{2}$ " high by 14" broad including the handle to its left. There is a hole pierced in the centre of the handle. The plate does not bear any seal. It has, all told, 16 lines of writing engraved on it, of which line 12 runs inversely in the top margin, lines 13-14 appear in the left margin, line 14 is a short one, lines 15-16 are equally short and run on the handle.

The record is couched entirely in Sanskrit with scarcely any mistake and is remarkable for that. It does not mention the place of issue, but begins rightaway with the date which is the year 34, obviously of the Śāstra reckoning, the 27th day of the month of Vaiśākha, in its dark fortnight. This appears to be irregular. Ordinarily it should correspond to Tuesday, 24th May, A. D. 1558. Then the corresponding tithi was 7th of the bright fortnight of Jyeshtha. It is further stated in the record that the grant was made on the occasion of the Kumbha festival, which must have come off on the 1st of Vaiśākha, Thursday, 28th April, A.D. 1558. The corresponding tithi even then was 11th of the bright fortnight of Vaiśākha. Thus, the statement in the inscription that it was then the dark fortnight of Vaiśākha is not borne out. Possibly this latter refers to the date when the document was drawn up, while the gift was made about a month earlier, on Thursday, 28th April 1558, on the day of the Kumbha parvan. The Kumbha fair comes once in twelve years on a day when the planet Jupiter (Guru) enters Aquarius (Kumbha). It is held at some of the most holy places like Hardwar and Prayag (Allahabad).

The inscription refers itself to the reign of Mahārājādhirāja Gaṇeśavarman, but the gift recorded in the present grant was made by his son and co-regent Mohārāja-putra Pratāpasimha who, we learn from the inscription, had then gone on pilgrimage to the tīrthas of Badarīnātha and Kedāranātha beyond Haridvāra, in the Himālayas. It is stated that he presented priceless jewels at the feet of the god Badarīnātha, which were later divided among the priests attending on that deity, and that at the time of the Kumbha fair he came to Kedāra tīrtha, observed a fast lasting six nights and made a gift of the village called Chāhnāya to a learned Brāhman named Gaṇeśāchārya.

The gift village is very probably identical with the modern Chūhn, the headquarters of the parganā of the same name in the Bhaṭṭi or Bhaṭṭiyāt wazārat. The Hamsatīrtha, mentioned in connection with the libation of water at the time of the donation, must have been the name of a holy site at or near Kedāranātha.

The inscription was engraved by the goldsmith Ratana.

It is not known as to how the grant came into the possession of the Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa temple from its original owner.

No. 15. MOHDAYA GRANT OF GANESAVARMAN'S TIME ; SASTRA 34

(Plate VIII, B)

This plate¹ is said to have belonged to Jyotishī Chandramaṇi and is now deposited in the Bhuri Singh Museum at Chamba, where it is enlisted as B, 15. It measures 6½" high by 10" broad excluding the handle. The inscription on it is neatly engraved in big letters and consists of 11 lines in all, the last line running in the left margin.

The record is composed in Sanskrit throughout and has a few mistakes. It is dated in the year 34, plainly of the Śāstra reckoning and corresponds to A.D. 1558. No other details of the date are specified.

The document refers itself to the reign of Mahārājādhirāja Gaṇeśavarman but registers a grant by his son and co-regent Mahārājaputra Pratāpasimha of the village Mohdayā in the Hobāra maṇḍala to a Brāhman named Banu.

The Hobāra maṇḍala is the same as the present Hubār parganā. The list of villages at my disposal, however, does not show any village of the name of Mohdayā in that parganā.

The writer of the inscription was Paṇḍit Surānandaśarman.

The grant was not totally exempt from rent, as the donee, it is stated, had to pay to the state four droṇas of paddy and the other customary dues every year.

No. 16. CHAMENU GRANT OF GANESAVARMAN

(Plate IX)

This plate was discovered in the possession of one Purohit Mansā. It is an exceptionally large sheet of copper, measuring 10" high by 16 $\frac{3}{8}$ " wide excluding the handle which is on the left and has a hole pierced in its centre. The writing on it covers 15 lines in all, of which the last line runs along the left margin. The appearance of the characters indicate that the present plate is a somewhat later copy of an old record.

The language is Sanskrit, intermixed with the Bhāshā in the latter portion. The record bears no date.

Its object is to register a land-grant by king Gaṇeśavarman to one Paṇḍit Mādho, son of Bhāṇo and grandson of Tribho, belonging to the Atri gotra and the Vājasaneyā śākhā. The donation comprised two parcels of land; one the major piece, was situated at or more probably consisted of the village of Chameṇu, while the other, called Thakarota, lay at the village of Birora. Their boundaries are defined and are identifiable. Thus Chameṇu and Birora are the same as Chamiṇū and Baror respectively. Lamji, the boundary village in the west, is known under that very name to this day. All the three villages are included in the Gudyāl parganā. The river Śamala and the rivulet Holā are also there and are identical with the present day Sāl and Hol.

No. 17. PUNILA-PRENGULA GRANT OF GANESAVARMAN

(Plate X)

This plate is said to have been owned by Chandidas and Shirdas. It is broken into two. A triangular bit is broken off from the upper right corner of the left-hand side piece. The two pieces have now been clasped together into one whole. It measures 8" high by 17½" wide including the handle. It has, all told, 18 lines of inscription, of which line 12 appears in the right margin, line 13 runs inversely along the top margin, lines 14-15 occur in the left margin and lines 16-18 are very short ones and are engraved on the handle.

The language is Sanskrit throughout, though the composition is not altogether faultless. The record is not dated, but refers itself to Gaṇeśavarman's reign.

Its object is to register two land-gifts to a Brāhman called Biṇi of the Gautama gotra. The donor of one grant is king Gaṇeśavarman himself, while the other gift was given by queen Apūrvadevi with the king's approval. The former grant consisted of two villages named Punīla and Preṅgula, and the latter comprised a field called Dholi at the village of Huneri. The recipient of the queen's gift is not specifically mentioned, but presumably he is the same Brāhman Biṇi.

The writer and the engraver of the inscription were Pandit Surānanda and the goldsmith Arjāni respectively.

All the places mentioned in the inscription are included in the Bhaṛiyā parganā. Punīla and Preṅgula are identical with Paṇḍlā and Prayūṅgāl respectively, while Kamathā is the same as Baḍūnā. Huneri cannot be identified.

No. 18. GANGUYA GRANT OF GANESAVARMAN

(Plate XI, A)

The owner of this plate was one Koluā¹ Atrā. It measures 6½" high by 9½" wide. Its handle is partly cut off. It contains 12 lines of writing in all, of which line 11 runs inversely in the top margin, while line 12 appears in the left margin.

The language is Sanskrit. The record is not dated, but it refers itself to Gaṇeśavarman's reign. It records the gift of a field by the king himself to a Brāhman named Rāma at the village of Gāṅguyā.

The inscription was written by Pandit Surānanda and engraved by the goldsmith Arjāni.

The village of Gāṅguyā is identical with the modern Gugāmh. As the inscription indicates, there are, in fact, two villages of the same name. They are now called Gugāmh Upralā and Gugāmh Jhiklā, i.e., the Upper Gugāmh and Lower Gugāmh. They are included in the Sāch parganā of the Chamba wāzarat. The rājamārga or the main road mentioned in the inscription possibly refers to the old Khajiār road, while the Sāchediyā stream is now called Sāched.

² The daṇḍa here as well as in several cases below serves the purpose of a hyphen.

³ The anuvāda here is superfluous; read गाङ्गुया.

⁴ The reading of this syllable is not certain. Its formation is rather peculiar. It appears to be a with the signs of two medial vowels ū and ā attached to it. Perhaps we have to read क्वार. Anyway the sense of the word क्वारणुत्रय remain obscure, though obviously it is the proper name, however strange, of the field referred to.

⁵ There is a space sufficient for one letter left blank before य. The word द्वितीय suggests that another village of the same name of गाङ्गुया is meant. We may, therefore, supply ङ्गु in the blank space and read द्वितीय गाङ्गु[*] यग्रामस्य.

TRANSLATION

(L. 1) Om. Obeisance to the illustrious Gaṇeśa ! Om. The illustrious supreme lord of kings P.M.P. Gaṇeśavarmadeva, in residence at the splendid city of Champaka, who is highly venerable and who is pre-eminent among men, has himself given (a piece of land at) the village named Chilyāḍi as a hastodaka grant to a Brāhman named Dila, out of devotion to Viṣṇu.

(L. 5) The definition of boundaries :—Behind the public thoroughfare ; inwards from the Daūmri brook ; within Laṭhaloga and Chaphuḍu, and inwards from the brooklet of Lāḍhā. This is the extent of the granted land.

(L. 7) (Here follows one customary verse.)

No. 20. CHAMBA PLATE OF PRATAPASIMHA ; SASTRA 51

(Plate XII, A)

This plate was in the possession of Paṇḍit Mohan Lal, the Rājaguru, of Chamba. It is slightly damaged in the upper right corner, where one letter is lost. It has no handle. It measures 7½" high by 10½" broad. It has a seal in its top left corner, containing the name of the king in Nāgarī characters. The inscription on it covers, all told, 22 lines, of which lines 13-14 appear in the left margin and lines 15-18 run inversely in the top margin, while lines 19-22 are in reality no lines, as they contain only nine syllables engraved beside and below the seal for want of space.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The Sanskrit portion does not show many mistakes.

The inscription is dated in the Śāstra year 51, but further details of the date have not been given. In line 2 a word is doubtfully read as chaitra, but it is so out of place there that it can hardly be taken as referring to the month of Chaitra. The writer of the inscription had intended to state the corresponding Vikrama year, but he has not done so completely. He has written the first two digits as 16 and after that he has put only two dots, indicating thereby that two more digits were to follow. It is, however, not clear as to why he has left two blanks to be filled. The corresponding Vikrama year, according to calculation, was 1632, equal to A.D. 1575.

The object of the inscription is to record a gift of 2 jīḷas of land at Thakurāḷā by king Pratāpasimha to Ramāpatīśarman of the Bhāradvāja gotra by way of gurudakṣiṇā which shows that Ramāpati was ordained Rājaguru. This Ramāpati, as we shall see from a number of later inscriptions, was a son of Surānanda who figures as writer in some of Gaṇeśavarman's charters.

The word jilo evidently refers to a land measure, but the exact measurement it signifies is not known.

The village Ṭhakurālā, where the granted land lay, is identical with Ṭhukurālā in the Simhutā parganā of the Bhaṭṭi wazārat. In line 8 the inscription has Ṭhakurālā maṇḍala, but as is clear in line 11, the land granted was Ṭhakurālā proper. It is possible that Ṭhakurālā was also formerly headquarters of a parganā of the same name.

The seal and the inscription give the king's name as Pratāpasimhabrahman which may be the same as Pratāpasimhavarman. These alternative spellings will be found in some later records as well.

The scribe of the record was one Paṇḍit Ramaṇu.

Seal : The illustrious Pratāpasimhabrahman.

(L. 1) Om. Hail ! Obeisance to the illustrious Gaṇeśa ! In the glorious Śāstra year 51, (corresponding to the year) 16.. of the illustrious Vikramāditya ;

(L. 2) The illustrious P.M. Pratāpasimhabrahmadeva, who adds lustre to the splendid city of Champaka ; . . . who in prowess is equal to Rāma, Paraśurāma and Balarama ; who is expert in assailing his enemies ; who has his heart entirely devoted to worshipping Siva ; who is proficient in warfare ; who has all the quarters filled with the flow of his glory resembling (in purity and brilliance) the autumnal moon ; being in good health (issues this charter).

(L. 6) Here, out of devotion to the illustrious Rāmachandra, two jīḷos of land in the Thākuraḷā maṇḍala have been given as gurudakṣhiṇā to the esteemed Brāhman Ramāpatiśarman, born of the Bhāradvāja gotra. This he as well as his children may enjoy as long as the moon, the sun, the polar star and the universe endure. Whosoever will encroach upon it is to be fined and punished and may descend into hell.

(L. 10) (The details) thereof : Two 2 jīḷos of land at Thākuraḷā—one 1 jīḷo of Kuḍagha including Naddhali and (the other) one 1 jīḷo in Luḍagha—; the land of Dahuraḍa measuring 7 droṇas of seed-corn and two mango trees, have been granted to Paṇḍit Ramāpati as gurudakṣhiṇā in Bhaṭi. He who misappropriates it will be guilty of the sin of killing cows and Brāhmanas. The Paṇḍit's descendants are to enjoy (this grant).

(L. 16) (Here follow two customary stanzas.)

No. 21. LAKSHMI-NARAYANA TEMPLE PLATE OF PRATAPASIMHA:

SASTRA 51

(Plate XII, B)

This plate belongs to the temple of Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa at Chamba and is now preserved in the Bhuri Singh Museum there, bearing the catalogue number B, 17. It measures 9½" high by 14½" broad. It has a seal embossed in the top left corner, with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 17 lines of writing.

The language is partly incorrect Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The record is dated in the Śāstra year 51, the 1st day of Māgha, the hibernal solstice or Makara-saṁkrānti. Since the week day is not mentioned, the date cannot be verified. As it is, it corresponds to Thursday, 20th December, A.D. 1575.

The charter records the grant of a village called Thahnā by king Pratāpasimha to Samju Jeu. The boundaries of the donated land are well defined. The inscription informs us that the land granted by this charter formerly belonged to one Bhaṭa Raṇadhīra. Some portions of the land of that village had previously been given to some other persons. They are stated to have been excluded from the present donation. It is not known how the grant ultimately became the property of the temple.

The donated village is identical with Thanenā in the Bhaṭiyā parganā of the Chamba wāḍārāt. Among the other places mentioned in the inscription, Bhiriā, Taḍagrā and Ohli are to be identified with Bharimhām, Taḍagram and Ohli in the same parganā.

splendid city of Champaka, who is highly venerable ; who is pre-eminent among men who is a devout worshipper of Viṣṇu ; who is a saintly king ; who is exceedingly generous ; a protector of devījas and others ; rigid in (observing) his own duties ; distinguished ; omniscient ; always compassionate ; ever victorious over his adversaries ; the lord of kings and great kings ; has, on the Makara-saṁkrānti day, donated the village called Thahnāṇa as a hastodaka grant to Samju Jēu. The boundaries hereof : Below the two rocks lying at the foot of the incline of Bhirā and under Bheṭhī ; further, the boundary lies inwards from the brook flowing in the direction of Taḍagrā. Moreover, Jēu should be allowed to use the watercourse of Ohlā in the same manner as was used by Raṇadhīra. And Thahnāṇa has been given to Jēu with the same extent of boundaries as was enjoyed by the Bhaṭa Raṇadhīra.

(L. 8) Now the land which is excluded from Thahnāṇa is recorded : The three 3 kunus of irrigable and 1 kunu of unirrigable land which had been given to the daughter's son of Raṇadhīra ; one 1 kunu of Bhyagaṇī Keśava (and) 1 one kunu of Bhaṭa and Kāśaṇu, which had been given to the Purohita ; (and) two 2 kunus of Maheśa.

(L. 11) The extent of boundaries as described above was defined by the order of the illustrious Mahārājādhirāja Pratāpasimhabrahman in the presence of Dhamvāṇī Bhavānidāsa, Bhyagyāṇī Ajā, Mudraitā Bhikhārī, and Kamalvāṇī Rāma as well as of the wife and son of Kāhno of Thahnāṇa.

(L. 13) The grant was made with the proper ceremony of libation of water.

(L. 14) (Here follow three customary verses.)

(L. 17) And (may there be) prosperity ! (This) has been written by Paṇḍit Ramāpati. May there be blessings ! May there be welfare !

No. 22. LAKSHMI-NARAYANA TEMPLE PLATE OF PRATAPASIMHA, SASTRA 51 (DUPLICATE)

This plate belongs to the temple of Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa at Chamba and is at present kept in the Bhuri Singh Museum there, its catalogue number being B, 18. It is a very well preserved sheet of copper, measuring 10" high by 12" wide excluding the handle to its left. The handle has a hole pierced in its centre. The top centre of the plate bears a seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 16 lines.

The language is partly incorrect Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The style of composition in the preamble is ornate, though that part is full of mistakes.

As regards the contents of the record, it is virtually a copy of the foregoing charter. The date, the donee, the donated village and many of the other details are exactly the same here as they are found in the previous plate, with one main difference, namely the present record does not exclude some pieces of land as belonging to certain other owners, as the preceding document specifies. It appears that after the present charter had been prepared it was discovered that some fields at the donated village were the personal property of certain individuals, which it was then thought necessary to exclude from the donation. And this necessitated the drawing up of a fresh charter. The present one is thus a discarded copy of the record, while the preceding plate contains it in its revised form.

illustrious Mahārāja Gaṇesavarman, son of the illustrious Mahārāja Ānandavarman—the illustrious Pratāpasimhavarman who is highly venerable ; who is pre-eminent among men ; who is a great patron of Brāhmaṇas ; who is devoted to worshipping divinities, honouring dvijas and respecting his elders ; who is a protector of the submissive and the distressed ; who in truthfulness is a Hariśchandra, in prowess a Bhīma, among archers an Arjuna, in generosity Karṇa, in conduct a Rāmachandra (and) in the exuberance of intellect a Vidura ; who is a very kinsman full of compassion towards his well-wishers ; who would in chastisement behead his foes with the sword ; who is (truly) a lord of great kings through conserving the eighteen elements (of his kingship) ; who is an ornament to the house of Mūṣhaṇa ; who is proficient in raising his family to glory—has, out of devotion to the illustrious Lord Viṣṇu, given (the village of) Thanana as a rent-free grant to the Brāhman Jai.

(L. 8) The demarcation of the boundaries is recorded : In the east the boundary extends as far as the river (Rāvi) ; in the south the brook forms the boundary ; in the west the limit is below the precipitous slope ; (and) in the north the steep precipice marks the limit. Further, the king has granted to Jeu one third share of the water from the Ohli watercourse at Thahana.

(L. 11) The king has donated to Jeu the (village of) Thahana to the same extent of boundaries as was enjoyed by Bhaṭa Raṇadhīra. The descendants of the illustrious king Pratāpasimhavarman are to protect (this gift) and those of the Brāhman Jeu are to enjoy it. This is the donation of the illustrious king Pratāpasimhavarman, but this pious gift of the king should be protected by all.

(L. 15) (This) has been dictated by the king's minister Bhavānidāsa, son of Bāmka and written by Paṇḍit Ramāpati, son of Paṇḍit Surottāma. May there be welfare and prosperity !

No. 23. CHAMBA PLATE OF PRATAPASIMHA'S TIME ; V.S. 1636

(Plate XIII)

This plate¹ was in the possession of the Rājaguru, Paṇḍit Mohan Lal, at Chamba. Although it is slightly damaged and shows a few rents in different places, the inscription on it is almost intact. It measures 11½" high by 14" wide, and has no handle. In its upper left corner it bears a seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription on it covers, all told, 43 lines, of which lines 31-34 appear in the left margin, lines 35-38 run inversely in the top margin, lines 39-41 likewise appear in the top margin, but to the left of the seal, and lines 42-43, in slightly bigger letters, over lines 39-41. There is hardly any space left blank on the plate. Its inscribed side looks crammed with writing, especially because the letters are comparatively small in size.

The language of the record is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī and the composition is faulty, particularly in the bhāṣā portion where the text is in some places quite unintelligible.

It is a document of unusual length for a Chamba copper plate and its contents are equally unusual. Although it is essentially a charter registering a land grant, yet it incidentally records some transactions of a different nature, which are of much historical interest and importance. It is, however, to be regretted that owing to the text being defective, the true import so far as those transactions are concerned remains obscure.

The record opens, after the usual obeisance to Gaṇeśa, with the date which is the Śāstra year 55 corresponding to Vikrama Samvat 1636 on the Ananta-chaturdaśī day in the bright fortnight of the month of Bhādrapada. Since the week-day is not mentioned, the date cannot be verified. As it is, it corresponds to Friday, 4th September. A.D. 1579.

After the date comes the usual preamble from where we gather that the ruler of Chamba at that time was Pratāpasimha, son of Gaṇeśavarman and Sāhibadevī. It is then stated that Balabhadradeva, as heir-apparent to Pratāpasimha, conferred the present charter on Paṇḍit Surānanda's son Ramāpati. Balabhadradeva is styled in the present inscription as mahāyuvārāja. As we know from his own charters, he was a son of Virabhānadeva and a grandson of Pratāpasimha.

It appears from the foregoing statement that Balabhadradeva was the grantor, but in reality, as is made clear in the subsequent part of the grant, his name has been associated with some donations previously made by his grandfather and great-grandfather. Thus, it is stated that a village named Bhūḍa in the Sāho parganā had been granted by Gaṇeśavarman. The donee's name is not mentioned, but he must have been Ramāpati's father Surānanda. Then Pratāpasimha is stated to have donated two villages on two different occasions as gurudakṣhiṇā, obviously to his guru Ramāpati,¹ one named Ocha in the Bāthari parganā and the other named Paṇathala in the Pihura parganā. The occasion of this last dakṣhiṇā was the Ananta-chaturdaśī vrata, evidently the very day which is mentioned in the date in the beginning of the record. The object of the present charter is thus to register the grant made on the Ananta-chaturdaśī day as well as the two grants previously made to one and the same donee.²

Then follows a description of the boundaries of each village, which is given in great detail. In the course of the description of Ocha, there is a mention of the king's two ministers having deprived the rightful owner of that village and having on that account been fined and dismissed by the king. The case was tried and decided by the king, while Balabhadra had to do a lot of service in that connection by way of personally going and reinstating the Paṇḍit in his former position. It is chiefly in connection with the narrative of this case that the text is extremely perplexing.

In line 32 there is, to all appearance, reference to the capture or occupation of Bhaṭṭi and Pihura, but the full significance of this is not clear.

² Though Gaṇeśavarman's grant must have been to Surānanda, but as the latter is the father of Ramāpati, the recipient of the present charter, the grant goes to the same family or the same donee, so to say.

As regards the various places mentioned in the inscription, most of them are identifiable. Thus the maṇḍalas of Sāho, Bātharī and Pihura are the same as the parganās of Sāho, Bāthri and Piura, of which Bāthri is in the Bhaṭṭi wazārat, and the other two in the Chamba wazārat. The village of Bhūḍa or Bhudda is identical with the modern Bhudā or Bhuddā, while Ocha and Paṇathala cannot be identified with certainty. Ocha is probably the same as Achhānā. Aghāru, Siuḍi and Sāhlu are identical respectively with the modern Aghārūm, Syūmḍi and Sāhlo in the Sāho parganā, while the river Sala is obviously the Sāl. Bhihriā seems to be the same as Bhaṛimhām in the Bhaṛimhām parganā of the Chamba wazārat. Maṅgalā is in the Sāch parganā of the same wazārat.

TRANSLATION

Seal: The illustrious Pratāpasimhabrahman.

(L. 1) O.n. Hail ! Obeisance to the illustrious Gaṇeśa ! In the glorious Śāstra year 55, (corresponding to the year) 1636 of the illustrious Vikramāditya, on the Ananta-chaturdaśī (14th day) in the bright fortnight of the month of Bhādra-pada;

(L. 2) the illustrious Balabhadradeva, the grand heir-apparent (mahāyuvārāja) of the illustrious P. M. Pratāpasimhabrahmadeva who is in residence at the splendid city of Champaka (and) who is a son of the illustrious Paramabhṭṭāraka Gaṇeśavarman (who was) pre-eminent among men, adorable as a supreme deity, endowed with all virtues, (and) a worshipper of gods, Brāhmaṇas, and guests ; who¹ in prowess is equal to Rāma, Paraśurāma and Balarāma ; who is expert in vanquishing his foes ; who has his heart intensely devoted to the feet of Śiva ; who is an experienced warrior ; who has all the quarters filled with the affluence of his glory resembling the autumnal moon ; who is a gem in the dynasty of Mūshana ; who is the very forehead mark of the noble family of Saliladeva (i.e., Sāhilla-deva) ; (and) who is a very moon (sprung) from the milky ocean (in the form) of the womb of the illustrious great queen Sāhibadevī ; bestows (this) wonderful charter of land-grant, adorned by his own lotus-like hand, upon the son² of the illustrious foremost Bhṭṭāchārya Surānanda of the Gauḍa country, who³ is pure in respect-of (all) the three families ;⁴ who (regularly) observes the *tri-sandhyā*⁵ rites ; (and) who is (ever) intent upon (performing) his sixfold⁶ duty.

(L. 7) The grant consists of three villages from different parganās—three extensive lands including all that is attached to them, namely vegetation, water with the right to letting it flow in or out, houses, kitchen-gardens, trees, groves, shelters and the like.

(L. 8) First, the village named Bhūḍa, to the extent of all its boundaries in the Śāho parganā, was granted by Gaṇeśavarman. (Then) the village called Ocha, to the extent of its boundaries, in the Bātharī parganā, was donated as guru-dakṣiṇā by the illustrious Pratāpasimhavarman. (Lastly) the village known as Paṇathala, in the Pihura parganā, an additional dakṣiṇā consisting of land, given as dakṣiṇā on the

² His name is Ramāpati which occurs below in lines 10-11.

³ This refers to the donee.

⁴ This alludes to the family-connections from the sides of one's father, mother and wife. Thus the term tri-kula-nirmala applies to one whose father is of pure descent, mother comes of a noble family and wife is likewise of high birth.

⁵ Namely, morning, midday and evening prayers.

⁶ The six acts incumbent upon a Brahman are : learning, teaching, performing sacrifices, making others perform sacrifices, giving charities and accepting charities.

occasion of the termination of the Ananta-chaturdaśī vrata as well as of the uninterrupted (execution of the) vow, was conferred by the illustrious Pratāpasimhavarman upon the illustrious Ramāpati, with (the proper ceremony of) libation of water.

(L. 11) That (grant) may be enjoyed by him (Ramāpati) as well as by his progeny as long as the moon, the sun, the polar star and the universe endure. Whosoever will encroach hereupon, deserves to be punished (and) put to death, (and) may descend into hell! All the aforementioned¹ servants of the king should abide by (this charter). This (gift) is to be enjoyed by (the donee's) sons and son's sons in succession; it is not to be seized, not to be confiscated, not to be disputed, (and) no interference whatsoever should be caused (hereto). By the authority of the copper-charter granted by us,² he (the donee) may dwell (or) cause (others) to dwell (in the donated land), may enjoy (or) let (others) enjoy (it)—he may do whatever he pleases. nobody should offer any obstruction.

(L. 14) Now the boundaries:³ The eastern boundary of Bhuḍa is marked by the stream of Aghāru, the stream being included in Bhuḍa. There also runs a watercourse above Aghāru. Should the donee so require, he is allowed at any time to conduct that water also to Bhuḍa. On the south the boundary is formed by the watercourse of Bhuḍa, the land called Kumḍali, lying below and above the channel and extending as far as the chīl grove, being included in Bhuḍa. On the west the boundary-line runs below the road to Siuḍi, inwards from the badāh grove, below the large pit in the brook under the chīl grove, also below the path leading to the water course, the water-mill above the river (Sāl) being included in Bhuḍa. On the north the boundary lies above the river Saḷa (i.e., Sāl), the flat ground of the river-bank being included in Bhuḍa, below the precipice rising above the houses of Salumi as well as below the stone steps in the land called Siḍhā beyond the brooklet of Kaithā, inwards from the Nirogā rock beyond the old Sāhlu road above the wet land, all the land as far as that road being included in Bhuḍa. Having defined Bhuḍa with this much extent, the illustrious Gaṇeśa (i.e., king Gaṇeśavarman) gave it to the Pandit.

(L. 19) Now the details also of the land given as guru-dakṣiṇa.⁴ One lūhaḍī of partly wet and partly dry land at Bhihriā; one lāhaḍī of wet land at Bhikriā; the lands called Hathāḍī, Chaurī and Ohlī at Maṅgalā; three kunas of wet land

¹ It may be observed that the present charter makes no mention of any officer. However, the inscription from which the passage in question is copied does name a number of officials. See above, p. 65, n. 7.

² This refers to the royal donor whose order is obviously recorded here in direct speech.

³ The original, from here, is in the bhāṣā, extremely faulty and in places quite unintelligible. Hence the translation given from here onwards will be found to be more of an attempt at an explanation than a literal rendering.

⁴ The original has simply gurapaṇa bhī, and it is indeed too much of imagination to derive so much sense out of it as we have done. The expression is rather obscure. But for the fact that we know, the inscription has, after mentioning Gaṇeśavarman's gift of Bhuḍa, stated (text line 9) Pratāpasimha's grant of Ocha as guru dakṣiṇā, we might explain the expression under discussion differently. The term gurapaṇa, which we have equated with guru-dakṣiṇā, in reality means 'rank of guru,' and the expression gurapaṇa bhī in the given context would rather denote 'the king also invested the Pandit with the rank of Guru or Rājaguru.' And possibly it is a passing reference to Gaṇeśavarman's honouring Surānanda with the dignity of Rājaguru. And for Pratāpasimha, we know from another inscription (above Inscription No. 20) that he had Ramāpati as his Guru.

on the Rāvi, including the land called Kahola—all these lands were given by Pratāpasimha, on the occasion of the Ekādaśī visarjana to Paṇḍit Bhabho. The ministers took Ocha to themselves and enjoyed it for three years. They took the avatralī property of Taṭā, consisting of 13 gold mohurs, moveable articles, grain, cattle, six plots of ghāḍī land and 7 gold mohurs in cash. The king tried the case and delivered judgment. The illustrious Balabhadra himself went and brought the Paṇḍit and brought the Paṇḍit's wife from Balaur. Both the ministers were dismissed. The village and land, which had been misappropriated by the two ministers, were granted by the illustrious king Pratāpasimha and the illustrious Balabhadra to the Paṇḍit as a hastodaka grant on the occasion of the Ananta-chaturdaśī visarjana. Should in future any descendants of Ravidāsa, Chaṇḍī and Bāmkā prefer claim to the said property, then the ministers' claim will be deemed false. My descendants, the scions of the Solar race, should in future preserve this pious gift of mine. The ministers were fined three hundred gold mohurs, and that sum was given to the Paṇḍits Rāmunu, Sāma and Ratana. If the Paṇḍit be assessed any amount on account of his land, then the king's judgment will prove false. These mohurs realised from the fine are to go to the king. The value of the Paṇḍit's grain was estimated at 18 eighteen thousand copper ṭaṃkas. The village and the land were enjoyed without being granted. All my descendants should protect this gift of mine for the Paṇḍit's progeny. Out of the amount of the fine, twenty-five mohurs are to be given to the Paṇḍit and the rest is to go to the king.

(L. 29) Balabhadra gave the house, the hospice of Ukaraḍā, including the four wells and the road, and one kunu of land in Choseri, on the occasion of the tulāpurusha ceremony. One lāhaḍī of land to each. One lāhaḍī at Mahīla was given by Virabhāna (Virabhāna). One kunu of land at Dhiṇaha, one kunu at Muhraḍī, two jīḷos at Ṭhakurāhlā, including Lughana and Ḍhuḷī, in Dahuraḍā, were granted when he took Bhaṭī. When he took Pihura, he gave Paṇathala as guru-dakṣhiṇā.

(L. 32) The illustrious Pratāpasimha donated the village named Ocha on the occasion of the consecration of the temple of Badarīnārāyaṇa. Its boundaries are on the east it includes the whole of the watershed below the shrine of the Nāga Bāḍhara; on the south it includes the pasture land on both the sides of the Ṭoṭṭhala brook, inwards from Dhaṇāla, the grazing ground being within Ocha, the boundary of the land including the mound of Kuloḍī, as far as the Durbā road, below the land of Kehnaṇa, including all the land in front of the pool of water which is beyond the former border of the land of Ocha, above Śamāli, as far as the mound of Kuloḍa and the near bank of the Ṭyaḍālu brook, inwards from the large parapet, inwards from the stream running beyond that, including all the land up to Dāḍarā, above the long ridge beneath Kuloḍī, under the big rock, inwards from the kaith tree; on the south-west¹ the boundary lies behind the path leading to the water-mill and includes the uncultivated land, below the path on the upper descent, behind the Āru field, inwards from the channel, running alongside it; and on the north² the boundary extends as far as the water-mill situated on the near bank of the Lukhālī stream, behind the upper channel, inwards from the big oak tree, below the path leading to Agolī and Manola, including the water-mill and the watercourse diverted from the stream. The land of Ocha has been defined thus and incorporated in this grant. One field measuring 19 pathas of seed-corn lies in the direction of Agolī within Viśamṭu, above the dilapidated house of Barbādā, behind Mehlaṇa, in front of the Ṭoṭṭhala brook, as far as Baghahu ridge, including in its boundary the Bhacha pasture.

No. 24. DRABILA GRANT OF PRATAPASIMHA; SASTRA 58

This plate was in the possession of a Brāhman, named Duryodhan, in Chamba. The engraving on it is rather carelessly executed, especially in its latter part where it appears to have, moreover, been rubbed off to some extent. It measures 5½" high by 10" wide excluding the handle on its left. It has altogether 16 lines of writing, of which lines 12-15 appear in the left margin while line 16 occurs in the top margin where there is also a seal, now very faint, with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī and the composition is extremely faulty. The text has been left uncorrected because of its intelligibility in spite of the mistakes. The inscription is dated the 9th day of Vaiśākha, the year 58 obviously of the Śāstra reckoning. It corresponds to the Vikrama Samvat 1639, and as such the date may be equated with Sunday, 6th May, A.D. 1582, though in the absence of any mention of the weekday it is not quite verifiable. The object of the charter is to register certain gifts by king Pratāpasimha to one Bhaṭa Bhāgaṇu, belonging to the Yajurveda and the Bādhula gotra. The chief gift consists of 2½ bhaṅgas of land at the village of Drabilā. The donation included additional five lāhaḍīs of land as well as some houses, etc. Besides, the same donee was a recipient of a house-site in the town of Chamba as well as a specified amount of daily provisions in recognition of his priestly services by way of performing havana and japa on behalf of the king at various shrines. In this connection three temples are mentioned, Chandragupta, Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa and Baṁśīgopāla. Of these, the first is a Śiva temple and the name Chandragupta applies to the linga therein. They are all at Chamba.

The particular village of Drabilā is said to be within the Sāch parganā of the Chamba wazārat, though the list of villages at my disposal does not show any village of the name of Drabilā in that parganā. It may, however, be pointed out that there are several villages of that name within the state of Chamba, belonging to different parganās.

(L. 1) Om. In the glorious year 58, on the 9th day of Vaiśākha, when the consecration ceremony was performed at the temple of Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa, the illustrious P.M.P. Pratāpasimha² gave a sāsana (i.e., land-grant) to the Yajurvedin Bhaṭa Bhāgaṇu of the Bādhula gotra, (the grant consisting of) 2½ bhaṅgas of land... (at the village) called Drabilā, 5 lāhaḍīs of land....., and with the extent of the boundary marked by the Selūṇī brook....., the area to be enjoyed by Bhaṭa Bhāgaṇu (including) the house, the upper cottage in the cavity of the hill (?), the footpath and the zigzag watercourse.

(L. 8) When the illustrious king Pratāpasimha would perform havana at the temples of the gods Chandragupta and Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa, Bhaṭa Bhāgaṇu should then perform, on behalf of the illustrious king, two havanas, (and tell) four mālās. As honorarium for this Bhaṭa Bhāgaṇu is to be supplied with the daily provisions of 2 ṭamkas in cash, 3 seers of fine rice, ½ seer of pulses 2 sīrsāhīs of salt and 1 seer of ghee.

(L. 11) The descendants of the illustrious Pratāpasimha are to maintain his pious gift for the family of Bhaṭa Bhāgaṇu.

1 This syllable appears above the line ; evidently it was omitted first and was supplied later on.

2 It is considered unnecessary to add here a translation of the conventional epithets attached to the name of the king especially when most of them have already been translated above, see p. 67

(L. 12) The illustrious Pratāpasimha has given as śāsana one house-site in the town of Chambā to the priest Bhaṭa Bhāgaṇu for the daily performance of go-dūhana-mālā at (the temple of) Chandragupta and of havana at (the temple of) Baiśīgopāla.

No. 25. MANGALOA PLATE OF PRATAPASIMHA; SASTRA 58

(Plate XIV, A)

This plate¹ was found in the possession of a Brāhman, Rān Chand by name, at the village of Maṅgaloā in the Loh Tikrī purganā of the Churāh wazārat. It measures 5½" high by 8" wide. It has a seal, crudely engraved, in the top left corner with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription runs into 14 lines, of which line 11 runs inversely in the top margin, lines 12-13 appear in the left margin and line 14 in the right.

The language of the record is Chambyālī with a few expressions intended to be in Sanskrit. The record is dated in the year 58, referring undoubtedly to the Śāstra reckoning, on the 13th day of Vaiśākha, without mentioning the week-day. The corresponding Vikrama Samvat must be 1639, and the date may thus be equated with Thursday, 10th May, A.D. 1582.

The object of the charter is to record the grant of a village named Maṅglaua, by king Pratāpasimha to the temple of Śrī-Nārāyaṇa by which is meant the temple of Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa at the city of Chamba. It is further stated that the village was placed under the care of three individuals, Hamīra, Hedo and Chipu by name, who were practically to enjoy the donated village. Each of them had to pay to the temple a specific tax both in kind and in cash.

The donated village is obviously the same as Maṅgaloā, the provenance of the plate.

The writer of the charter was one Paṇḍit Durugu.

Seal: The illustrious Pratāpasimhavarman.

(L. 1) Om. Prosperity ! In the year 58, on the 13th day of Vaiśākha, the illustrious P.M. Pratāpasimhabrahmadeva has bestowed the village Maṅgalaua on (the temple of) Lakshmī-Nārāyaṇa on the occasion of its renovation. That village has been entrusted to Hamira, Hedō and Chipu.

(L. 6) The details of the agreement entered into are specified as follows: (Hamira is to give) 8 peḍas of wheat, 3 peḍas of peas, 1 peḍa of green-grams and four copper ṭamkas; (Hedō is to give) $\frac{1}{4}$ seer of ghee and 1 copper ṭamka; (and Chipu is to give) $\frac{1}{4}$ seer of honey and 5 copper ṭamkas in cash. This tax should be regularly paid to the Lakshmī-Nārāyaṇa (temple).

(L. 9) The king should take care of their children in future¹ and they should pay the tax without fail. If they continue tilling the land and fail to pay the tax, then the king may resume the land from them and entrust it to others. Such is the agreement.

(L. 10) This has been written by Paṇḍit Durugu.

No. 26. CHAMBA PLATE OF PRATAPASIMHA; SASTRA 62

(Plate XIV, B)

This plate² belonged to the Purohit, Baḍu Ḍiḍo by name, at Chamba, and is now preserved in the Bhuri Singh Museum there, bearing the catalogue number B, 19. It measures $7\frac{1}{2}$ " high by 12" wide including the handle on its left, which has a hole pierced in its centre. It has no seal. The inscription covers 20 lines in all of which lines 15-17 occur in the left margin, lines 18-19 run inversely in the top margin and line 20, which is a short one, appears on the handle.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyāli and the composition is very faulty. The text has been left uncorrected, as the sense is quite clear throughout.

The record is dated the 20th day of Vaiśākha in the year 62,³ which plainly refers to the Śāstra reckoning and as such corresponds to the Vikrama Samvat 1643 and may be equated with Tuesday, 17th May, A.D. 1586.

¹ That is, the king should preserve the grant for them.

³ This is what Dr. Vogel reads and accordingly concludes that the present is the latest known charter of Pratāpasimha (see HPHS, Vol I, p. 299). An examination of the sign for the figure read as 6 will show that it answers more to 4 than to 6 though for either it appears somewhat distorted. In fact the unusual form of the figure 4 seen in No. 25, line 7 and No. 37 line 1 resembles the one in question. I would read the number of the year as 42 rather than as 62, not so much for the aforementioned reason, as for the following two considerations: First, Baḍu Amno, the father of the donee in this grant is obviously identical with Baḍu Amno figuring in one (No. 12) of Gaṇeśavarman's grants, the date of which corresponds to A.D. 1521-22. The difference of time between the father and the son would be that of 64 years in the case of the date of the present charter being the year 62, which is abnormally long whereas it would be that of 44 years in the event of the date of the present inscription being the year 42, which is not so abnormal. Secondly, in line 9 of the present document it is stated that Pratāpasimha made the grant at his father's instance, which indicates that his father was alive then. It will be either A.D. 1566 or A.D. 1586 according as the number of the year in question is read either as 42 or as 62. The former appears more likely. It may be recalled that according to Dr. Vogel Pratāpasimha's father Gaṇeśavarman died in A.D. 1559 (see HPHS, Vol. I, p. 297). This conclusion is based evidently on the fact that A.D. 1559 (or A.D. 1553 according to me) is the last year known from his dated records. It may, however, be pointed out that four (Nos. 18-19) of his records bear no date. It is quite likely that some of them may be later than A.D. 1559 and that Gaṇeśavarman was still living in A.D. 1586 as shown above. According to me thus, the present inscription instead of being the latest, is the earliest of Pratāpasimha's charters.

The object of the inscription is to record a land-grant made by king Pratāpasimha, at his father's suggestion, to one Baḍu Ratana, son of Baḍu Amno and grandson of Baḍu Gayādhara of the Bhāradvāja gotra. One Baḍu Amno figures as one of the two donees in a grant by Gaṇeśavarman (No. 12). Possibly he is identical with Baḍu Amno, the father of Ratana. Similarly the latter's grandfather Gayādhara is mentioned as one of the two grantees in a grant by Ānandavarman (No. 10). The gift, it is stated, was made on the Gaṅgā (the Ganges) at Haridvāra (Hardwar), from which it is clear that the donor had gone to that holy place on pilgrimage. The donation consisted of several parcels of land situated at several villages, namely Mehlā, Suroḍa, Chāmbi, Rajerā, Khaḍerā and Kilo or Keloḍa. Of these the first is the headquarters of the Mehlā parganā, Suroḍa and Chāmbi are identical with Saroḍ and Chāmbī in the Sāch parganā, and Rajerā is in the Panjlā parganā, all in the Chamba wazārat. Khaḍerā is probably the same as Chhaderā in the Panjlā parganā, whereas it has not been possible to identify Kiloḍa or Keloḍa, though it is presumably the same as Kuloḍa or Kuloḍī mentioned in another inscription of Pratāpasimha (No. 23, text lines 34-36).

The writer of the grant was one Chhaju.

(L. 11) Now the details of the donated land are recorded: 2 kunus of land at Mehlā, 2 kunus of land at Suroḍa, 1 kunu of land at Chambi, 3 kunus of land at Rajerā, 1 kunu of land at Khaḍerā. Besides, 3 lāhaḍīs (of land) within Kīloḍa have been parcelled out and given. The details and extent of boundaries of this (last mentioned) land are recorded : 1 (parcel out of) the State demesne, (named) Pulyamḍari, (measuring) 3 piḍas of seed-paddy (and) 1 (plot of) land (called) Tiṭuhi (measuring) 11 piḍas of seed, the boundary line (running) behind Maheśa's land, below (one) lāhaḍī (of land) belonging to Thakyalā, the brooklet of Unera forming the limit (on one side) and the brooklet of Pḍohlā (on the other), below the path of Keloḍa. The land thus defined was conferred as 'a hastodaka grant on Ratana on the Ganges at Haridvāra. This should be preserved by the illustrious king Pratāpasimha as well as by the king's sons and sons' sons, (and) is to be enjoyed by Ratana and Ratana's sons and sons' sons.

No. 27. CHAMBA PLATE OF BALABHADRA; V.S. 1646

(Plate XV)

This plate¹ was also in the possession of the Rājaguru, Paṇḍit Mohan Lal, at Chamba. It is now kept in the Bhuri Singh Museum there, and bears the catalogue number B, 20. It measures 11" high by 14" wide. It has no handle and no seal. Instead of the latter it has the word sahī engraved in Nāgarī characters in the top left-hand corner. This means 'correct' and corresponds to the word drishṭam which occurs elsewhere in earlier documents and means 'seen'. Both the expressions convey the sense that the document concerned has been inspected by the donor and found correct—thus issued under the proper authority and with the requisite approval.² The document runs into 27 lines, of which lines 22-24 appear in the left margin, lines 25-26 in the top margin and line 7 in the right margin.

The language of the record is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The composition is fairly correct.

The record is dated in the Śāstra year 65, corresponding to the Vikrama Samvat 1646, in the month of Vaiśākha, on Wednesday, the 3rd day of the bright fortnight — Akshaya-tritīyā — the nakshatra being Hastā. The date is irregular inasmuch as the week-day on the said tithi was Monday and not Wednesday. Moreover, the mention of Hastā nakshatra in connection with the Akshaya-tritīyā is clearly a mistake; for, the Akshaya-tritīyā occurs on the conjunction of Kṛttikā and Rohini.¹ The date may be taken to correspond to Monday, 7th April, A.D. 1589.

² Mr. K.T. Telang was probably the first to recognise such a denotation of the expression drishṭam occurring at the commencement of a charter (JBBRAS, Vol. X, p. 360, note). Bühler and Hultzsch amplified the same view (EI, Vol. I, p. 9 f., Vol. VI, p. 88, n. 2). Fleet preferred a different explanation, treating it as an auspicious formula (CII, Vol. III, p. 240, n. 2). Kielhorn first accepted Fleet's view (EI, Vol. III, p. 259 and n. 7), but later changed to that of Bühler and Hultzsch (EI, Vol. IX, p. 268 and n. 6).

It records a gift of land by king Balabhadravarmadeva to Pandit Ramāpati alias Pūrṇānanda, son of Bhaṭṭāchārya Surānanda, of the Bhāradvāja gotra. The gift is meant to be guru-dakṣiṇā, which shows that Ramāpati became the Guru of Balabhadra. The donated land lay in the Udaipur parganā of the Chamba wazārat, as is clear from the boundary marks. Taḍoli, mentioned to be on the south of the gift land, is a village, 4 miles from Chamba, on the left bank of the river Rāvi, while Sajilā and Dāru, now Sajlā and Duāru, are a little above Taḍoli within a mile or so, on the west as stated. The other places are not identifiable.

The writer of the grant was Ramāpati himself, while it was written in the house of one Upādhyāya Nārāyaṇa in the presence of the royal donor and a number of other witnesses. It will be seen that Ramāpati figures as writer in most of Balabhadra's charters.

(L. 9) here,¹ out of devotion to Lord Kṛishṇa, (a piece of land) has been granted as guru-dakṣiṇā (by king Balabhadra) to the revered Brāhmaṇa Ramāpati (alias) Pūrnānanda, son of the illustrious foremost Bhaṭṭāchārya Surānanda, of the Bhāradvāja gotra, on the occasion of the initiation ceremony.²

(L. 11) The boundaries thereof are : On the east (the boundary extends) as far as the river (Rāvi) ; on the south (it) includes the stream and the watercourse, across the rivulet of Taḍoli ; on the west (it runs) below the declivity of Sajilā ; (and) on the north (it extends) as far as the field of Kohrā, across the stream of Jhahvāra.

(L. 12) (The land thus defined) has been given to Ramāpati as a hastodaka grant. The king has given (along with that) also the pasture land and the kitchen-garden. Besides, the whole of the rocky surface above the stream, across the brooklet of Samāṇā, inwards from the bourn of Dāru. All (this) is to be irrigated by means of the watercourse of Sajilā. Likewise this pasture land over the declivity of Sajilā, including the kitchen-garden, the upper aṭu, (and the land) above and below the brook, all belongs to the Paṇḍit (i.e., Ramāpati). These boundaries have been fixed by the order of the illustrious king in the presence of Siniha.... (and) include the plot of land called Khamḍa. Whatever houses, trees and vegetable gardens are attached hereto, are included in the grant.

(L. 16) That (grant) may be enjoyed by him (i.e., the donee) as well as by his progeny as long as the moon, the sun, the polar star and the universe endure. Whosoever will encroach hereupon deserves to be punished and put to death and may descend into hell.

(L. 17) He (i.e., the donee) may set up a water-mill at the stream or at the river (Rāvi) — wherever he finds it convenient.

(L. 18) (Here follow six customary verses.)

(L. 25) This has been written by Ramāpati at the residence of the Upādhyāya Nārāyaṇa in the presence and by the order of the illustrious Balibhadra. Varāṇa, Madana, Phagu, Jaū,³ Vasumdu, Śināṇu, the Paṇḍit and the general public are the witnesses to this royal gift.

No. 28. SUREM PLATE OF BALABHADRA ; V. S. 1647

² That is, at the time when the king formally accepted Ramāpati as his guru. The mantra-grahana or pūjā-mantra-grahana ceremony is so called because on that occasion the preceptor enjoins on his disciple a particular mode of performing daily worship and also whispers into his ear a special guru-mantra to be repeated by him daily. The disciple is expected to keep the mantra as a secret, even though it be such a commonplace formula as Om namaḥ śivāya. The gift given to the preceptor on such an occasion is called gurudakṣiṇā.

³ After this personal name there is a mention of one shop as being an addition to the gift. The sense of the expression nikara-bāḍha is not clear.

a seal embossed in its top left corner with a Nāgarī legend in three lines, containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 13 lines, of which line 12 appears in the left margin, while line 13 runs inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyāli, with only a few mistakes.

The record is dated in the Śāstra year 66, corresponding to the V. S. 1647, on the 12th day of the dark fortnight of the month of Phālguna. The week-day is not mentioned. The date may correspond to Friday, 12th March, A. D. 1591.

It records the gift of the village Suhrā by king Balabhadra-varman to two Brāhmanas, Jumo and Ghaṇasu by name. The donated area is stated to be situated between the brooks of Sajilā and Dāru. These last two are the names of villager, also mentioned in the foregoing inscription, now called Sajlā and Duāru. The gift village is identical with Surem, the provenance of the plate. Bhadrūhā is now known as Bhadrohi and is the name of a jungle or an uncultivated land nearby there.

The writer of the grant was Surānanda's son Ramāpati.

No. 29. CHAMBA PLATE OF BALABHADRA; V. S. 1648

(Plate XVI, B)

This plate³ was also owned by the Rājaguru, Paṇḍit Mohan Lal, at Chamba. It measures 8" high by 11½" wide excluding the handle on its left. It has a seal in the top centre with a Nāgarī⁴ legend in three lines containing the king's name. There are, all told, twenty lines of writing, of which lines 15-16 appear in the left margin, lines 17-19 are, so to say, half-lines and run inversely in the top margin, while line 20, consisting only of the expression śrī-subham-astu occurs on the handle.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The record is dated in the Śāstra year 67, corresponding to V.S. 1648, on the 12th day of the dark fortnight of the month of Bhādrapada. The week-day is not mentioned. The date may correspond to Saturday, 4th September, A.D. 1591.

The object of the inscription is to record the gift of the village Jhahvāra to two Brāhman brothers named Pirathī and Kuśahari, sons of Narahari, of the Gautama gotra, hailing from Gayā. The same village is stated to have previously been enjoyed by a prince named Chattarasimgha and donated by king Pratāpasimha. Further details in this connection are lacking. The same village is mentioned also in the earliest known grant of Balabhadra (No. 27), but it has not been identified. The name, however, suggests it to be the same as Hobār, the headquarters of a parganā of the same name in the Bhaṭṭi wazārat.

³ No. 30 of APBAS, NC, 1903-04, p. 8.

⁴ It may be observed that the maṅgala at the end, namely śrī-subham-astu appearing on the handle, considered to be the last line of the inscription, is also in Nāgarī characters.

As regards the boundaries, it is stated that they are the same as defined at the time when the village was given by Pratāpasimha.

The charter was written by Surottama's son, Ramāpati.

Seal: The command of the illustrious Balabhadravarmān.

(L. 1) Om. Hail! In the glorious Śāstra year 67, (corresponding to the year) 1648 of the illustrious king Vikramāditya, in the month of Bhādrapada, on the 12th day of the dark fortnight, during the victorious reign of the illustrious P.M.P. Balabhadravarmadeva, son of the illustrious Virabhāna, son of the illustrious Pratāpasimhabrahmadeva, in residence at the splendid city of Champaka;

(L. 8) Out of devotion to Viṣṇu, the village named Jhahvāra has been conferred on the foremost Brāhmins of the city of Gayā, called Pirathī and Kuśabārī, sons of Narahari, of the Gautama gotra, who regularly perform the tri-sandhyā rites and are devoted to the sixfold duty. It is to be enjoyed as long as the moon, the sun, the stars and the universe (endure). Whosoever, whether of my family or anybody else, will encroach hereupon, may descend into hell.

(L. 11) Here the extent of the land donated at Jhahvāra is the same as (was formerly) enjoyed by the prince Chattarasimgha (Chattar Singh). Jhahvāra is granted as a śāsana in the same manner and with the same details of boundaries as was given by the illustrious Pratāpasimha by means of a title deed. Gayāsarī Pirathī's sons and grandsons who will come after him are to enjoy (this gift).

(L. 18) This has been written by the illustrious Ramāpatiśarman, son of the illustrious Surottama of the prosperous Gauḍa country. May there be fortune and welfare!

^१ The singular number is grammatically incorrect, as the donees are two, though both of them are brothers. The mistake is noticeable in the case of two donees in another charter (No. 28 above).

^२ See below p. 178.

No. 30. JUNGAL PLATE OF BALABHADRA ; V. S. 1648

This plate was in the possession of one Ghinku of the Jungal village in the Sāho parganā. It measures $7\frac{1}{4}$ " high by $10\frac{1}{4}$ " wide excluding the handle on its left. It has a seal with a Nāgarī legend in three lines containing the king's name. The inscription covers 18 lines of which lines 13-15 occur in the left margin and lines 16-18 run inversely in the top margin.

The language, as usual, is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The record is dated in the Śāstra year 67, corresponding to V.S. 1648, on the 12th day of the bright fortnight of the month of Āśvina, the week-day being not given. It may correspond to Monday, 20th September, A. D. 1591.

The object of the inscription is to register the gift of the village Joḷa by king Balabhadra-varman to a Brāhmaṇ named Khidara Ṭaṇḍyaṃṭu. The latter name is an al, now known as Ṭaṇḍeṭu. The donee belonged to the Kāśyapa gotra. Though the grant is stated to be a hastodaka one, still the donee was to pay certain taxes both in kind and in cash. Besides, he had no right on the forest product of the donated area, that being reserved to the state.

The donated village is now called Jūml and is in the Sāho parganā. Nigailā is the same as Naghelā in that very parganā. Bharādī could not be identified. The village Jungal, the provenance of the plate, I think, is the same as Jūml, Joḷa of the inscription, though none of these names is to be found in the list of villages at my disposal. The charter was written by Ramāpati, son of Surottama. Surottama is the same as Surānanda.

of the month of Āśvina, during the victorious reign of the illustrious P.M.P. Balabhadravarmadeva, in residence at the splendid city of Champaka ;

(L. 5) Here, out of devotion to Lord Kṛishṇa, the village named Joḷa has been granted to a Brāhman called Khidara Tāṃḍyamṭu of the Kāśyapa gotra. It is to be enjoyed as long as the moon, the sun, the stars and the universe (endure). Whosoever, whether of my family or anybody else, will encroach hereupon, may descend into hell.

(L. 8) The boundaries thereof are : (the donated area lies) across the brook of Nigailā, inwards from the stream of Bharādī, below the rocky cliff, (and) beneath the road to Lihla. This has been given by the king as a hastodaka grant.

(L. 10) As regards the taxes in kind and in cash, the king is to receive 4 four piṭakas of grain and 2 two ṭamkas, which Khidara is to pay annually. This is the order of the king. The boundaries have been fixed in the presence of Mudreha, Durugu, Vishṇu, Siḥu and others.

(L. 13) (Here follow two customary verses.)

(L. 16) All the trees and plants and the klīm wood are reserved to the king. No objection is to be raised as regards that.

No. 31. LAKSHMI-NARAYANA TEMPLE PLATE OF BALABHADRA;

V. S. 1649

(Plate XVII)

This plate¹ belongs to the temple of Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa at Chamba proper and is now kept in the Bhuri Singh Museum there, bearing the catalogue number B, 21. It measures 10½" high by 15" wide. There is a gap in the middle of its left margin where the handle seems to have been broken off. In its upper left corner it has the seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 23 lines, of which lines 18-20 appear in the left margin, line 20 being a short one and mostly destroyed, and lines 21-23 run inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The record is dated in the Śāstra year 68, the Vikrama Samvat 1649, on the 3rd day of the bright fortnight of the month of Chaitra. The week-day has not been mentioned, hence the date cannot be verified precisely, though it may be taken to correspond to Monday, 6th March, A. D. 1592.

The charter records the king's donation of some plots of lands to a Brāhman named Riṣa, son of Sivādāsa, of the Bhāradvāja gotra. The lands lay in different villages, some of which can be identified. Thus Bhadrama is the same as Bhadram in the Rājnagar parganā. Jakharvādī is identical with Jukhrādī and Śailā with Sailā, both in the Panjlā parganā.

The grant was written by Ramāpati, son of Surānanda.

No. 32. LAKHALI GRANT OF BALABHADRA; V. S. 1649

(Plate XVIII, A)

This plate was in the possession of three brothers, Paṇḍits Śohnu, Hākam and Agrā, at Chamba proper. It measures 8½" high by 13½" wide including the handle on its left. In the top left corner of the plate there is the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 22 lines in all, of which lines 13-14 appear in the left margin, lines 15-18 are short ones and occur on the handle, lines 19-21 run inversely in the top margin and line 22 in the right margin, the whole of the available space on the obverse of the plate having thus been filled up by the engraving.

The language of the record, for the most part, is Sanskrit, a few lines being in Chambyālī. The preamble, which usually comprises epithets of the king, is much shorter in the present instance than that found in most other charters of Balabhadra.

The record is dated in the Śāstra year 68, the Vikrama Samvat 1649, on the 12th day of the bright fortnight of the month of Āshāḍha. The week-day is not given. The date may correspond to Sunday, 11th June, A. D. 1592. The inscription records that the village of Lakhalī in the Sāhū maṇḍala, which had formerly been given to one Sarasi Mādho, was granted to a Brāhman named Nārasimha, son of Sūryadāsa, of the Gautama gotra, apparently with the consent of its former owner, Sarasi Mādho, who is stated to have handed over the village and the title-deed to Nārasimha. The implications of this transaction are not clear, but it may be presumed that Sarasi Mādho was childless and bequeathed the village which he had held as sāsana to Nārasimha who might have been related to him in some way and that the king simply signified his approval of the bequest by means of the present charter.

The Sāhū maṇḍala refers to the Sāho parganā wherein is included the village of Lakhlī or Lakhalī.

The writer of the charter is Surottama's son Ramāpati.

SCALE: ONE-HALF.

No. 33. CHAMBA PLATE OF BALABHADRA; V. S. 1649

(Plate XVIII, B)

This plate is not included in the collection of inscriptions enlisted by Dr. J. Ph. Vogel, nor are there any notes concerning this to be found in the manuscript material left by him. It is thus plain that the present plate was recovered subsequently. It is said to have been in the possession of Purohit Baḍu Dīḍo who also owned the Chamba plate of Pratāpasimha, Śāstra 62, dealt with above (No. 26). The newly discovered plate was examined by myself in the summer of 1939 when I also secured photographs of it. It measures 9" high by about 13" wide excluding the pierced handle on its left. In the top centre of the plate there is the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription covers 19 lines in all, of which the last three run in the left margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The record is dated in the Śāstra year 68, the Vikrama Samvat 1649, on the 11th day of the dark fortnight of the month of Chaitra, which may correspond to Tuesday, 17th April, A.D. 1593, though in the absence of any mention of the week-day in the document the given date cannot be verified exactly. The charter is peculiar inasmuch as it does not as usual register any land-grant but records the conferment of priesthood (purohiti that is paurohitya) on a Brāhman, named Ratana, the foremost Baḍu, son of Ano, belonging to the Bhāradvāja gotra. The ceremony of conferment was, after the fashion of common ceremonial grants, preceded by libation of water (hastodaka). The investiture was thus more in the nature of a donation. It has further been specified that, as a purohita, Ratana was to inherit all those customary emoluments and advantages which the purohita in Pratāpasimha's time had enjoyed, and that this gift was to be reserved for Ratana's descendants, which in other words means that the post of priesthood was intended to be hereditary. This, coupled with the fact that the present title-deed was discovered in his possession, makes Purohit Baḍu Dīḍo a direct descendant of Ratana.

The holy Gopāla has been cited as a witness to the donation, and that refers to the deity of the temple of Baiṇśī-Gopāla at Chamba.

Ratana of the present charter is plainly identical with that figuring as donee in the aforementioned Chamba plate of Pratāpasimha, which as has already been pointed out, was discovered likewise in the possession of Purohit Baḍu Dīḍo. That plate gives the name of his father and grandfather as Amno and Gayādhara respectively. Amno and Gayādhara again appear as grantees, the former in a grant by Gaṇeśavarman (No. 12) and the latter in that of Ānandavarman (No. 10). This indicates how Ratana's family had all along been in the good books of the royal house of the Chamba State.

There is one thing more in connection with the conferment ceremony. It is stated that the hastodaka was performed jointly by Balabhadra and Vāsudeva. The identity of this Vāsudeva is not known. The Rājaguru, Pt. Thakur Das, suggested to me that he in all probability was a son of Balabhadra. No other record makes any mention of him, so that his exact relationship with Balabhadra cannot be determined. Can it be that he was a younger brother of Balabhadra, assuming that the two brothers were named after Balabhadra (i.e., Balarāma) and Vāsudeva (i.e., Kṛishṇa), the gods, of whom, as is well known, the former was the elder brother of the latter? In modern times, at least, it is sometimes found that some parents take a fancy to naming their children in that fashion.

Towards the end three of the customary verses have been cited, but the composer has cleverly avoided all reference to a land grant, choosing the variant² reading brahmavṛttiharas-tathā (haret-tu yaḥ) instead of harech-cha vasundharām. The writer was Ramāpati, son of Surānanda. It may be recalled that this Pandit Ramāpati was the Rājaguru of Balabhadra and was responsible for composing most of the numerous charters of Balabhadra.

(L. 9) priesthood has been conferred, (by the king) out of devotion to Lord Kṛishṇa and for the annihilation of his own sins, upon a Brāhman, named Ratana, the foremost of the Baḍus, son of Ano, born of the Bhāradvāja gotra, who regularly performs the *trīsandhyā*³ rites and is intent upon the six-fold duty.³

(L. 10) On that occasion the hathpānī (or) the hastodaka (solemnizing the conferment) of priesthood upon Baḍu Ratana was performed by the illustrious Balibhadra⁴ as well as by Vāsudeva. No. 34. CHAMBA PLATE OF BALABHADRA; V. S. 1650

This plate¹ was found in the possession of Dogrā Bholā at Chamba proper. It measures 8½" high by 12½" wide excluding the handle on its left. Half of the handle appears to have broken off. In the top left corner there is the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 23 lines in all, of which lines 15-16 appear in the left margin, lines 17-19 and lines 20-23 run inversely in the top margin. The last four lines are very small, being thrust in the top left corner beside the seal.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyāli. The charter refers itself to the reign of Balabhadra and is dated in the Śāstra year 69, the Vikrama Samvat 1650, in the month of Jyeshtha, on the 7th day of the dark fortnight. This may correspond to Saturday, 12th May, A. D. 1593. The inscription records the king's grant of a village named Drabilā in the Panjila maṇḍala to three Brāhmans, Pitho, Malika and Maṃgu by name, of the Kāśyapa gotra. The donees were apparently brothers. It is stated that the donated village was formerly held by one Chakalāla Bhikhārī who is further on mentioned as one of the witnesses to the demarcation of the boundaries of the granted area. The record ends with the statement that Maṃgu and Malika gave one aṭu of land to Pitho over and above his rightful share, thereby presumably showing respect to the eldest. The grant was not an absolute charity, because the recipients were required to pay a tax of seven piḍas of grain out of their first crop to the king, probably once a year.

The writer of the grant was Ramāpati.

This village is to be enjoyed by his (donee's) sons and grandsons. The illustrious king must discharge his duty.¹ Nobody should offer any obstruction or interference.

(L. 14) The tax here, which is to go to the illustrious king, is seven 7 piḍas of grain, all to be paid down at once² out of the first crop.

(L. 15) (Here follow four customary verses.)

No. 35. CHAMBA PLATE OF BALABHADRA; V. S. 1651

(Plate XIX, A)

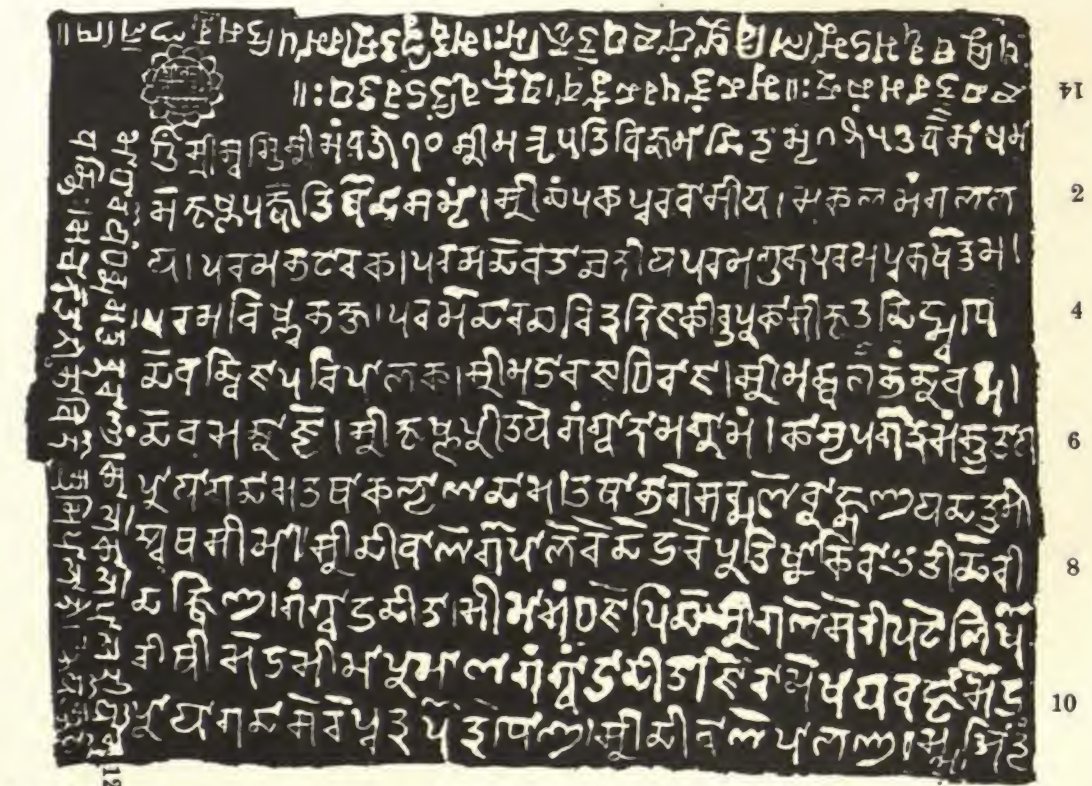

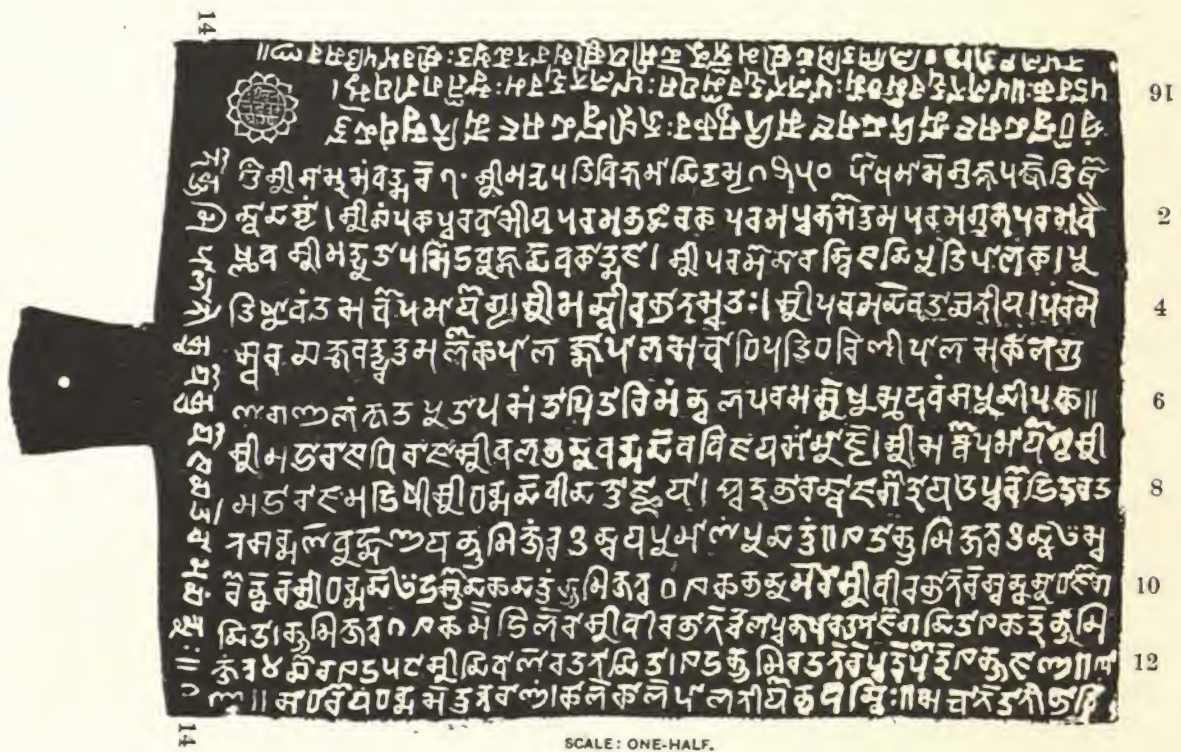

This plate³ was also in the possession of Purohit Baḍu Dīḍo at Chamba. It measures 8½" high by 12½" wide excluding the pierced handle on its left. In its top left corner it bears the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription covers 17 line of which line 14 appears in the left margin and lines 15-17 run inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The record is dated in the Śāstra year 70, the Vikrama Samvat 1651, in the month of Pausha, on the 12th day of the bright fortnight, which may correspond to Saturday, 14th December, A. D. 1594.

¹ That is to say, he should preserve the gift.

² That is, not by instalments.

³ No. 8 of APRAS, NC. 1169-07, p. 8.

The charter refers itself to the reign of king Balabhadra, but registers a grant of some lands by Queen Dharmadevi to Purohita Ratanaśarman of the Bhāradvāja gotra. The donation comprised four kunus of land, of which two kunus lay at Suroḍa, one at Bhadrāma and one at Maihilā. This last one kunu, it is stated, had been given to Ratana by the illustrious Virabhāna on an occasion of the Tulāpurusha ceremony, while the one kunu at Bhadrāma had been given on the occasion of the *śuddha-śrāddha*¹ of the illustrious Virabhāna. From this it follows that Balabhadra's father Virabhāna had in his life time made the Tulāpurusha gift, one of the sixteen *mahādānas*² and that by the time of the present charter he had passed away.

The donee Ratanaśarman is identical with Ratana who figures likewise as grantee in two other charters also (Nos. 26 and 33),³ and of whom we have already spoken above (pp. 74 and 87).

The villages of Suroḍa, Bhadrāma and Maihilā, where the donated plots of land lay belong to different pragaṇās. The first of these is identical with Saroḍī, also called Saroḍ, in the Sāch pargaṇā. It is also mentioned in two other charters (Nos. 26 and 31). The second one is the same as Bhadrām in the Rājnagar pargaṇā, and also occurs in another charter (No. 31). Maihilā is the same as Mehlā, the headquarters of a pargaṇā of the same name, which is mentioned also in another record (No. 26).

The writer of the charter was Surānanda's son Ramāpati.

No. 36. CHAMBA PLATE OF BALABHADRA ; V. S. 1652

(Plate XIX, B)

This plate was owned by Koḷuā Atrā, a pujārī, at Chamba proper. It measures 8½" high by 11¼" wide. It had a handle on its left, which is now almost completely broken off. In its upper left corner it has the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. There are altogether 15 lines of writing on it, of which lines 12-13 are in the left margin, and lines 14-15 appear inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyāli. The inscription, refers itself to the reign of Balabhadra and is dated in the Śāstra year 71, the Vikrama Samvat 1652, in the month of Vaiśākha, on the 10th day of the dark fortnight which may correspond to Tuesday, 25th March, A.D. 1595. The charter registers the king's grant of the village Gaṅgvā or Gaṅgvāha to three Brāhman, probably brothers, named Prāyāgadāsa, Kalyānadāsa and Bhāgesarman, of the Kāśyapa gotra. The occasion of the gift was the consecration ceremony performed by the king at the temple of Gopāla, now called Baṁśīgopāla. This shows that some repairs or renovation had been done to that temple and the completion of the work occasioned the ceremony when the present gift was given as a dakṣiṇā. It is indicated in the inscription that the donated village was formerly granted by king Gaṇeśavarman to a Brāhman named Rāma. This is borne out by the fact that among Gaṇeśavarman's charters there is actually one registering such a grant, namely Gāṅguyā grant of Gaṇeśavarman (No. 18), Gāṅguyā of that record being the same as Gaṅgvā or Gaṅgvāha of the present one, to be identified with the modern Gugāmh as has already been shown above (p. 55). For the extent of the boundaries of the donated village, the present charter refers to the aforementioned grant of Gaṇeśavarman and adds that they were the same as defined therein. It has, however, not been made clear as to what happened to Rāma, the former owner of the village, and how the same village came to be re-granted. Nor is there any indication to show that Rāma was somehow related to the donees mentioned in the present charter. Even his gotra is not specified in Gaṇeśavarman's grant where he figures as donee. Can it be that he died childless and his property as a brahmadēya being not revertible to the State, was transferred to other Brāhmins, namely Prāyāgadāsa, Kalyāṇadāsa and Bhāgeśarman ?

The writer of the charter was Ramāpati.

(L. 1) Om. Prosperity! Hail! In the glorious (Śāstra) year 71 (corresponding to the year) 1652 of the illustrious king Vikramāditya in the month of Vaiśākha on the 10th day of the dark fortnight, during the victorious reign of the illustrious P. (L. 6) (The king) has, out of devotion to Lord Kṛishṇa, granted the village named Gaṅgvā to (three) Brāhmins, Prāyāgadāsa, Kalyāṇadāsa and Bhāgeśarman by name, born of the Kāśyapa gotra.

(L. 8) Now the boundary: the illustrious king performed the consecration ceremony at the temple of Gopāla, on that occasion he gave away Gaṅgvāha as dakṣiṇā, Gaṅgvāha has been given away with the selfsame limits of boundaries as were detailed in the title-deed of the illustrious Gaṇeśa (varman to Rāma). (The extent of land) which was enjoyed and tilled by Rāma is to be enjoyed by sons and grandsons of Prāyāgadāsa. The illustrious king must protect (this grant).

No. 37. SAILA GRANT OF BALABHADRA ; V. S. 1655

(Plate XX, A)

This plate¹ was found in the possession of one Narsingh Dayāl Maṅgalerū. It measures 10½" high by 13½" wide including the pierced handle on its left. In the top centre it has the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 26 lines in all, of which lines 17-20 appear in the left margin, line 20 being a short one and running on the handle, and lines 21-26 run inversely in the top margin. The last six lines are, so to say, half-lines, lines 21-23 being separated from lines 24-26 by the seal in the centre.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The record is dated in the Śāstra year 74, the Vikrama Samvat 1655, in the month of Vaiśākha, on the 7th day of the dark fortnight, which may correspond to Monday, 17th April, A. D. 1598. The object of the charter is to record the king's gift of a village called Śaila to a Brāhman, named Harigaṇaśarma, son of Kehlaṇa, of the Kāśyapa gotra. The boundaries of the donated area have been well defined. Besides the village, some houses at Chamba proper were also given by the king to the same donee.

The donated village Śaila is probably the same as Śailā mentioned in the Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa temple plate of Balabhadra ; V. S. 1649 (No. 31). It will be seen from that record that a plot of land at that village was granted to a Brāhman, Risha by name, along with several other lands. It follows, therefore, that the plot previously donated was excluded from the village donated by the present charter. As has already been shown, the village Śaila or Śailā is to be identified with Sail in the Panjlā parganā. Some of the boundary villages can also be identified. Thus Bhoida, Praila and Dālanāṇā appear to be the same as Bhyoḍ, Parel and Dilgēṇā respectively all of which are in the very Panjlā parganā.

The writer of the charter was Śurānanda's son Ramāpati.

¹ No. 3 of APRAS, NC, 1906-07, p. 8, where the reading of the Śāstra year is given as 76, of course, with query. As will presently be seen, the correct reading is 7. At the same place, it has likewise been suggested that the gift village of Śaila belongs to the Kalandrā parganā, whereas it is now shown actually to be included in the Panjlā parganā. The number of lines of the text as stated there will also be found different from the one given here. The difference is, however, only apparent and will readily be perceived by comparing the illustration with the text of lines 21-26 which have been counted there as line 21-23.

No. 38. CHAMBA PLATE OF BALBHADRA; V. S. 1656

This plate² was found in the possession of Purohit Mansā at Chamba proper and is now kept in the Bhuri Singh Museum there, bearing the catalogue number B, 22. It is rather an unusually big sheet of copper, measuring 7½" to 8½" high by 18" wide, excluding the handle on its left. In the top corner it has the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. It has, all told, 16 lines of writing on it, of which lines 13-14 are in the left margin and lines 15-16 run inversely in the top margin.

² No. 32 of APRAS, NO., 1903-04, p. 2.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyāli. The document is dated in the Śāstra year 75, the Vikrama Samvat 1656, in the month of Āshāḍha, on the 2nd day of the dark fortnight, which may be equated with Thursday, 31st May, A.D. 1599. In respect of the contents, the present charter is similar to the Chamba plate of Balabhadra ; V. S. 1649 (No. 33), since both of these record the appointment of a family priest. In the present instance the recipient of the honour is a Brāhman called Ísvaraśarman, son of Mādhava, of the Atri gotra, who, it appears from the details given in the record, was a priest attached to the royal family in the time of Pratāpasimha as well. The present charter does not specify any special occasion of the conferment. Nor does it mention any gift to be enjoyed by the grantee beyond stating that he was to continue earning and enjoying as he used to do in Pratāpasimha's time. That this was to last as long as the universe endures shows that in this case, too, the title of priesthood was meant to be hereditary. Thus Purohit Mansā who owned the present plate must be a direct descendant of Ísvaraśarman, the original recipient.

The charter was written by Surānanda's son Ramāpati.

Seal: The command of the illustrious Balabhadra-varman.

(L. 1) Om. Hail! Obeisance to the illustrious Gaṇeśa! In the glorious Śāstra year 75, (corresponding to the year) 1656 of the illustrious king Vikramāditya in the month of Āshāḍha, on the 2nd day of the dark fortnight during the victorious reign of the illustrious P. M. P. Balabhadradeva, in residence at the splendid city of Champaka ;

(L. 7) (the king) has, out of devotion to Lord Kṛishṇa, conferred priesthood on the Brāhman Ísvaraśarman, son of Mādhava, born of the Atri gotra intent upon the sixfold duty.² That is to be enjoyed as long as the moon, the sun, the stars and the universe endure. Whosoever, whether of my family or anybody else, would encroach (hereupon), may descend into hell.

(L. 9) Now the explanation (of the above) in Bhāṣā is as follows. The illustrious king has conferred priesthood on Īśuru, that is to say, the illustrious king Balabhadra has accorded the same rights and privileges of priesthood to Īśuru as he used to enjoy in the time of the illustrious Pratāpasimha; in like manner he may continue earning and enjoying.

(L. 16) This has been written by the illustrious Ramāpatīśarman, son of the illustrious Surānanda of the prosperous Gauḍa country.

No. 39. CHAMBA PLATE OF BALABHADRA; V. S. 1656

(Plate XX, B)

This plate¹ was possibly also in the possession of Purohit Mansā at Chamba proper, who owned the preceding one, though there is no definite information as regards that. It measures about 10½" high by 12" wide and has no handle. From its lower right corner a small bit has broken off, and as a consequence thereof two or three aksharas have been lost. In the top left corner of the plate there is the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription covers 21 lines in all, of which lines 17-18 appear in the left margin and lines 19-21 run inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The preamble of this record exhibits a considerable change so far as the epithets applied to the king are concerned. Being conventional as usual, the new epithets do not enlighten us much with regard to the king's real achievements, though they reflect some poetic merit on the part of the composer through his grandiloquent style much appreciated in those days. The record is dated in the Śāstra year 75, the Vikrama Samvat 1656, in the month of Āṣhāḍha, on the 10th day of the dark fortnight, which may be equivalent to Thursday, 7th June, A. D. 1599, that was thus just a week after the foregoing charter had been issued.

The present charter records that the king took a plot of land from the Brāhman Īśvaraśarman of the Atri gotra at the village of Sahraula for making a garden and a tank there, and that in lieu thereof he gave two extensive fields to that Brāhman. The smaller of the two lay in the very same village of Sahraula, while the bigger was in another village called Chināloi, where the Brāhman also received a house-site along with a kitchen-garden and a threshing-floor. From the details given, it appears that the Brāhman was given nearly twenty times as much land as was taken from him. He is to be identified with the recipient of the foregoing charter.

The garden and the tank, referred to in the inscription as then being in contemplation, subsequently did come into being, for they still exist at that village as the property of the State. The village of Sahraula is only about two miles from Chamba, being the same as Sarol in the Rājnagar parganā. It has not been possible to identify Chināloi or Chinālui, though apparently it is to be sought in the same Rājnagar parganā.

The charter was written by Surottama's son Ramāpati.

devotion to Lord Kṛishṇa, given another land to the Brāhman Ísvaraśarman, born of the Atri gotra, well-versed in the three Vedas, after having taken (from him his) former land.

(L. 11) Ísuru¹ had a pā (that is, one Kunu) of land at Sahraula. That has been taken from him by the king for laying out a garden and constructing a tank there. In lieu of that the king has given him some other lands, namely one field measuring four 4 piḍas and fourteen 14 pathas of seed-corn at Chināloi and another field measuring only six pathas or *manis*² of seed-corn at Sahraula, the whole of the given land thus measuring five piḍas of seed-corn. Besides, a house-site along with a kitchen-garden and a threshing-floor at Chināloi has been given to him. He may also bring the watercourse to his field at Chināloi in the same manner as he formerly used to do to his land at Sahrola.

No. 40. SAKLA PLATE OF BALABHADRA; SASTRA 75

This plate was discovered in the possession of a Brāhman, Padmā by name, at the village of Saklā in the Sāho³ parganā. The left side of the plate, where there is a handle, is narrower than the right side. It measures thus 5½" to 8½" high by 10 ⅞" wide including the handle. The engraving is not well executed. The seal, too, is not properly shaped. It is comparatively small in size, though it has the usual form of a rosette. The legend in its centre is indistinct and seems to read śrī-Bala, while each of the two letters bhadra appears to be engraved within a petal, the characters being Nāgarī. The inscription covers 17 lines in all, of which lines 13-15 appear in the left margin and lines 16-17 run inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The record is dated simply in the Śāstra year 75, on the 27th day of Asoja, that is the month Ásvina. The corresponding Vikrama Samvat would be 1656. The equivalent of this date in the Christian era may be Sunday, 28th October, A. D. 1599.

The object of the inscription is to record the king's grant of a village named Raūlīka to a Brāhman called Sado, son of one Kukyala Jio. From the details in the bhāshā portion, it appears that the donee had formerly shared the grant with his elder brother, and that he was to pay a tax of two piḍas of grain annually, one piḍa from the first crop and one from the second crop, though the grant is termed as hastodaka-śāsaṇa which usually indicates 'a tax-free gift.' Some bhāshā expressions are not intelligible.

The charter was composed by Surottama's son Ramāpati.

¹ The composition of the bhāshā portion being too clumsy to admit of an intelligible literal rendering, only a substance thereof has been given here.

² Translated literally it would mean : 'piḍas nil, pathas 6, in words, six manis'. The terms paṇḍa and manī are synonymous.

³ In Dr. Vogel's manuscript the name of the parganā is stated to be Panjlā, but the list of villages does not show any village of the name of Saklā in that parganā, while one is found in the Sāho parganā.

No. 41. LAKSHMI-NARAYANA TEMPLE PLATE OF BALABHADRA ;

V. S. 1664

This plate² belongs to the temple of Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa at Chamba proper and is now preserved in the Bhuri Singh Museum there, its catalogue number being B, 23. It measures 8½" high by 12" wide. It had a handle on its left, which has almost entirely broken off. Some letters of the inscription ran also on the handle. They, too, have been lost. Small bits have chipped off from the corners of the plate, except the top right corner. The chipping off at the lower corners has resulted in the loss of two or three syllables. In its top left corner the plate has the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 19 lines, of which lines 14-15 appear in the left margin, line 16 occurs on the handle and lines 17-19 run inversely in the top margin. It cannot be ascertained whether the handle originally contained more lines. Even the extant line of writing on the handle, consisting only of a few letters, has only the signs of the mātrās preserved, the lower portions of the syllables having been destroyed.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The charter is dated in the Śāstra year 83, the Vikrama Samvat 1664, in the month of Bhādrapada, on the 7th day of the bright fortnight. The date may be equivalent to Wednesday, 19th August, A. D. 1607.

The inscription records the king's grant of some land at a village called Pura, Purā or Pūri in the Śāho maṇḍala to a Brāhman named Baradāṇi Gopi of the Kāśyapa gotra.

The Śāho maṇḍala refers to the Śāho parganā, but no village of the name of Pura, Purā, or Pūri is to be found there. The villages mentioned along the boundaries, namely Parautā or Paharautā and Haiṭā, are the same as Parothā and Hemṭhā respectively. Both of them are in the Śāho parganā. The river referred to in the record is the same as the Sāl.

Towards the end several persons are named as witnesses to the demarcation of the boundaries of the donated area.

It is not known how the grant later on came into the possession of the temple of Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa.

Seal: The command of the illustrious Balabhadravarmān.

(L. 1) Om. In the glorious Śāstra year 83, (corresponding to the year) 1664 of the illustrious king Vikramāditya, in the month of Bhādrapada, on the 7th (day) of the bright fortnight, during the victorious reign of the illustrious P. M. Balabhadravarmadeva, in residence at the splendid city of Champaka;

(L. 8) the village named Pura in the Śāho maṇḍala has been granted to a Brāhman called Baradāṇī Gopī of the Kāśyapa gotra (by the king) out of devotion to Lord Kṛishṇa. That is to be enjoyed by him as well as by his progeny.

(L. 10) There are the details of Purā: (the land) given to Gopī (measured) five 5 piḍas of seed-corn. The boundaries: the upper limit (runs) alongside Parautā belonging to the watchmen of the holy Nārāyaṇa (the donated land lying) between the stream of Haiṭā and the stream of Paharautā, the river (Sāl) (forming) the boundary-line in the front. The land that lies inwards from the river is to be enjoyed by Gopī. This pious gift of the illustrious king, this village of Pūri with its boundaries well defined should be preserved for Gopī.

(L. 14) The prince Paraśarāma, Chamḍidāsa, Kidāri, Bhikhāri, the barber Sibūṇu, Maluka,, the king's personal servant Raṇu, Bīrbalā, Budho, and Champhu have fixed the amount of seed-corn and defined the boundary-lines. This should be maintained.

No. 42. CHAMBA PLATE OF BALABHADRA; SASTRA 84

This plate¹ was found in the possession of the present Rājaguru, Paṇḍit Thākur Dās, at Chamba proper. It measures 11" high by 11½" wide. It had a handle on its left, but that is now broken off. In its top left corner there is the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. There are altogether 17 lines of writing on it, of which line 16 occurs in the left margin and line 17 runs in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The record is dated in the Śāstra year 84, on the 20th day of Phālguna. The corresponding Vikrama Samvat must be 1665, and the date may thus be equated with Friday, 17th March, A. D. 1609.

The inscription records that the prince Aniruddha donated, with the consent of king Balabhadra, a village called Śimṅi to three Brāhmans, Dāmodara, Bīśuḍa and Lakhi, while he was at Prayāga. The occasion of the gift is stated to be the śrāddha of the Kolvāla queen. From these details it follows that the prince Aniruddha was at that time on pilgrimage and visited the holy place of Prayāga (Allahabad) where he performed the śrāddha ceremony. It is known from other sources that the prince Aniruddha was Balabhadra's son. The Kolvāla queen² evidently refers to one of Balabhadra's consorts, the mother of Aniruddha.

² Since she hailed from Kulu, she is styled Kolvāla i.e., '(princess) of Kulu.'

The donated village Śīngi is identical with Śīngī in the Udaipur parganā, 8 miles from Chamba on the road to Dalhousie via Kolhadi. The other villages mentioned in the inscription are all in the same parganā of Udaipur. Thus Mīhlā, Guṇoḍa and Bīṇotā are the same as Mīlhā, Gaṇoḍi and Bhaṇhotā respectively. Kharoli is said to be a hamlet in the Udaipur parganā, though the list of villages does not include it. Some of the names of the witnesses mentioned towards the end are each preceded by a term denoting the village to which the particular individual belonged. Thus Chināḍi and Chajhvāla evidently mean 'resident of Chaneda' and 'resident of Chāmjhūm' respectively. These two villages are in the Udaipur parganā. Kudhyāla is also a similar term, though it is not clear to which village it refers.

The charter was written by one Pūramdara.

(L. 5) the illustrious prince Aniruddha, while at Prayāga, donated the village called Śīngi as a hastodaka (grant) to the Baḍus Damodara, Bīṣuḍa and Lakhi. The extent and boundaries thereof are recorded: on the east (the donated area lies) within the Damureḍa stream; on the south within the junction of the two paths, the footpath running on the ridge and the large boulder; on the west within the high ridge in the direction of Mīhlā; on the north within the Galeṇu pass towards Kharoli and Guṇoḍa. All this is the extent of the boundaries of Śīngi. Further, two 2 kurus (of land have been given) at Bīṇotā.

(L. 13) (This) hastodaka (grant) has been given on the occasion of the śrāddha of the Kolvāla queen.

(L. 15) The boundaries have been fixed in the presence of the Chināḍi Ghaka the Chajhvāla Sagatā, the potters Śībo (and) Kugu, and the Kudhyāla Lakhami.

(Plate XXI, A)

This plate¹ is also said to have been in the possession of the present Rājaguru, Pandit Thākur Dās, at Chamba proper, though the land, the gift of which is recorded therein, now belongs to the temple of Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa. The plate measures 8½" high by 11" wide excluding the handle on its left. In the top left corner there is the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The writing on the plate covers 20 lines, of which lines 17-18 appear in the right margin, while lines 19-20 run inversely in the top margin. A small piece has chipped off from the bottom right corner, and as a result thereof some aksharas at the ends of lines 14-16 have been lost.

The language is almost throughout Sanskrit, line 10 containing a few details in the bhāṣā. The charter is dated in the Śāstra year 86, the Vikrama Samvat 1667 in the month of Kārttika on the 11th day of the dark fortnight, which may be taken to correspond to Tuesday, 2nd October, A. D. 1610. The inscription records the king's grant of some land to a Brāhman called Narottamaśarman, son of Rāmadeu, of the Gautama gotra. The land lay between Obaḍī and Gāḍui, the former of which is identical with the village Obarī in the Sāch parganā, while the latter is supposed to be the name of a field.

The charter was written by Ramāpati.

Balabhadravaramadeva, in residence at the splendid city of Champaka, during his righteous reign, out of devotion to Lord Kṛishṇa, confers (this) distinct title-deed adorned by his own lotus-like hand, conveying a land-grant, on a Brāhman called, Narottamaśārman, son of Rāmadeu, born of the Gautama gotra, who is of pure descent,¹ who (regularly) performs the tri-sandhyā rites,² (and) who is intent upon the sixfold duty,³ the granted land (lying) between Obaḍi and Gāḍui measuring 8 piḍas in words eight piḍas. That is to be enjoyed by him as well as by his progeny so long as the moon, the sun, the polar star and the universe endure. Whosoever would encroach hereupon deserves to be punished and put to death and may descend into hell.

No. 44. MANGAROL PLATE OF BALABHADRA; V. S. 1670

(Plate XXI, B)

This plate⁴ was received from one Saṁju Gopālu of the village Maṅgarol in the Sāho parganā, and is now kept in the Bhuri Singh Museum at Chamba proper, its catalogue number being B, 24. It had a handle on its left, but that is now broken off. It measures 10" high by 12½" wide. In its top left corner it has the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription comprises 20 lines, of which lines 16-17 occur in the left margin, while lines 18-20 appear inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The inscription is dated in the Śāstra year 89. The corresponding Vikrama Saṁvat is stated to be 1600, but that is most probably a mistake on the part of the engraver. The intended reading must be 1670. The tithi and the occasion of the grant are mentioned further on in the record as being the Gaṅgā Daśaharā, i.e., the 10th day of the bright fortnight of the month of Jyāishṭha. This might be equivalent to Wednesday, 19th May, A. D. 1613. This was a day previous to the fast day of Nirjalā ekādaśī.

The inscription refers itself to the reign of Balabhadra, but records a land-grant made by his son, the prince Janārdānadeva, to one Saṁju Daḍū of the Kāśyapa gotra, at Haridvāra (Hardwar), on the aforementioned date. The donated land lay in the village of Maṅgalaūra, which is the same as Maṅgarol, the provenance of the plate. The donation included also a field called Halyalā which is now known as Halelā, but that is at present not cultivated, having turned into a jungle. Towards the end, a reference is made, by way of confirmation, to the effect that the same donee had been given a piece of land at the Padharā that is the plateau of Sāho, on the occasion of the inauguration ceremony of a house, probably the prince's own mansion.

Seal : The command of the illustrious Balabhadradeva.

(L. 1) Om. Hail! Obeisance to the holy Gaṇeśa! In the glorious Śāstra year 89, (corresponding to the year) 1670 of the illustrious king Vikramāditya, during the righteous reign of the illustrious P. M. Balabhadravarmadeva,

(L. 4) the illustrious prince Janārdanadeva, who is endowed with all virtues, is exceedingly generous, has his heart purified through his devotion to the Lord as a result of his contemplation upon the doctrines of the holy Bhāgavatas, has his mind exultant in the nectar of the lotuses (in the form) of Lord Kṛishṇa's feet, is a son of the illustrious king (Balabhadravarmān), and is worthy of all honour, being in good health, has, out of devotion to the holy Gaṅgā as well as to Lord Kṛishṇa, made a gift to the Brāhman Duḍūśarman, born of the Kāśyapa gotra, of pure descent,³ intent upon the sixfold duty,⁴ at Haridvāra, in the month of Jyāishṭha, on the 10th day of the bright fortnight, on the occasion of the Daśaharā. He as well as his progeny may enjoy that so long as the moon, the sun, the stars and the universe endure. Whosoever would encroach hereupon deserves to be punished and put to death and may descend into hell!

(L. 11) The boundaries hereof: The illustrious Mīa Janārdana gave a hastodaka grant to the Samju Duḍu (while bathing) in the Ganges on the occasion of the Daśāharā. The details thereof are recorded: two 2 bhaṅgas of the Ghaḍauta land with its fixed boundaries within the village of Maṅgalaura along with the Halyalā field to the very extent and limits to which it was formerly enjoyed on the ghāḍā system; the same extent and boundaries may be preserved. Moreover, Duḍu may bring the watercourse to Maṅgalaurā whichever way he chooses, nobody should obstruct to that. The watercourse is also given as hastodaka. One 1 kuru of land on the plateau, adjoining the State demesne, was given (to the same donee) on the occasion of the inauguration ceremony of the (prince's) house.

No. 45. MADANPUR PLATE OF BALABHADRA ; V. S. 1671

It is not known as to who owned this plate or from which place it was obtained. Nor are its present whereabouts known. It is further to be regretted that no impression or photograph of this plate is available. Fortunately, however, a transcript of its inscription and some particulars about it are to be found in the manuscript material left by Dr. Vogel. Its measurements are given there as 9" high by 14½" wide. It is said also to have had a small handle to its left and a seal in its upper left corner, which as usual had a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. It is not stated there as to how many lines the inscription consisted of. In his transcript, however, Dr. Vogel has shown 20 lines of writing, but considering the unusual length of the matter given in the last line there and comparing it with the average matter in every other line, it may be concluded that the inscription consisted of 22 lines. Further, in his transcript, Dr. Vogel has shown against line 16 that from that line onwards the inscription runs in the left margin. Bearing this in mind, when we see that line 19 contains only a few letters, we may infer that lines 16-18 appeared in the left margin, line 19 ran on the handle and line 20 (or lines 20-22) in the top margin as in the case with so many other similar plates.

The text given below is a copy¹ of Dr. Vogel's transcript. I have not been able to check it, since neither the original nor any estampage of it was available to me.

The language of the record for the most part is Sanskrit, some portion being in Chambyāli. It is dated in the Śāstra year 90, the Vikrama Samvat 1671, in the month of Vaiśākha, on the 11th day of the bright fortnight, which may correspond to Sunday, 10th April, A. D. 1614. It refers to the reign of Balabhadra and records his gift of some land to a Brāhman, named Baḍu Dhahḷūsarman, son of Sādoka or Sādo, of the Kāśyapa gotra, a resident of Madanapura, though the bhāṣā portion of the text makes Sādo himself the donee. The occasion of the gift was the udyāpana of the ekādaśī vrata apparently observed by the donor.

Madanapura, the native place of the donee is to be identified with Madanpur, 3 miles north-east of Nūrpur. From this it may be supposed that the present plate was in the possession of some Brāhman in that village.

The writer of the charter was Ramāpati. Towards the end of the record there is an unfamiliar imprecatory verse which may be taken as the writer's own coinage. The remarkable part of it is that it swears the Hindu and Turushka (Mohammadan) kings, saying that if they violate the grant they would incur the sin of eating the flesh of cow and of pig respectively. It need not be pointed out that to a Hindu a cow is too sacred to be killed and to a Mohammadan pork is forbidden.

¹ In one or two cases where the reading appeared to me otherwise for obvious reasons, I have not followed Dr. Vogel's transcript.

No. 46. GULEHI PLATE OF BALABHADRA ; SASTRA 93

This plate¹ is stated to have been in the possession of a Brāhman, Parama by name, at the village of Gulehi in the Berā parganā. It measures 6½" high by 9½" wide, and has no handle. In its top left corner it has the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 10 lines only, of which the last line appears in the left margin.

The language is Chambyālī mingled with some expressions in Sanskrit. The record is dated on the 10th day of the dark fortnight of the month of Mārgaśīrsha in the year 93 which obviously refers to the Śāstra reckoning. The corresponding Vikrama Samvat must be 1674. The date may be taken as equivalent to Wednesday, 12th November, A. D. 1617. The charter records the king's gift of one lāhaḍī of land to a Bairvāla Brāhman named Gaṅgu, which had formerly belonged to one Kūṇvāṇi Nārasimha.

The writer of the charter was Paṇḍit Ramāpati.

(L. 1) Om. In the glorious (Śāstra) year 93, on the 10th day of the dark fortnight of Mārgaśīrsha, the illustrious P. M. Balabhadravarmadeva has given as a hastodaka grant, one lāhaḍī (of land) belonging to Kūṇvāṇi Nārasimha, in the village of Gubhyai to the Bairvāla Brāhman Gaṅgu. The illustrious king should in future protect this for Gaṅgu's sons and grandsons. Nobody should cause interference to Gaṅgu.

No. 47. NURPUR PLATE OF BALABHADRA ; SASTRA 94

This plate² is said to have been in the ownership of one Sukhā Brāhman, the purohit of the Raja of Nūrpur. It is also said that the grant recorded herein has been confiscated. The plate measures 7½" high by 9½" wide. It had a handle on its left, which is now broken off. In its top left corner it has the usual seal with a

² No. 2 of APRAS. NC., 1904-05, p. 6, where the reading of the year is given as 74 instead of 94.

Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 11 lines, of which the last two lines appear in the left margin.

The language is Chambyālī throughout except in the opening sentence where it is Sanskrit. The record is dated on the 13th day of Vaiśākha in the year 94 which must be taken to refer to the Śāstra reckoning. The corresponding Vikrama Samvat must be 1675. The date may thus be equated with Sunday, 10th May, A. D. 1618.

The inscription records the king's gift of the village of Lamjerā in Hubāra to one purohita Byāsa¹ of Nurapura. Hubāra is the same as Hobār parganā in the Bhaṭṭi wazārat. The list of villages, however, does not show any village of the name of Lamjerā in that parganā, though there is one called Mamjherā. Nurapura is obviously the same as Nūrpur.

The donee is required to remain loyal to the Chamba State and fulfil his duty towards it. This is put as a sort of stipulation with regard to the donation. The donee or some of his descendants might have disregarded that and it might have been as a consequence thereof that the grant was later confiscated.

The charter is said to have been written by one Bihāri in the presence of Paṇḍit Ramāpati.

No. 48. BAMANA PLATE OF BALABHADRA; V. S. 1675

This plate was in the possession of a Brāhman, called Sardāru, at the village of Bamaṇā in the Mehlā parganā. It measures 7½" high by 10½" wide, and has a short pierced handle on its left. In its top left corner it has the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 15 lines of which lines 12-13 appear in the left margin and lines 14-15 run inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The charter is dated in the Śāstra year 94, the Vikrama Saṁvat 1675, on the 8th day of the bright fortnight of the month of Āśvina, which may be held to correspond to Thursday, 17th September, A. D. 1618. It records the King's gift of the village Bamaṇa in the Mahile maṇḍala to a Brāhman named Dhruvū. The Mahile maṇḍala refers to the Mehlā parganā while Bamaṇa is the same as Bamaṇā, the provenance of the plate.

The charter was written by Lakshmīkānta who, as will be seen below, was Ramāpati's son.

No. 49. HADSAR PLATE OF BALABHADRA; V. S. 1675
(Plate XXII, A)

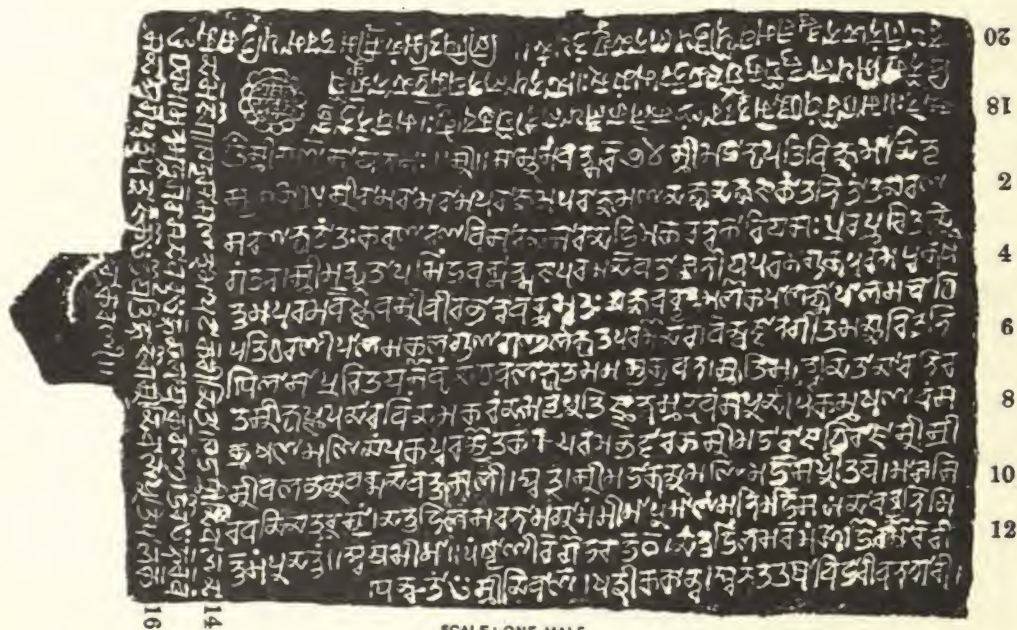

This plate was owned by one Thākaru. It measures 8" high by 13" wide including the handle on its left. In its top left corner it has the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 20 lines of which lines 14-16 run in the left margin, line 17 on the handle and lines 18-20 inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The charter is dated in the Śāstra year 94, the Vikrama Samvat 1675, on the 14th day of the dark fortnight of the month of Mārgaśīrsha, which may be taken to correspond to Friday, 6th November, A. D. 1618.

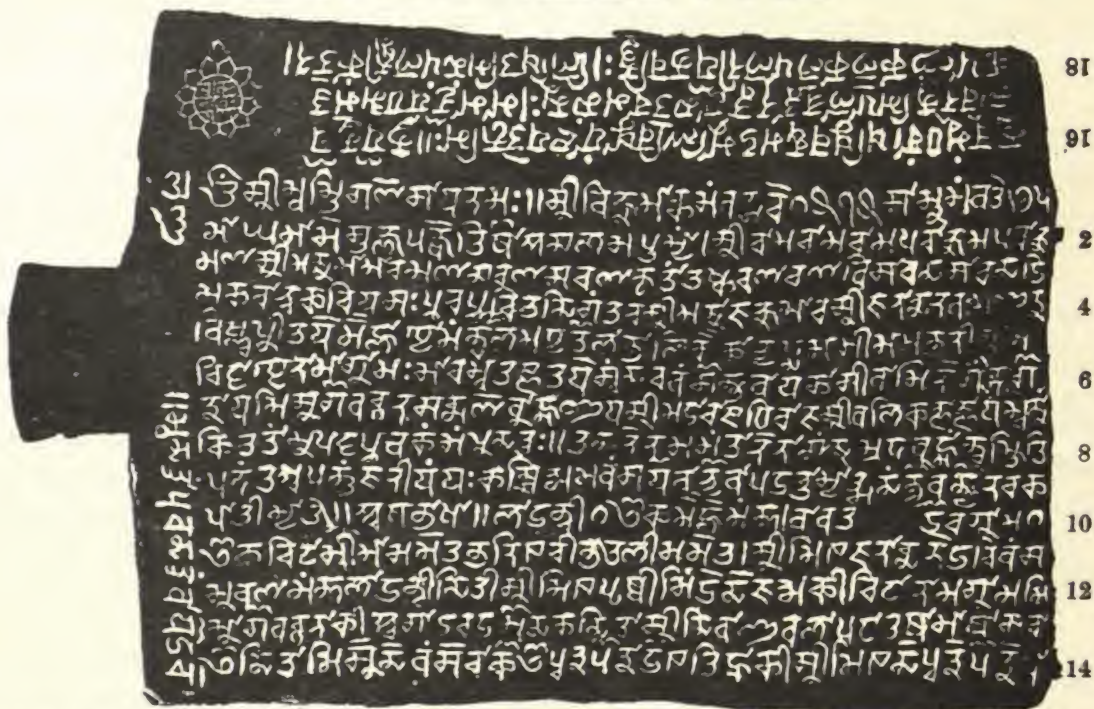

The inscription records that the king donated the village of Dattahīlasara for the purpose of establishing a śadāvarta or more correctly sudāvṛata in the name of the God Maṇimaheśa. The grant was given to four individuals, apparently brothers, by name Ananta, Bihārī, Banabyārī and Dāsa, who were not Brāhmins but Khatris, belonging to the Kakāḍa sub-caste. This sub-caste is nowadays known as Kakkaḍ. These persons were not grantees in the usual sense, but were in reality trustees of the endowment and were charged with the duty of running the charitable institution founded by the king, which was to be maintained with the income and produce from the donated village.

The donated village is to be identified with Haḍsar in the Bharmour parganā of the Bharmour wazārat. The śadāvarta or alms-giving institution established there was evidently for the benefit of the travellers, usually mendicants, on pilgrimage to the holy place of Maṇimaheśa, which is two stages farther from Haḍsar, this last place being itself about 10 miles from Bharmour on the way from Bharmour to Manmahesh or Maṇimaheśa.

The charter was composed by Ramāpatī.

SCALE: ONE-HALF.

(Plate XXII, B)

This plate² was discovered in the possession of one Miśra Brij Lal of Jvālāmukhī in the Kangra district. It measures 7½" high by 10¼" wide excluding the handle on its left. In its top left corner there is the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 18 lines in all, of which line 15 occurs in the left margin, while lines 16-18 run inversely in the top margin.

No. 21 of APRAS, NC, 1904-05, p. 8. The number of text lines is given there as nineteen which should be eighteen.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyāli. The charter is dated in the Śāstrā year 95, the Vikrama Samvat 1676, on the 7th day of the bright fortnight of the month of Māgha, which may be taken to correspond to Monday, 31st January, A. D. 1620. The object of the charter is to record two land-grants by the prince Janārdana, with the approval of king Balabhadra, to a Sārasvata Brāhman, named Mīra Govardhana of Kāśī, belonging to the Garga gotra. Of the two grants, one consisted of only one lāhaḍī of land, which was given evidently as a dakṣiṇā on the occasion of a recitation of the Harivamśa Purāṇa, while the other was made at the time of the prince Prithvīsimha's birth and comprised one whole village, called Rītṭā or Rītā, and a part of another, called Bhanī. These are identical with Raitā and Bhānīyām respectively in the Mehla parganā referred to as Maihlā maṇḍala in the inscription.

The inscription was written by Paṇḍit Lakshmīkānta.

Apte's Practical Sanskrit-English Dictionary, the said tithi is called Ratha-saptamī, while Achala-saptamī refers to the 7th day of the bright half of Āśvina, whereas this last tithi is named Ratha-saptamī, in the Conjer-William's Sanskrit-English Dictionary.

Janārdanavarman has, here, out of devotion to Viṣṇu, with the consent of the illustrious Mahārājādhirāja Balikarṇa, granted, by means of a copper plate stamped with the (royal) seal, one lābhālikā (of land) as well as the village called Rīṭṭā with (its fixed) boundaries along with the Bhanī village, (all) in the maṇḍala named Maihlā, to the Brāhman Mīśra Govardhanaśarman, an inhabitant of Kāśī, belonging to the Garga gotra, born of the Sumāra family, belonging to the Sārasvata community. No. 51. CHAMBA PLATE OF BALABHADRA; V. S. 1686

(Plate XXIII, A)

This plate² is said to have been in the possession of one Baḍu Sidh of Chamba. It measures 8½" high by 11½" wide including the handle on its left. In its top left corner it has the usual seal with a Nagari legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 17 lines, of which lines 14-15 appear in the left margin and lines 16-17 run inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The charter is dated in the Śāstra year 5, the Vikrama Saṃvat 1686, on the 7th day of the bright fortnight of the month of Āṣāḍha, which may be equated with Wednesday, 17th June, A. D. 1629. It records the king's grant of one lāhaḍī of land together with a house-site and a kitchen garden in the Bhirimya or Bhirī maṇḍala which is the same as the Bhaḍī-hām parganā. The donee is one Paṇḍit Lokanāthaśarman of the Bhāradvāja gotra. The gift was made on the *śuddha Śrāddha*³ ceremony of the king's mother, queen Dharmadei (Dharmadevī).

The charter was written by Paṇḍit Lakshmikānta in the presence of five witnesses whose names are mentioned.

No. 52. JVALAMUKHI PLATE OF BALABHADRA ; V. S. 1686

(Plate XXIII, B)

This plate¹ was also in the possession of Miśra Brij Lal of Jvālāmukhī in the Kangra district, who owned another one, namely Jvālāmukhī plate of Balabhadra of V. S. 1676 (No. 50). It measures 7½" high by 11½" wide including the handle on its left. In its top left corner it has the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 17 lines in all, of which line 13 appears in the left margin and lines 14-17 occur inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyāli. The charter is dated in the Śāstra year 105, the Vikrama Samvat 1686, on the full-moon day of the month of Kārttika, possibly to be equated with Thursday, 22nd October, A. D. 1629. It is noteworthy that the Śāstra year is mentioned here as 105 instead of as 5 only, since the centuries are usually omitted in this reckoning. The object of the inscription is to register the king's grant of four lāhādīs of land at the village of Paḍl in the Hubāra maṇḍala to the very same Miśra Govardhanaśarman who figures as donee in the other Jvālāmukhī plate referred to above (No. 50).

The grant was written by Pandit Lakshmikānta.

No. 53. LAKSHMI-NARAYANA TEMPLE PLATE OF BALABHADRA;

V. S. 1686

This plate¹ belongs to the temple of Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa at Chamba proper and is now preserved in the Bhuri Singh Museum there, bearing the catalogue number B, 25. It measures 8" high by 9½" wide excluding the handle on its left. In its top left corner it has the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription covers 19 lines, of which the last four appear in the left margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The record is dated in the Śāstra year 5, the Vikrama Saṁvat 1686, on the 12th day of the bright fortnight of the month of Māgha, which may be taken to correspond to Friday, 15th January, A.D. 1630.

The charter records the king's grant of a village named Miḍaghā in the Chūhnā maṇḍala to a Brāhman called Baradāṇa Gokalaśarman of the Kāśyapa gotra. In the bhāṣā portion of the inscription the donee is referred to also as the family of Gopī, who in all probability is identical with the Baradāṇī² Gopī of the Kāśyapa gotra, the donee in an earlier charter, namely the Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa temple plate of Balabhadra of V. S. 1664 (No. 41). It is thus presumed that this Gopī is the father of Gokalaśarman.

The charter also confirms an earlier grant made by Mīa Sabalasimha obviously to the same donor. That grant consisted of a village named Kayala in Yaśaura and is stated to have been made at the Ganges on the occasion of a Dasaharā, which shows that the prince Sabalasimha had then gone on pilgrimage to Haridvāra.

² The al Baradār is the same as Baradāṇa.

The Chūhnā maṇḍala is now called Chūnh parganā and is in the Bhaṭṭi wazārat, but the village Miḍaghā is said to be known now as Buhāṇā. The list of villages, however, does not show either of the two in that parganā, though there is one named Gohāṇā. Yaśaura refers to the Jasaur parganā, of the Churāh wazārat and the village Kālei there is supposed to be the modern representative of the village Kayala of the record.

The donee was given also a house-site which had formerly belonged to one Kamano Bilohī. And, besides, he was exempted from the deśa-rīta and the levy of goats. The former denotes certain dues customary in the locality concerned, while the latter refers to the then prevalent custom of villagers contributing goats and sheep to the state for the purpose of sacrifice at the temple of Chāmūṇḍā in Chamba on particular occasions.

(L. 13) The illustrious Mīā Śābalasīmha had given one 1 village (called) Kayala in Yaśaura, as a hastodaka (grant to the same donee while bathing) in the Ganges on the occasion of a Dasaharā. This, too, has been entered in the charter by the illustrious king.

(L. 15) In future this pious gift should be preserved by the descendants of the illustrious king for the progeny of Gokala.

No. 54. CHAMBA PLATE OF BALABHADRA ; V. S. 1688

This plate¹ has been in the possession of the State, apparently without any record as to how and whence it was obtained. It is now deposited in the Bhuri Singh Museum at Chamba where it bears the catalogue number B, 26. It measures $6\frac{1}{2}$ " high by $9\frac{1}{2}$ " wide excluding the small handle on its left. In its top left corner it has the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription comprises only 12 lines, the last appearing in the left margin.

The record is dated in the Śāstra year 7, the Vikrama Samvat 1688, on the 7th day of the bright fortnight of the month of Phālguna, which may be held to correspond to Friday, 17th February, A.D. 1632. It registers the king's gift of a village called Lāhaḍā to a Brāhman named Malūkaśarman. From the details in the bhāshā it is evident that the same village was formerly held as a sāsana by another Brāhman named Kihlyālā Khimḍū. It is to be presumed that this former donee left behind no successor of his, and that his sāsana, being not revertible to the State, was conferred on Malūka whose al is stated to be Sigāṭa.

The donated village is identical either with Lāhḍā or with Lāhrā, both of which are in the Bhaṭṭi-Ṭikrī² parganā of the Bhaṭṭi wazārat.

The writer of the grant was Paṇḍit Lakshmīkānta.

¹ No. 2 of APRAS, NC, 1906-07, p. 8. The name of the parganā given there as Loh Ṭikrī is a mistake for Bhaṭṭi-Ṭikrī. This correct name is given in the Catalogue of the Bhuri Singh Museum at Chamba, p. 16, B. 26.

² It is called Bhaṭṭi-Ṭikrī so as to distinguish it from Loh-Ṭikrī which is in the Churāh wazārat.

No. 55. CHAMBA PLATE OF BALABHADRA; V. S. 1689

This plate² belonged to Chhunphanān Poḍhi, Māngnu, and others at Chamba and is now kept in the Bhuri Singh Museum there, having the catalogue number B, 27. The left side of the plate, where there is the handle, is narrower than the other. It thus measures from 4½" to 5½" high by 7½" wide excluding the handle. In its top left corner it has the usual seal with an incomplete Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 15 lines in all, of which lines 11-12 appear in the left margin and lines 13-15 run inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The record is dated in the Śāstra year 8, the Vikrama Samvat 1698 which is obviously a mistake for 1689, on the 5th day of the bright fortnight of the month of Mārgaśīrsha, which may be considered to correspond to Tuesday, 6th November, A. D. 1632. The object of the charter is to record the king's donation of a village named Pajyārā in the Sācha maṇḍala to a Brāhman called Mārkaṇḍeyaśarman of the Bhāradvaja gotra.

² No. 9 of APRAS, NO, 1906-07, p. 8.

The occasion of the gift is stated to be the udyāpana of an ekādaśī vrata which was presumably observed by the royal donor himself. Since the date given above is the 5th day of the bright fortnight, the vrata referred to must have been on the foregoing ekādaśī of the dark fortnight. Thus, the gift was actually made on that day but was recorded about ten days later.

Towards the end, the inscription adverts to two villages called Baḍaunā and Divakhara, adding that they may be continued to be enjoyed by Mahīdhara's children in the same way as Mahīdhara had enjoyed them. The relation of this Mahīdhara with the aforementioned grantee Mārkaṇḍeya is not clear. In fact the very relevancy of the concluding portion is obscure.

Besides the places referred to above, some more are mentioned in the record in the course of defining the boundaries of the gift village. They are, all except one, in the Sāch parganā, the Sācha maṇḍala of the inscription. Thus Pajyārā, Tuṁdā, Oḍā, Khajyārā and Divakhara are identical respectively with Pamjyārā, Tuṁdā, Orā, Khajiārā and Dibkharī. Khajiārā or Khajiār is about 10 miles from Dalhousie on the Dalhousie-Chamba road, and is well known for its fine extensive glade with a lake in its centre. The place is much frequented by visitors during the season.¹ Dhayvali of the record is probably the same as Duhell, while Baḍaunā may be identified with Chumrī-Baḍūne-dī in the Bhaḍihām parganā.

The grant was written by Lakshmikānta in the presence of two witnesses.

Seal: (The command of) the illustrious Balabhadrava(rman).

(L. 1) Om. Hail! Obeisance to the holy Gaṇeśa. In the year 1689 of the illustrious Vikramārka, the Śāstra year 8, on the 5th day of the bright fortnight of the month of Mārgāśīrsha, the illustrious P. M. Balabhadravarmadeva has donated the village called Pajyārā with its fixed boundaries in the Sācha maṇḍala to the Brāhman Mārkaṇḍeyaśarman of the Bhāradvāja gotra, on the occasion of the udyāpana of the ekādaśī (vrata).

(L. 7) Now the boundaries : on the east the boundary (extends) up to the base of the spring of Tumdā and Oḍā ; on the south the boundary (runs) at the foot of the high ridge ; on the west (it extends) as far as the base of the Khajyarā ridge ; on the north the pass of Dhayvali forms the boundary line extending up to the cave at the Beṭha stream. The illustrious king has given (this extent of land) to Mārkaṇḍe. The illustrious king should preserve this his own pious gift.

(L. 11) One village of Baḍaunā..... one village (called) Divakhara may be enjoyed by Mahīdhara's sons and grandsons in the same manner as Mahīdhara (himself) formerly used to enjoy. The illustrious king should preserve this his own pious gift for them.

(L. 15) (This) has been written by Lakshmīkānta in the presence of Rāya Śibiyā and Paṇḍit Jayadeva.

No. 56. KUMRA PLATE OF BALABHADRA ; V. S. 1689

(Plate XXIV, A)

This plate¹ is said to have been in the possession of a Brāhman, Parjā by name, at the village of Kūmrā in the Piyurā parganā. It measures 5½" high by 8" wide including the handle on its left. In its top left corner it has the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The seal is, however, found to be reversed and the legend defective. The inscription consists of 12 lines of which the last appears in the left margin.

The language is Chambyālī, except in the opening passage where it is Sanakrit. The deed is dated in the year 1689 evidently of the Vikrama era, on the 15th day of the month of Mārgaśīrsha, which may be equated with Thursday, 13th, December, A. D. 1632. The charter records the donation or rather conveyance, by the king, of the village Pihura to an inhabitant of that place, named Hari, who does not appear to be a Brāhman. The same village, it is clear from the details given, was formerly in the possession of two other persons, namely Dhajāṇī Jagadīsa and Sāmuru Durugu. These were pledged to remain loyal and be ever in service of Chamba, and this same condition has been declared to be binding on the succeeding beneficiary as well.

The village of Pihura is identical with Piyurā, the headquarters of the parganā of the same name. Sāmura, after which Durugu is styled Sāmuru, is the same as Sāmra, the headquarters of the parganā of that very name.

There were four witnesses to the agreement, including the prince, Mīa Pṛithvi-simha. It was written by Paṇḍit Lakshmīkānta.

(L. 1) Om. Obeisance to the holy Gaṇeśa! In the glorious year 1689, on the 15th day of Mārgaśīrsha, by the order of the illustrious P.M. Balabhadravarma-deva;

(L. 4) the illustrious king has given Pihura to Hari, resident of Pihura. The agreement which was entered into by Dhajāñī Jagadīśa as well as by Durugu, resident of Sāmura, has been approved by the illustrious king who has transferred it to Hari by means of (this) charter. The agreement is this that Hari should not turn disloyal to the illustrious king, (but) must continue to be in service of Chāmbā.

(L. 8) This pious gift is to be preserved by the illustrious king for Hari's sons and grandsons.

(L. 9) This agreement has been registered in the presence of Mīa Pṛithvi-simha, Tegasiṃha, Jagadīśa and Sibi, (and) presented (to Hari) in the form of a deed. He should never violate it.

(L. 11) (This) has been written by Paṇḍit Lakshmikānta. May there be prosperity!

No. 57. NAGODA GRANT OF BALABHADRA; V. S. 1691

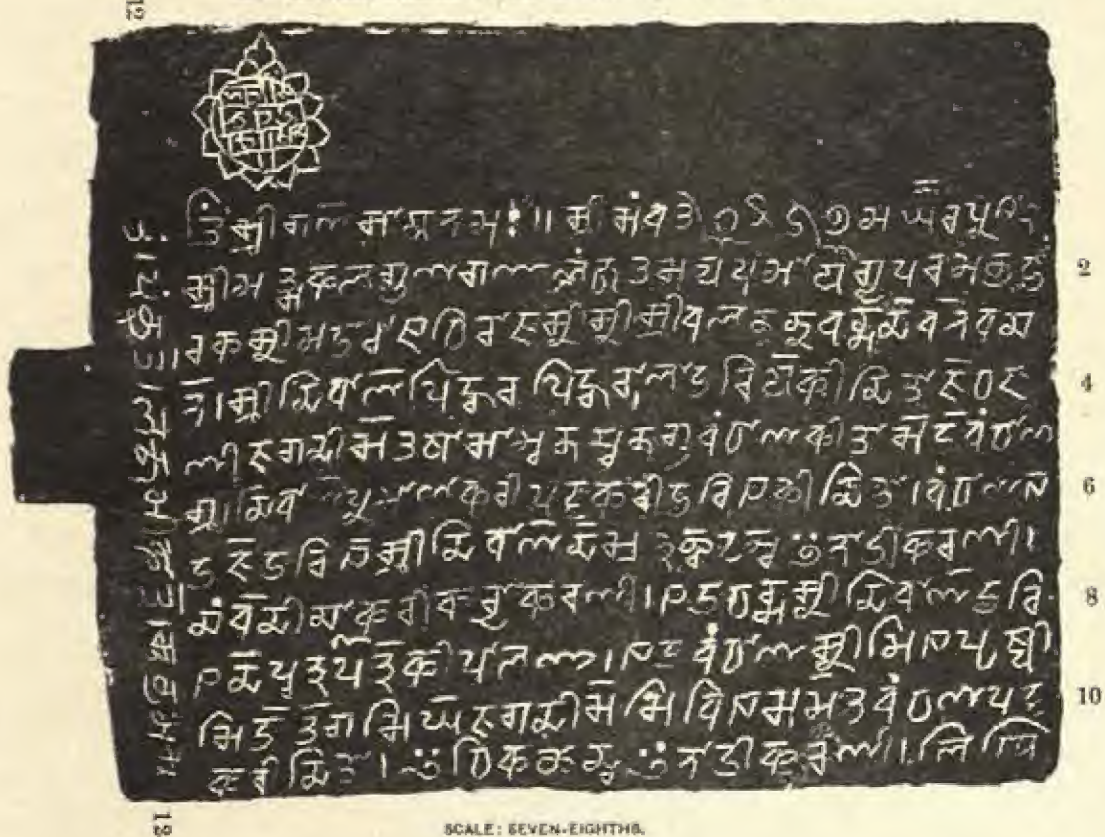

This plate¹ was owned by one Baḍu Phīnohu. It measures 9" high by 12½" wide excluding the handle on its left. In its top left corner it has the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. A small bit has been chipped off from the bottom left corner where, as a result thereof, two letters have been destroyed. The inscription consists of 17 lines, of which lines 14-15 appear in the left margin and lines 16-17 inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The inscription is dated in the Śāstra year 10, the Vikrama Samvat 1691, on the Kṛishṇa-janmāshṭamī day, that is the 8th day of the dark fortnight of the month of Bhādrapada, which may be equated with Wednesday, 6th August, A. D. 1634.

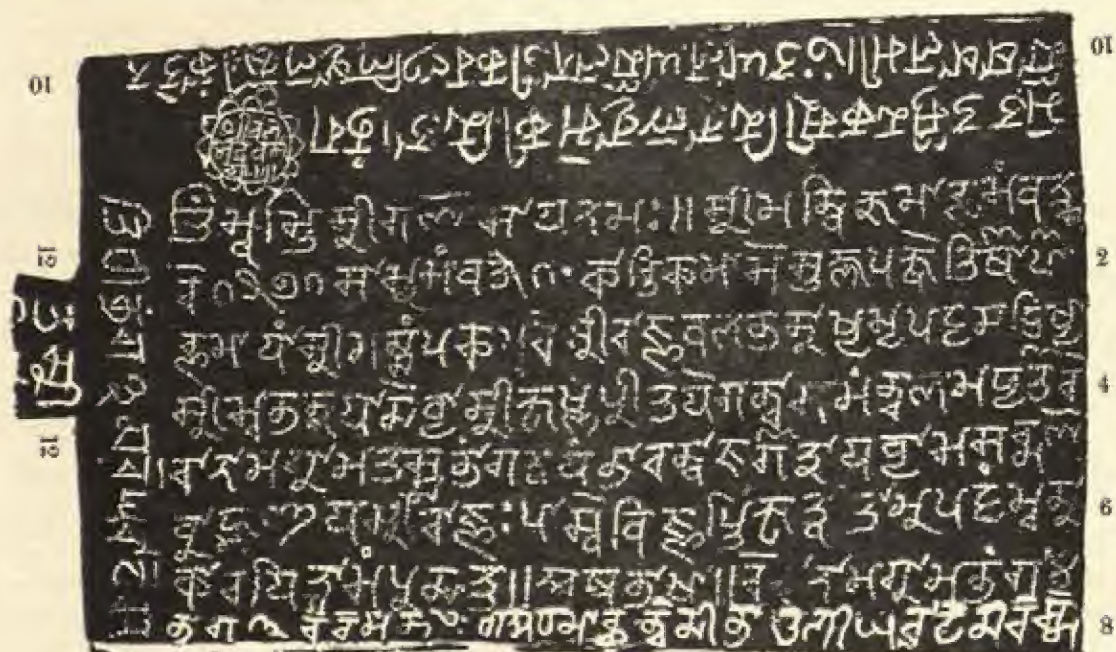

The charter records the king's donation of a village and one-third of the priest's honorarium to a Brāhman called Tripuradāsa of the Bhāradvāja gotra. In the bhāshā portion, the donee is alluded to also as Baḍu Gigā which appears to be his more common appellation. The donated village is called Nagoda which, it is stated, was formerly owned by one Bhāṭa Jivana. It has further been specified that one kunu of land at that village was withheld and instead of that the donee was given as much of wet land at Chāmbī which is another village adjoining to Nagoda. The one kunu of wet land at Chāmbī is stated to have belonged to one Maradū.

A.—KUMRA PLATE OF BALABHADRA; V. S. 1689.

B.—CHAMRA PLATE OF BALABHADRA; V. S. 1691.

The significance of a passage in the bhāṣā, line 15, is not quite apprehensible, though the literal rendering of it suggests that the same donee had formerly been given a ghālī or a reserved pasture at Brahmaura.

The villages Nagoda and Chambl are both in the Sāch parganā, the former is also called Nagodī, while Brahmaura is the same as Bharmour, the principal village of the Bharmour wazārat and the headquarters of the Bharmour parganā therein.

The grant was written by Lakshmikānta.

In the year 1691 of the illustrious Vikramārka, in the glorious Śāstra year 10, in the month of Bhādrapada, on the 8th day of the dark fortnight when there was the birthday anniversary of Lord Kṛishṇa, the illustrious P.M. Balikarṇavarmadeva has, here, out of devotion to Lord Kṛishṇa, granted the village called Nagoda and one third of the priest's honorarium to the Brāhman Tripuradāsaśarman of the Bhāradvāja gotra. That is to be enjoyed by him as well as by his progeny so long as the moon, the sun and the universe endure. Whosoever, whether of my family or anybody else, would encroach (hereupon) deserves to be punished and put to death and may descend into hell.

(L. 8) Now (the details in) the bhāṣā: One 1 village (called) Nagoda (formerly) enjoyed by Bhāṭa Jivana, (has now been granted to Tripuradāsa) with the exception of one kunu (of land) along the stream; in lieu hereof one kunu of wet land, belonging to Maradū, at (the village of) Chambl (has been given).

(L. 10) The boundaries of Nagoda are : on the east inwards from the huge boulder marking the boundary ; on the south behind the water-course of Chambi; on the west inwards from the Sighuā brooklet and the large boulder on the north below the path.

(L. 12) (The village as defined above and) one third share of the income from the priesthood has been given by the illustrious king as a hastodaka grant to Baḍu Gigā. In future the sons and grandsons of the illustrious king are to preserve this pious gift for those of Tripuradāsa.

No. 58. CHAMBA PLATE OF BALABHADRA ; V. S. 1691

(Plate XXIV, B)

This plate is said to have been in the possession of those very individuals who owned the Chamba plate of Balabhadra of V. S. 1689 (No. 55), namely Chhunphanān Poḍhi, Māngnu, and others at Chamba. It is slightly narrower on the left side than on the other. It thus measures from $4\frac{1}{4}$ " to $4\frac{3}{4}$ " high by 8" wide including the handle on its left. A portion of the handle has been broken off. There are two letters, constituting the twelfth line of the inscription, on the extant part of the handle which shows traces of some more letters that are now destroyed. In the top left corner of the plate there is the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription comprises 12 lines, of which lines 9-10 run inversely in the top margin, line 11 appears in the left margin and line 12 on the handle.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The document is dated in the Śāstra year 10, the Vikrama Saṃvat 1691, on the full-moon day of the month of Kārttika, which may be taken to correspond to Sunday 28th October, A.D. 1634. It records that Queen Subhadrādevī, the consort of Balabhadra, granted some land at the village of Rerā in the Gaḍāśa maṇḍala, to a Brāhman named Vyāsaśarman, with the consent of her husband. The details given are somewhat confused, but this is what they seem to mean: The whole of the village comprised four ḍhaṅgas of land. Out of that, one ḍhaṅga was to be enjoyed exclusively by Vyāsaśarman. The remaining three, which included a watermill and a pasture, were to be equally divided between, or, in other words, to be jointly enjoyed by, Vyāsaśarman and Mārkaṇḍe. This latter is to all appearance identical with Mārkaṇḍeyaśarman who figures as donee in the aforementioned charter (No. 55).

The donated village is identical with the present day Remrā in the Rājnagar parganā.

The charter was written by Lakshmīkānta.

(Plate XXV, A)

This plate¹ is also said to have been in the possession of the present Rajaguru Paṇḍit Thākur Dās, at Chamba. It measures 7½" high by 8½" wide excluding the handle on its left. In its top left corner it has the usual seal with a Nagari legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 19 lines in all, of which lines 13-15 appear in the left margin and lines 16-19 run inversely in the top margin.

The langugae is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyāli. The charter is dated in the Śāstra year 11, the Vikrama Samvat 1692, in the month of Vaiśākha on the full-moon day, which may be taken to correspond to Wednesday, 22nd April, A. D. 1635. Its object is to record the king's donation of six¹ lāhaḍīs of land at the village of Jakhurvāḍi to the Brāhman Bhāgīrathasārman of the Bhāradvāja gotra. The donated land is stated to have belonged formerly to a Pandit whose name has not been specified.

The village Jakhurvāḍi is identical with the modern Jukhrāḍi in the Pānjā parganā. It is mentioned also in two earlier charters (Nos. 7 and 31).

The grant was written by Pandit Ravidatta.

² Here as well as in the word छिइ low in line 11, the letter छि appears to be correction over an erasure, so that it is quite likely that some interested person has tampered here with the original wording which might have been दूयं and दूइ respectively. The motive is clear: the original meant a gift of two lāhaḍīs of land, whereas the altered reading makes it a gift of six lāhaḍīs instead.

No. 60. MAMDU GRANT OF BALABHADRA ; V. S. 1692

(Plate XXV, B)

This plate is said to have been in the possession of Pandit Purshottam and others at Chamba. It measures 7½" high by 9½" wide excluding the handle on its left. In its top left corner it has the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscriptions consist of 17 lines, of which lines 13-14 appear in the left margin, while lines 15-17 run inversely in the top margin. The last three letters of the last line, however, continue in the left margin in such a way that they seem to form a part of line 14.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The record is dated in the Śāstra year 11, the Vikrama Saṁvat 1692, on the 10th day of the bright fortnight of the month of Jyeshṭha which may be equated with Saturday, 16th May, A.D. 1635. Its object is to register the king's gift of a village named Māmḍū in the Pamjalā maṇḍala to the Brāhman Ravidatta of the Bhāradvāja gotra who appears to be identical with the writer of the foregoing charter. The donee was also given a house-site at Chamba proper, which had belonged to one Chilāmi Śehlālū.

The Pamjalā maṇḍala refers to the Panjlā parganā while Māmḍū, the donated village, is the same as Māmḍh included therein.

The charter was written by Lakshmikānta.

Seal : The command of the illustrious Balabhadra-varman.

(L. 1) Om. Hail! Obeisance to the holy Gaṇeśa! In the glorious Śāstra year 11, in the year 1692 of the illustrious Vikramāditya, in the month of Jyeshṭha, in the bright fortnight, on the 10th day—on the occasion of the daśaparvan, the illustrious P.M. Balabhadra-varmadeva has, here out of devotion to Lord Kṛishṇa, donated the village named Māṃḍū, with its fixed boundaries, in the maṇḍala called Paṃjalā, to the Brāhman Paṇḍit Ravidattaśarman of the Bhāradvāja gotra, of pure descent. That is to be enjoyed by him as well as by his progeny so long as the moon, the sun and the universe endure. Whosoever, whether of my family or anybody else, would encroach (hereupon) deserves to be punished and put to death and may descend into hell.

(L. 10) Now (the details in) the bhāṣā: On the east (the boundary extends) as far as the Kethalā brook including the Dagvāṇī (spring) below the ridge; on the south as far as the Korāḍa hillock (and) up to Manoga; on the west up to Raṇebhā stream; on the north as far as the Kaphāḍā including śilāṭa and saraḍa. (Besides, the donee) has been given the whole of house-site at Chāmbā, (formerly) belonging to Chīlāmi Śēhlālū.

(L. 14) This pious gift is to be preserved in future by the sons and grandsons of the illustrious king for those of Ravidatta.

NO. 61. GAMNJI PLATE OF BALABHADRA ; V. S. 1692 (?)

This plate¹ was found in the possession of a Brāhman, Dhodhu by name, in the village of Gamñji of the Sāho parganā. It measures 7" high by 12" wide excluding the handle on its left. In its top left corner it has a seal. The legend on it is rather indistinct and seems to contain a slightly different reading from that usually found on the other seals of Balabhadra. Near the top right corner of the plate, a piece about 2" × 1" is broken off. The gap thus caused has resulted in the loss of some letters in the last two lines of the inscription which consists of 14 lines, lines 13-14 running inversely in the top margin and the last line being a short one.

The language of the record is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyāli. The composition in both the parts is extremely faulty, though the purport of the deed is fairly clear. It is dated in the Śāstra year 11. The corresponding Vikrama year is stated to be 1699 but that is perhaps a mistake for 1692, for we know that by V. S. 1699 Balabhadra was already succeeded by his grandson Prithvisimha, the earliest of whose known charters is dated in V. S. 1698 (No. 70). The other details of the date are mentioned further on in the record in connection with the grant registered, namely the occasion of the solar eclipse on the new-moon (amāvāsyā) day in the month of Bhādrapada. The specific reference to the solar eclipse should ordinarily be a determining factor for the verification of the date, but in this particular instance it seems to have made the matter more complicated. A reference to Dewan Bahadur L. D. Swamikannu Pillai's Indian Ephemeris will show that there was no solar eclipse at all in V. S. 1692, nor in V. S. 1699. However, there was one in V. S. 1700, and that on the same tithi as has been stated in the record, namely on the new-moon day in the month of Bhādrapada, corresponding to Sunday, 3rd September A. D. 1643. This appears to be the intended date. To accept this, however, we have to assume firstly that the mention of the Śāstra year in the record as being 11 is a mistake for 18, secondly that the reading of the Vikrama year there as 1699 is correct, and thirdly that this V. S. 1699 refers to the expired year which would mean that the current Vikrama year was 1700 when there was a solar eclipse on the stated day. Still, the difficulty already hinted at remains unsolved: the Vikrama year 1699 or 1700 falls in the reign of Prithvisimha, while the document refers itself to that of his grandfather and predecessor, Balabhadra, so that we have to choose one of the two alternatives, either to treat the record as a forgery, though the date in that case is verifiable, or to accept it as a genuine grant of Balabhadra with an irregular date.

The charter purports to record that king Balabhadra donated two villages named Mata and Guḍajī to a Brāhman called Ghughuru or Ghumghuru of the Bhāradvāja gotra on the occasion of the solar eclipse. The donee is stated to be a resident of Guḍajī. This village is to be identified with Gamñji, the provenance of the plate, while Mata is probably the same as Maṭyārā. Both of them are in the Sāho parganā, the maṇḍala of Sāhu or Sāho of the inscription.

The charter is stated to have been written by Paṇḍit Lakshmikānta.

NO. 62. PADUNA-KHALERA GRANT OF BALABHADRA .
V. S. 1693

This plate¹ is said to have been owned by one Kukhvāṇ Bisheshar at Chamba. It measures 8½" high by 8½" wide excluding the handle on its left. The plate is slightly damaged : a part of its handle is chipped off, the top left corner and the bottom right corner are also broken off to the extent of about 1½" by 1½" and 1" by 1½" respectively. As a result of the damage the seal has almost completely disappeared, while some letters in the end of line 13-15 are missing. The inscription consists of 21 lines, of which lines 16-17 appear in the left margin and lines 18-21 run inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyāli. The charter refers itself to Balabhadra's reign and is dated in the Śāstra year 12, V. S. 1693. No further details of the date have been mentioned. The given year corresponds to A. D. 1636. It records that Queen Mathurādevi and Prince Sudarśana, respectively the consort and son of Balabhadra, gave away two villages, called Paḍūṇa and Khalerā, in the Śāho maṇḍala to a Brāhman, named Sundaraśarman, of the Bhāradvāja gotra with the consent of the king.

The Śāho maṇḍala refers to the Śāho parganā which includes the two donated villages. Khalerā is now called Khanlerā, while Paḍūṇa is known under the very same name.

The charter was written by Paṇḍit Ravidatta.

NO. 63. CHAMBA PLATE OF BALABHADRA ; V. S. 1693.

(Plate XXVI)

This plate of unusually big size is stated to have been in the possession of the former Rājaguru, Paṇḍit Mohan Lāl, at Chamba. It measures 12 $\frac{3}{4}$ " high by 15" wide excluding the handle on its left. In its top left corner it has the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 25 lines, of which lines 18-20 occur in the left margin and lines 21-25 run inversely in the top margin, the continuation of the last line, comprising two letters and two daṇḍas, appearing again in the left margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The record is dated in the Śāstra year 12, V. S. 1693, on the 3rd (Akshaya-tritīyā) day of the bright fortnight of Vaiśākha, which may be equated with Wednesday, 27th April, A. D. 1636. It registers the king's grant of a village to a Brāhman, Paṇḍit Lokanāthaśarman by name, of the Bhāradvāja gotra. The granted village is called Adhastha Uṭipa (in the bhāshā Buhnī Uṭipa), that is to say the Lower Uṭipa which is stated to be in the Panjalā maṇḍala (Panjlā parganā). The Upper Uṭipa (Uparālī Uṭipa) is mentioned among the boundaries which are specified in elaborate details. The list of villages, however, shows only one village of that name in the said parganā. Some of the other villages mentioned among the boundaries can also be identified. Thus Drabh-eṭā, Bhujā, Drablā, Manyāḍā, and Nanvāha are respectively the same as Drabh-eṭ, Bhujjā, Drablā, Munyāḍā and Nuṇāh. The donee was also given a house-site at Chamba.

The charter was written by Pandit Lakshmikānta.

Seal : The command of the illustrious Balabhadra-varman.

(L. 1) Om. Hail ! Obeisance to the holy Gaṇeśa ! In the year 1693 of the illustrious Vikramārka, in the glorious Śāstra year 12, in the month of Vaiśākha, in the bright fortnight, on the Akshaya-tritīyā day, the illustrious P. M. Balabhadra-varma deva has, here, out of devotion to Lord Kṛishṇa, donated the whole of the village known as Lower Uṭipa with its fixed boundaries, in the maṇḍala called Pajalā, to the Brāhman Pandit Lokanāthaśarman of the Bhāradvāja gotra, of pure descent.

(L. 7) That is to be enjoyed, etc. (as usual).

(L. 9) Now (the details in) the bhāshā : One 1 village (called) Lower Uṭipa—the whole of Raikogha, below the footpath of Tukarā, inwards from the boundary-mark of the Upper Uṭipa and from the mulberry tree, above the middle path of Drabhetā leading to the Upper Bhujā as well as to Drabilā (and) Manyāḍā, including all the land cultivated and uncultivated, (one) bhaṅga (?) of ghāḍī land, one lāhaḍī, belonging to Maṁḍhyālu, (the field called) Bāḍhyālī and Choro belonging to Sagatā and the watermill. Moreover, (the donated area) includes the farther Kaphāḍī below the confluence of two brooks, the large rock of Khaladūṇā within the junction of two paths, (and the field named) Digātā over the path leading to Bhujā. Having combined all this land with its fixed boundaries, the illustrious king Balikarṇa has given it to Lokanātha as a hastodaka rent-free grant.

(L. 14) Now the boundaries : On the east the boundary is (formed by) the footpath as well as by the mulberry tree below the broken path of Śelvāṇī (and) inwards from the brooklet of Chachhī ; on the south the boundary is (marked by) the ridge of Śukeṇā, the large mulberry tree (and) the kaith tree above the main path as well as the ridge of Nanvāha ; on the west the boundary (lies) below the Nāga's ridge with klaim trees, above the paved path (and) inwards from the terrace as well as the junction of two paths ; on the north the limit is (marked by) the branch of the brook of Bhujā. (The land thus defined) including the pasture of Maṇyonā (and) the inhabitants has been given. (Besides,) one 1 house-site at Chambā, belonging to Ghaṁghaṭhāṇī Haridāsa, Bhavānīdāsa, Mushaṇa and Sundara, has all been given as a hastodaka (grant) together with its garden and well.

(L. 19) This pious gift is to be preserved by all, the illustrious king as well as the sons, grandsons and great-grandsons of the illustrious king, for all, Lokanātha as well as the sons, grandsons and great-grandsons of Lokanātha.

(L. 25) The boundaries have been fixed by Bhaṁ. Chataru, Bhu. Jaimala, Phaṭalu, Bhishaṇu (and) Me. Kahnīyā.

This has been written by Paṇḍit Lakshmīkānta, while Paṇḍit Jaideva was there. Prosperity !

NO. 64. SIMDA GRANT OF BALABHADRA ; V. S. 1693

This plate¹ is stated to have been in the possession of one Paṇḍit Gaurīdatta. It measures 9½" high by 10¼" wide excluding the handle on its left. In its top left corner there is the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 23 lines, of which lines 19-20 occur in the left margin and lines 21-22 inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The charter refers itself to the reign of Balabhadra and is dated in the Śāstra year 12, V. S. 1693, on the rull-moon day of Kārttika, which may be held to correspond to Wednesday, 2nd November, A. D. 1636. It records that Balabhadra's son, prince Mānasiṃha, donated the village of Siṇḍa in the Jaśaura or Yaśaura maṇḍala to Dharaṇīdharaśarma, son of Paṇḍit Ramāpati, of the Bhāradvāja gotra, with the consent of the king. The donee's father is identical with Balabhadra's Rājaguru, Surānanda's son, Ramāpati, who figures as writer in most of Balabhadra's earlier charters. As has been observed above, Lakshmīkānta was also a son of the same Ramāpati. Thus Lakshmīkānta and Dharaṇīdhara were brothers.

The donated village is to be identified with Siṇḍa in the Jasaur parganā, the Jaśaura or Yaśaura maṇḍala of the record. Dr. Vogel seems to have visited Siṇḍa, as he has left us an account of its exact location, which is as follows : "Siṇḍa, 2 miles south-west (above) Kalhel, the second stage of the Chambā-Pāngī road and present headquarters of the Jasaur parganā. The village consists of only one house in which three families live." Dr. Vogel has also recorded the information that the field called Suralī, stated to be on the western boundary of the donated village, "is now included in the sāsana." The village of Drabilā mentioned in the record is the same as Drablā, only $\frac{1}{2}$ mile west of Siṇḍa. In Chamba, there are several villages of the name of Drabilā. The one in question is in the Jasaur parganā.

The charter was written by the donee's brother, Paṇḍit Lakshmīkānta.

NO. 65. LAKSHMI-NARAYANA TEMPLE PLATE OF BALABHADRA :

V. S. 1693

This plate² belongs to the temple of Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa at Chamba and is kept now in the Bhuri Singh Museum there, bearing the catalogue number B, 28. It measures 8½" high by 9½" wide excluding the handle on its left. In its top left corner it has the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 21 lines, of which lines 15-17 occur in the left margin and lines 18-21 run inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyāli. The inscription refers itself to the reign of Balabhadra and is dated in the Śāstra year 12, the V. S. 1693, on the 11th day of the dark fortnight of Chaitra, which may be taken to correspond to Sunday, 12th March, A. D. 1637. The charter records that the prince Mānasimha, son of Balabhadra, donated the village of Gaḍoḍa in the Yaśaura maṇḍala to a Brāhman called Gokalaśarman of the Kauṇḍinya gotra. According to the details in the bhāṣā the donee owned a shop which was taken from him and in lieu of that he was given another shop.

The Yaśaura maṇḍala refers to the Jasaur parganā and the village Gaḍoḍa is perhaps identical with Gaḍesar there. The boundary village Bhalālā is the same as Bhalelā in the very same Jasaur parganā.

The grant was written by Pandit Ravidatta.

NO. 66. CHAMBA PLATE OF BALABHADRA; V. S. 1694

This plate¹ was also in the possession of the former Rājaguru, Paṇḍit Mohan Lāl, at Chamba. It measures about 8" high by 10½" wide excluding the handle on the left. In its top left corner it has the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 23 lines, of which lines 19-21 appear in the left margin and lines 22-23 run inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The charter is dated in the Śāstra year 13, V. S. 1694, on the 12th day of the bright fortnight of Māgha, which may be taken to be equivalent to Wednesday, 17th January, A. D. 1638. It registers the king's gift of a village called Maṭhura, Maṭhuru or Maḍhuru, in the Śāho maṇḍala, to the Brāhman Paṇḍit Padmanābhaśarman of the Bhāradvāja gotra. As detailed in the bhāṣā portion, the donee had formerly been given several fields and homesteads at various other places. These former charities have been incorporated in the present charter.

The Śāho maṇḍala refers to the Sāho parganā. The donated village is now known as Maḍhrūmīn. Of the other places mentioned in the record, Daḍarā is still known by that very name, Paḍoṇa is possibly the same as Paḍūṇa which occurs in another inscription (No. 62) as well, Aghāru is now called Aghārūm—this is mentioned also in an earlier inscription (No. 23). Koṭalā is identical with the present Koṭlā, and Sahrāṇa is the same as Sarāhaṇ. These are all in the Sāho parganā. Digara is to be identified with Diggar in the Panjlā parganā. Ṭhakurālā is identical with Ṭhukrālā in the Simhutā parganā of the Bhaṭṭi vazārat. It occurs also in an earlier record (No. 20).

The charter was written by Lakshmikānta.

one shop belonging to Kalvāna, (one) 1 mango (tree called) Garalaba (and) the homestead belonging to the Jujhaika—all these to the extent of their boundaries have been granted by the illustrious king by means of a charter. NO. 67. SEI PLATE OF BALABHADRA; V. S. 1695 (?)

(Plate XXVII, A)

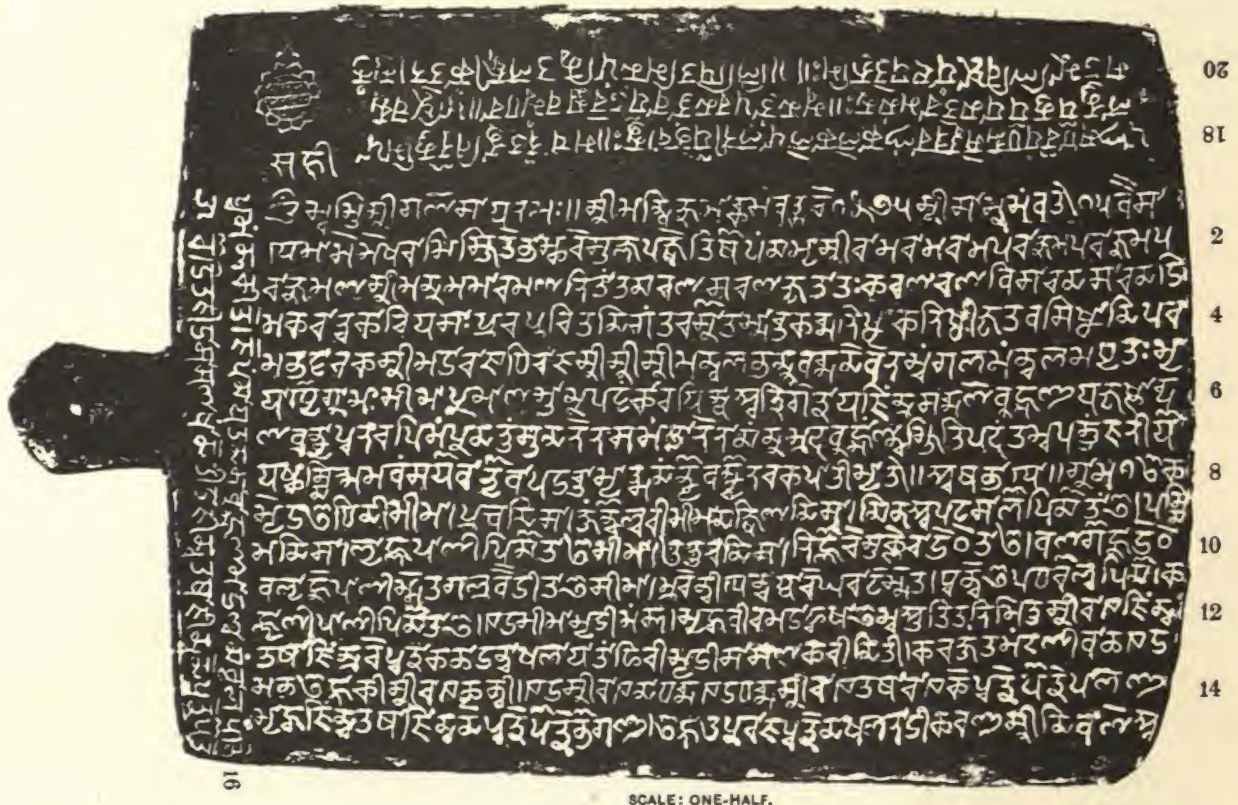

This plate¹ is reported to have been owned by one Byājā at the village of Sei in the Gudyāḷ parganā. It measures 10½" high by 14" wide excluding the pierced handle on its left. In its top left corner it has the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. Below the seal is engraved the word sahī, also in Nāgarī, the significance of which has been discussed above.² It is, however, unusual that both the seal and the word in question occur together in this plate, as usually one of the two is deemed enough to serve the purpose. The inscription covers 20 lines in all, of which lines 16-17 appear in the left margin and lines 18-20 run inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The charter is dated in the Śāstra year 15, V. S. 1695, on the 5th day of bright fortnight of Vaiśākha. The Vikrama year corresponding to the Śāstra year 15 should be 1696 and not 1695 as stated in the record. The mistake is probably due to an oversight on the part of the writer. The case is of a common occurrence: do we not all of us, through the force of habit, very often, in writing, inadvertently refer still to the 'old' year for weeks together after the 'new' one has set in? Thus, in the present instance the intended Vikrama year is conceivably 1696. The given date may therefore be equated with Sunday, 28th April, A. D. 1639.

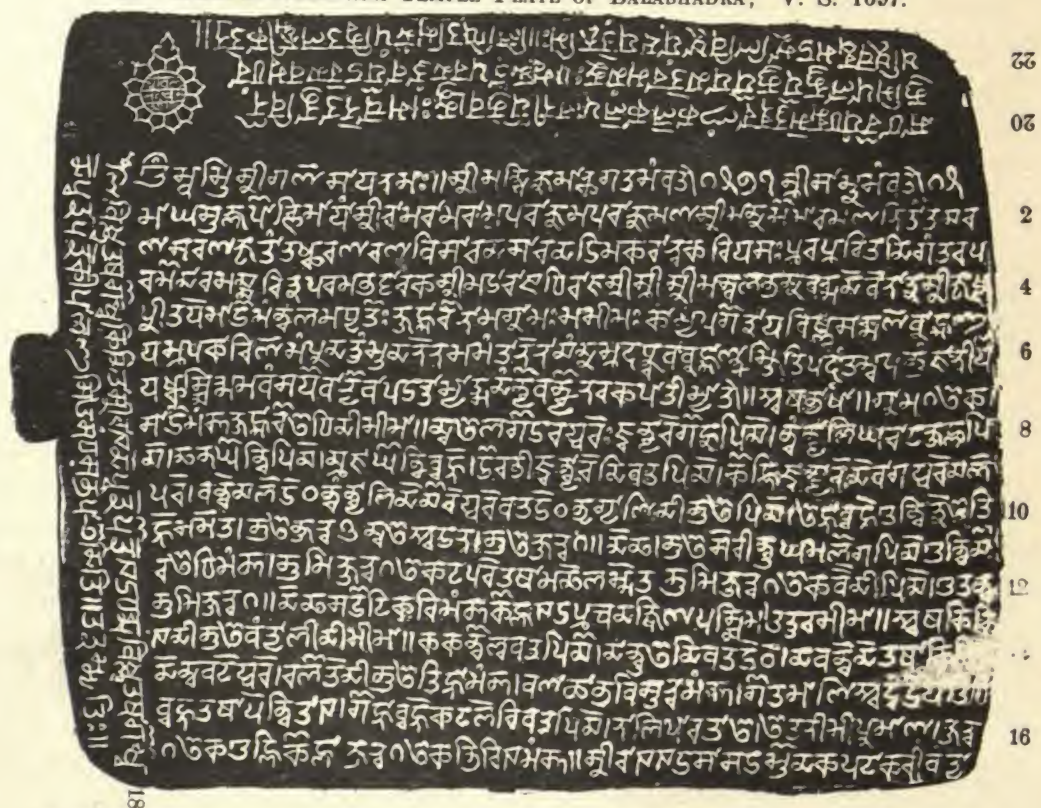

The inscription records that the king granted a village in the Sumgala maṇḍala to a Brāhman, Jimdūsarman by name, of the Atri gotra. From the details in the bhāṣā portion, it is evident that the same village was formerly held by one Bīrama, evidently as a śāsana, that he died by eating opium and that after his death the king transferred the grant to Jimdū and his son. Some expressions in that part of the record are rather obscure, so that it is not clear whether Bīrama's death was a case of suicide or whether it was a mere accident. It also appears that the king was present at the spot at the time of Bīrama's death and that he performed a sort of śrāddha of the deceased by treating Jimdū and his son to a dinner, who seem to have received the village, the property of the deceased, as dakṣiṇā. The name of the village is variously given as Syaya, Syeha, Syahī, Syahu or Syāhu. It is represented by the modern Sei, the provenance of the plate, in the Gudyāḷ parganā. Sumgala, which is mentioned as the name of the maṇḍala in the Inscription, is now a village in the same Gudyāḷ parganā.

SCALE: ONE-HALF.

The king showed a special favour to Jirūdū by granting him a status equal to that enjoyed by the Paṇḍits, Purohīts and others at the capital city of Chamba. The charter was written by Paṇḍit Lakshmīkānta.

Seal : The command of the illustrious Balabhadravarmān. Approved.

(L. 1) Om. Hail! Obeisance to the holy Gaṇeśa ! In the year 1695 of the illustrious Vikramārka, the glorious Śāstra year 15, the month of Vaiśākha, the sun having entered the Mesha rāśi, in the bright fortnight, on the 5th day, the illustrious P.M. Balabhadravarmadeva has granted again a village, called Syaya, to the extent of its boundaries, in the Suṅgala maṇḍala, by way of a dedication to Kṛishṇa to the Brāhman Jirūdāsarmān of the Atri gotra, by means of a copper charter.

(L. 7) That is to be enjoyed, etc., (as usual).

(L. 8) Now (the details in) the bhāṣhā : -One 1 village (named) Syeka. The boundaries hereof are :—On the east the boundary is (marked by) Kuṇḍolu; on the south (it extends) as far as the split rock behind Śālo; on the west the boundary (runs) as far as the Lyähla brooklet ; on the north the boundary (extends) as far as the base of Nihlorā of Suklā, including the Balyāhrā fountain below the forest track, up to the ridge of the pass, including the watermill (situated) on the near side of the Mūreḍi stream, behind Dhūdei (and) Padharolu, as far as the Kahlyāṇi fountain. All these boundaries are in Syahī. Bīrama of Syahu ate opium and died of that. On that occasion the illustrious king fed Jīmdū and Jīmdū's son on kachhāhādā and afterwards gave (them) Syahī as a rent-free grant. They have been exempted by the illustrious king from all levies and taxes in cash and kind. This is a pious gift by the illustrious king. This pious gift is to be preserved by the illustrious king as well as by the sons and grandsons of the king, (while) Jīmdū and Jīmdū's sons and grandsons are to enjoy it. Upon these (donees) the princes are not to cause any imposition ; the illustrious king has taken (them) into his own fold, (so that) Jīmdū and Jīmdū's sons and grandsons may enjoy (this grant) in the same manner as the Pañchāyat Brāhmanas, commoners, Paṇḍits and Purohitas of Chamba town enjoy a rent-free grant.

No. 68. LAKSHMI-NARAYANA TEMPLE PLATE OF BALABHADRADEVA; V. S. 1697.
(Plate XXVII, B)

This plate¹ belongs to the temple of Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa at Chamba proper and is now deposited in the Bhuri Singh Museum there, bearing the catalogue number B, 29. It measures about 10½" high by 13" wide excluding the short handle on its left. In its top left corner there is the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 22 lines in all, of which lines 18-19 appear in the left margin and lines 20-22 run inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The charter is dated in the Śāstra year 16, V. S. 1697, on the full-moon day of Māgha, which may be held to correspond to Saturday, 16th January, A. D. 1641. It registers the king's gift of a village called Kuhmāro in the Sāho maṇḍala to his cook, the Brāhman Vishṇuśarman of the Kāśyapa gotra. In the bhāṣā portion, the name of the donee is coupled with that of another person, namely Gorkhu, who might be related to him as brother. This section of the record describes the donated area in great details all of which are not quite intelligible. Several villages are mentioned along the boundaries, most of which are identifiable. The donated village itself is said to be no longer existent now. Duila, Juḍyārā, Dharu, Taparā, Tikari and Dāḍui are all in the Sāho parganā and are now known by their slightly modified names. Ohli, and Bhiriā are in the Bhaḍīhām parganā. They are mentioned also in some earlier charters (Nos. 21, and 23 Bhiriā, Nos. 11 and 12 Ohli).

¹ No. 48 of APRAS, NO, 1903-04, p. 10. The name of the locality given as Kiahmāro is a mistake for Kuhmāro,

It is not known as to how the charter later came into the possession of the temple.

The charter was written by Pandit Lakshmikānta.

TRANSLATION

Seal: The command of the illustrious Balabhadravarmān.

(L. 1) Om. Hail! Obeisance to the holy Gaṇeśa ! In the year 1697 of the illustrious Vikramārka, the glorious Śāstra year 16, the bright (fortnight) of Māgha on the full-moon day, the illustrious P.M. Balabhadravarmadeva has, here, out of devotion to Lord Kṛishṇa, granted a village named Kuhmāro with its (fixed) boundaries in the Sāho maṇḍala to the Brāhman Vishnuśarman, the cook, of the Kāśyapa gotra.

(L. 6) That is to be enjoyed, etc. (as usual).

(L. 7) Now the bhāṣhā:—One 1 village (called) Kuhmāro in Śāho. The boundaries hereof are: inwards from the path of Duila; behind the path of Judyārā; behind the watercourse of the Damdyāli watermill; behind the rock of Dharu; below the Śūja boulder; again behind the path of Judyārā; inwards from the garden in the wet (land) of Judyārā; beyond the watercourse; beneath the larger watercourse; inwards from the Damdyāli terrace; below the path; behind the land of the Bhyagyāni; including all the three oblong fields below these—there are two 2 kunus of land, one-and-a-half $1\frac{1}{2}$ kunus of land, four oblong fields behind the crown lands (called) Dugha (and) Maloga, one 1 kunu of land including Tapara and Machhela, one 1 kunu of dry land behind the baidi (tree), one-and-a-half $1\frac{1}{2}$ kunus of wet land at Śaho Tikari. These are the boundaries on the east, the south, the west and the north.

(L. 13) Now the boundaries of the baṁnyālī land belonging to Kikiā; behind the Kakaḍolu path; below the path of Dāḍui; inwards from the junction of two paths, (one) leading to Dabaḍa's (house?) and (the other) to Kikiā's (house?); the land of Ralotā being theirs (i.e. of Dabaḍa and Kikiā) the forest and the hill-slope being Vishṇu's; below the (one) aṭu (of land) of Gotamāni and (extending) up to the steps; below the footpath; behind the path along the bank; as far as the farther side of the brooklet—this much is the extent of the boundaries.

(L. 17) The illustrious king has given this gift as a hastodaka grant to Baṁnyāni; Vishṇu and Gorkhu. The sons and grandsons of the illustrious king are to preserve this pious gift for those of Vishṇu and Gorkhu.

(L. 19) There is the Smṛiti: (here follow two customary verses).

No. 69. CHAMBA PLATE OF BALABHADRA; V. S. 1697.

This plate was in the possession of Chhunphanān, Poḍhi, Māngnu and others at Chamba, the very individuals who had two more plates with them (Nos. 55 and 56). It measures $6\frac{3}{4}$ " high by $8\frac{1}{2}$ " wide including the handle on its left. In its top left corner it has the usual seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription covers 18 lines in all, of which the last three run inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyāli. The record is dated in the Śāstra year 16, V. S. 1697, on the full-moon day of Phālguna, which may be held to correspond to Monday, 15th February, A.D. 1641. Its object is to register the king's gift of a village called Sarotha together with a hamlet named Chihnaṇa in the Jasora maṇḍala to a Brāhman named Mārkaṇḍeyaśarman of the Bhāradvāja gotra.

The Jasora maṇḍala refers to the Jasaur parganā in the Churāh wazārat. The donated village still exists and has its name unchanged, while Chihnaṇa is probably to be identified with the modern Chhanen.

It may be observed that the present charter is chronologically the last of the known records of Balabhadra's reign.

It was written by Pandit Lakshmikānta.

Seal : The command of the illustrious Balabhadra-varman.

(L. 1) Om. Hail! Obeisance to the holy Gaṇeśa! In the year 1697 of the illustrious Vikramārka, the glorious Śāstra year 16, the month of Phālguna, the bright fortnight, on the full-moon day, the illustrious P.M. Balabhadra-varman, in residence at the splendid city of Champaka, has, out of devotion to Lord Krishna donated the village called Sarotha along with Chihnaṇa in the Javara maṇḍala to the Brāhman Mārkaṇḍeyaśarman of the Bhāradvāja gotra, who had made a request to the illustrious king for that, by means of a copper charter under the (royal) seal, the donated area being bounded on the east by the ridge of Jumjvarā; on the south by the Śukeḍa ridge; on the west by the Navāṇi fountain; on the north by the ridge overgrown with banj trees,— and including the Gaḷeṇi watermill as well as the banj trees used for fodder.

(L. 12) Now the bhāṣhā: The village called Sarothā to the extent of its boundaries has been granted with libation of water by the illustrious king to Mārkaṇḍe. The descendants of the illustrious king are to protect (this grant), while those of Mārkaṇḍe are to enjoy it.

(L. 16) The grant has been made in the presence of Bhujeka Hamsa, and written in that of Mīa Mānasīmha. This pious gift is to be preserved by the successors of the illustrious Balabhadra.

(L. 18) (This) has been written by Paṇḍit Lakshmikānta.

No. 70. MINDHAL PLATE OF PRITHVISIMHA ; V. S. 1698

(Plate XXVIII, A)

This plate¹ belongs to the temple of Chāmuṇḍā devī at the village of Mindhal in the Sāch parganā of the Pāngī wazārat, and is now kept in the Bhuri Singh Museum at Chamba proper, where it bears the catalogue number B, 30. It measures 7½" high by 10½" wide including the pierced handle on its left. In its top left corner is engraved the word *sahī*² in Nāgarī characters. The inscription consists of 21 lines in all, of which line 14 appears in the left margin, lines 15-17 run inversely in the top margin and lines 18-21, comparatively very short ones, occur on the handle.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The inscription is dated in the Śāstra year 17, V. S. 1698, on the 8th day of the bright fortnight of Vaiśākha, which may be taken to correspond to Thursday, 8th April, A. D. 1641. It records that king Prithvisimha donated the village of Mimdhala in the Pāngī maṇḍala together with the residents of that village to the goddess Chāmuṇḍā. We further learn from the record that Prithvisimha had come from Kulū and worshipped the goddess when he made his gift to her, and that the wazārat of Pāngī was then in the charge of Dayoḍa Bājo. The term dayoḍa means, 'son of a nurse'. We know that Prithvisimha, when an infant, was protected and taken to Kulū by a nurse called Baṭalo of whom we shall learn more in a later inscription. According to a tradition this Baṭalo had two sons named Ājo and Bājo. This latter seems to be identical with the one mentioned in the present record as the officer in charge of the Pāngī wazārat.

The significance of the gift of a village along with its inhabitants in the present instance is this that the villagers of that place thenceforwards were to be regarded as subjects of the deity to whom, as such, they had to render their services and pay all dues and no longer to the king. The inscription specifies the services to be rendered and dues to be paid by the villagers. Some expressions in this specification are, however, too obscure. This includes the levy of a ram to be offered by the villagers to the deity as dues for grazing their sheep and cattle on the mountain-range of Gādhā.

This Gādhā Dhār is now known as Gaddi Dhār. It is the hill against the slope of which Mindhal, Mimdhala of the inscription, is situated.

The inscription was written by Paṇḍit Lakshmīkānta.

It may be observed that the present inscription does not mention Prithvisimha as Chambādhipati which epithet is applied to him in the next charter issued three years later. Here he is said to be on his visit from Kulu to the temple of Chāmuṇḍā at Mindhal. Probably he was on his way to the city of Chamba, where he was to succeed to the throne.

(L. 1) Om. Hail ! Obeisance to the holy Gapeśa! In the year 1698 of the illustrious Vikramārka, the month of Vaiśākha, the bright fortnight, on the 8th day, the illustrious P. M. Prithvisimhavarman has donated the village called Mimdhala, with its (fixed) boundaries, together with its inhabitants, in the Pāṅgī maṇḍala, to the holy divinity Chāmuṇḍā, out of devotion to her.

(L. 7) That is to be enjoyed, etc. (as usual).²

(L. 10) Now the bhāṣā : One village (called) Mimdhala, with its (fixed) boundaries, together with its inhabitants, has been donated by the illustrious king Prithvisiniha, with libation of water, to Chāmuṇḍā, on the 21st day of Vaiśākha when he came from Kulū to (the temple of) Chāmuṇḍā and worshipped her.

(L. 12) This pious gift of the illustrious king is in future to be preserved by the illustrious king as well as by the sons and grandsons of the king.

(L. 13) The people of Mimdhala are pledged to..... A ram is to be given as dues (for grazing sheep and cattle) on the Gādhā Dhār.

(L. 14) (Here follows one customary verse.)

² Though the grantee in the present instance is the temple deity, yet the passage in question appears in its usual form, as if referring to a Brahman recipient of a total-grant. It may be taken here to refer to the priest in charge of the temple.

No. 71. CHAMBA PLATE OF PRITHVISIMHA; V.S. 1701

This plate is said to have been owned by one Bhaṭṭa Duryodhan of Chamba proper, belonging to the Bhāradvāja gotra.¹ It measures 7½" high by 8½" wide excluding the handle on its left. In its top left corner is engraved the word sahī in Nāgarī characters. The inscription runs into 18 lines, of which lines 15-16 occur in the left margin and lines 17-18 inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The charter is dated in the Śāstra year 20, V.S. 1701, the 13th day of the dark fortnight of Phālguna, which may be equated with Friday, 14th February, A.D. 1645. It records the king's gift of one lāhaḍī of land at the village² of Bhuroḍa or Bhuroḍi to one Bhaṭṭa Gopālaśarman of the Vādhula gotra, the Āpastamba sākhā, a Drāviḍa Brāhman, hailing from South India, on the occasion of his (king's) mother's śuddha śrāddha. The donated land had previously belonged to one Haladhara.

It may be inferred from the mention of the śuddha śrāddha of the king's mother that she had died about five years previously.

The charter was written by Paṇḍit Lakshmīkānta.

(L. 1) Om. Hail ! Obeisance to the holy Gaṇeśa ! In the year 1701 of the illustrious Vikramārka, the Śāstra year 20, the illustrious P. M. Prithvisimhavarmadeva the ruler of the prosperous (state of) Chāmbā, has, here, out of devotion to the holy Raghuvīra, granted one lāhaḍī (of land) in the maṇḍala called Bhuroḍa to the Drāviḍa Brāhman Bhaṭṭa Gopālaśarman, hailing from the south, of a noble family, of the Vādhula gotra, of pure descent, a student of the Āpastamba sākhā, on the occasion of his mother's śuddha śrāddha on the 13th day of the dark fortnight of Phālguna

¹ He is then evidently not a descendant of the original donee whose gotra is stated in the record to be Vādhula's.

² Wrongly stated as maṇḍala in the inscription.

(L. 11) That may be enjoyed, etc., (as usual).

(L. 13) Now the bhāshā : One 1 lāhaḍī of wet land at Bhuroḍī, which had belonged to Haladhara, has been given as a hastodaka rent-free grant by the illustrious king to Gopāla.

(L. 15) (This) their own pious gift is to be preserved by the illustrious Prithvisimha as well as by his sons and grandsons for Bhaṭṭa Gopāla and his sons and grandsons.

No. 72. CHAMBA PLATE OF PRITHVISIMHA; V.S. 1702

(Plate XXVIII, B)

This plate¹ was owned by one Nikā Sibaṇotar and is now preserved in the Bhuri Singh Museum at Chamba proper, having the catalogue number B, 31. It measures about 7½" high by 10¼" wide including the pierced handle on its left. In its top left corner is engraved the word *sahī*² in Nāgarī characters. The inscription consists of 17 lines in all, of which lines 13-14 appear in the left margin and lines, 15-17 run inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The charter refers itself to the reign of Prithvisimha and is dated in the Śāstra year 21, V.S. 1702, on the full-moon day of Āshāḍha, which may be equated with Saturday, 28th June A.D. 1645. It records that Baṭvalādevī, who had served as wetnurse to the king Prithvisimha, gave two lāhaḍīs of land at the village of Bhujalā in the Vikāṇa maṇḍala to a Brāhman called Haṇuśarman of the Kāśyapa gotra on the occasion of the inauguration ceremony of a bridge. The bhāshā portion mentions the donee's a' to be Kiṭvānī.

The maṇḍala of Vikāṇa refers to the parganā of Bakāṇ or Bakānī and the village of Bhujalā is now called Bhujluin.

The bridge, the inauguration ceremony of which is spoken of in the record, is now no longer in existence. It was caused to be built by the said nurse Baṭvalādevī. It spanned the river Rāvi near Naḥorā, the point where now-a-days there are the soldiers' barracks at Chamba. The bridge was known as Baṭlo-rā-seu or Baṭlo-kā-pul, 'Baṭlo's Bridge'. From there the road led to Nūrpur, Udaipur and Bakāṇ. According to another tradition the bridge was called Dugurā-seu after the name of Baṭlos' husband. It is said to have been a wooden bridge, though some say it was a mere jhūlā, that is a suspended rope-bridge.

The charter was written by Lakshmīkānta.

Prithvisimha, his wet-nurse Baṭṭvalādevī donated, with libation of water, two lāhaḍīs (of land) at the village called Bhujalā in the Vikāṇa maṇḍala to the Brāhman Haṇuśarman of the Kāśyapa gotra on the occasion of the inauguration of the bridge.

(L. 9) That is to be enjoyed, etc., (as usual).

(L. 12) Now the bhāshā: two 2 lāhaḍīs (of land) at Bhujalā, (where) twelve 12 piḍa (of seed-corn can be sown), the noble nurse Baṭṭvalo has given to Kiṭvāṇī Haṇu by means of a charter on the occasion of the inauguration of the bridge. She also got him the charter duly approved by the illustrious king.

(L. 16) This pious gift of the nurse is to be protected by the descendants of the illustrious king for Haṇu's sons and grandsons.

No. 73. SARĀHAN PLATE OF PRITHVISIMHA ; V. S. 1702

This plate is said to have been in the possession of Brāhman, Magnā by name, a resident of the village of Sarāhan in the Sāho parganā, and is now deposited in the Bhuri Singh Museum at Chamba proper, where it bears the catalogue number B, 32. It measures 6 $\frac{3}{4}$ " high by 8 $\frac{3}{4}$ " wide including the handle on its left. In its top left corner is engraved the word *sahī*¹ in Nāgarī characters. The inscription covers 20 lines in all, of which lines 13-14 appear in the left margin, lines 15-17 are short ones and occur on the handle, lines 18-20 run inversely in the top margin, the last four letters of the last line continuing in the left margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyāli. The charter refers itself to the reign of Prithvisimha and is dated in the Śāstra year 21, V.S. 1702, on the 7th—achala-saptamī—day of the bright fortnight of Māgha, which may be taken to correspond to Tuesday, 13th January, A.D. 1646. It records again a gift of land by the king's wet-nurse Baṭvalā or Baṭulā to a Brāhman called Gorakhuśarman, or Sipvāṇī Gorukhu, of the Kāśyapa gotra. The donated land lay at the village of Sahrāṇa, which is identical with Sarāhaṇ, the provenance of the plate. The extent of the gift area is stated to be one lāhaḍī in the Sanskrit part, but in the bhāshā portion it is said to be one-and-a-quarter $1\frac{1}{4}$ lāhaḍīs, which appears to be the exact amount.

The charter was written by Lakshmīkānta.

No. 74. LAKSHMI-NARAYANA TEMPLE PLATE OF PRITHVISIMHA;

V.S. 1702

(Plate XXIX, A)

This plate belongs to the temple of Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa at Chamba proper and is now kept in the Bhuri Singh Museum there, with the catalogue number B, 33. It measures about 10" high by 11 $\frac{3}{4}$ " wide excluding the handle on its left. A small piece has broken off from the lower left corner. In its top left corner is engraved the word *sahī*¹ in Nāgarī characters. It may be pointed out that the last line of the inscription, mentioning the engraver's name, is also in Nāgarī characters. The inscription consists of 22 lines in all, of which lines 16-17 appear in the left margin, lines 18-21 run inversely in the top margin and line 22 is marginally inserted in the top right corner.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The record is dated in the Śāstra year 21, V.S. 1702, on the full-moon day of Phālguna, which may be held equivalent to Thursday, 19th February, A.D. 1646. Its object is to register the king's donation of a village called Gailā in the Naḍha maṇḍala to a Brāhman, named Bhūgarbhaśarman, of the Upamanyu gotra. The boundaries of the donated village are described in detail, but some of the particulars are not quite intelligible.

The Naḍha maṇḍala is now known as Rājnagar parganā. There is, however, a rivulet called Naḍhala, reminiscent of the old name of the parganā. The gift village Gailā is identical with the modern Gvelā or Guelā. Rerā is the same as Remrā, mentioned also in an earlier charter (No. 58). The terms Rerālā and Chambhvālā mean 'resident of Rerā', and a 'resident of Chambhū' respectively. This latter place is to be identified with the modern Chhamhuim, also in the Rājnagar parganā. In the bhāshā portion the donated village is stated to be in Gaḍvāśā which cannot be identified.

The charter was written by Lakshmikānta and engraved by the gold-smith Arjuna.

(L. 1) Om. Hail ! Obeisance to the holy Ganeśa! In the year 1702 of the illustrious Vikramārka, the glorious Śāstra year 21, the month of Phālguna, the bright fortnight, on the full-moon day, the illustrious P.M. Prithvisimha has granted the village called Gailā, to the extent of its boundaries in the Naḍha maṇḍala, to the Brāhman Bhūgarbhaśarman of the Upamanyu gotra.

(L. 8) That is to be enjoyed, etc., (as usual).

(L. 10) Now the bhāṣā : One 1 village (called) Gailā, to the extent of its boundaries, in Gaḍvāṣā. Its boundaries are: on the east within the ridge of the mound as well as the path to the leopard-trap, within the Sunoṭi terrace as well as Tikara; on the north the streamlet forms the boundary, within the Śelāṇī spring, within the Khataḍī ridge, and inwards from the boundary of the adjacent (field) below the willow tree. Further, (the boundary extends) upwards as far as the path of Rerā. Eight māṇis (of land) at Rerā are in addition. And the brook forms the boundary. The rest belongs to the Rerālā. (The land) beyond the brooklet of Kapāhaḍī, below the quarters of the Chinālas, beneath the path, is included in Gailā. (The land) within the Kanīḍa confluence of Naḍha, beyond the ridge of Dhaḍharoḍa, above the field of the Chāmbhvālā, under Bhaḍhoi, within the Dulyāṇī pond, comes within the limits of Gailā.

(L. 19) The illustrious king Prithvisimha has given Gailā with its boundaries (fixed as above), with libation of water, to Bhyaṅgyāṇī Bhūgarbha. In future the sons and grandsons of the illustrious king are to protect it for those of Bhūgarbha.

(L. 20) (Here follows one customary verse.)

No. 75. CHAMBA PLATE OF PRITHVISIMHA, V.S. 1717

This plate¹ is said to have been in the possession of the present Rājaguru, Paṇḍit Thākura Dās, at Chamba proper. It measures about 7½" high by 9½" wide excluding the handle on its left. In its top left corner it has a seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 19 lines in all, of which lines 15-16 occur in the left margin and lines 17-19 run inversely in the top margin.

² No. 52 of APRAS. NC, 1903-04, p. 10.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The charter refers itself to the reign of Prithvisimha and is dated in the Śāstra year 36, V.S. 1717, on the 12th day of the bright fortnight of Kārttika, which may be taken to correspond to Sunday, 4th November, A.D. 1660. It records that Prithvisimha's eldest sister, princess Surūpadevī, gave one lāhaḍī of land at the village¹ of Bhaḍīha to a Brāhman called Bhagīrathaśarman of the Bhāradvāja gotra on the occasion of the consecration ceremony of a hospice. The donated land comprised several fields as detailed in the inscription.

The princess Surūpadevī is described as the eldest sister of the king Prithvisimha (jyeshtha-bhagini) and as the granddaughter (daughter's daughter) of the king (mahārāja-dohatī, i.e., mahārājadauhitṛī). The name of her maternal grandfather is, however, not mentioned.

The village of Bhaḍīha, now Bhaḍīhām, is only one mile from and facing the city of Chamba, across the Ravi. It has also been mentioned in another charter (No. 51). It is the headquarters of a parganā of that very name.

The recipient of the present grant is identical with that of a grant by Balabhadra.

The charter was written by Paṇḍit Lakshmikānta.

No. 76. DIVKHARI PLATE OF PRITHVISIMHA; V.S. 1718

(Plate XXIX, B)

The provenance and ownership of this plate¹ could not be ascertained but since the land granted herein is stated to be in the vicinity of the village of Divkhari in the Sāch parganā, it is named after that village. It measures about 7" high by 8½" wide excluding the handle on its left. In its top left corner it has a circular seal with a Nāgari legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 14 lines, the last two lines running inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī, the Sanskrit portion being full of mistakes. The charter is dated in the Śāstra year 37, V.S. 1718, on the 5th day of the bright fortnight of Śrāvaṇa, which may be equated with Sunday 21st July, A.D. 1661. It registers the king's grant of one lāhaḍī of land between the two paths, one leading to Sācha and the other to Divakhari, in the Sācha maṇḍala, to a Brāhman called Prāgīdāsaśarman of the Kātyāyana gotra. The bhāṣā portion mentions the ul of the donee to be Matrarala, not a familiar one. The donee also received a homestead formerly belonging to one Dītu, also referred to by his al Rayvā. The record mentions also two individuals, Khayvasa Makhana and Koṭvāla Bidhiā, who demarcated the donated land on behalf of the king. The Śāch maṇḍala refers to the Śāch parganā, Śācha to Sach, the headquarters thereof, and Divakharī to Divkharī.

The charter was written by Paṇḍit Lakshmīkānta.

The homestead of Dītu has been given. This spot — the homestead of Rayvā—, and the one lāhaḍī measured by Khayvasa Makhana and Koṭvāla Bidhiā, have been given by the illustrious king Prithvisimha, as a pious gift by himself, to Matrarala Prāgīdāsa.

No. 77. LAKSHMI-NĀRAYANA TEMPLE PLATE OF SATRUSIMHA;

V.S. 1734

(Plate XXX, A)

This plate¹ belongs to the temple of Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa at Chamba proper and is now deposited in the Bhuri Singh Museum there, bearing the catalogue number B, 34. It measures about 8½" high by 10" wide excluding the handle on its left. In its top left corner it has a seal with a Nāgarī legend containing the king's name. The inscription consists of 18 lines in all, of which lines 13-15 appear in the left margin and lines 16-18 inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The inscription is dated in the Śāstra year 54, V.S. 1734, 15th year of Śatrusimha—obviously referring to his reign—, on the 12th day of the bright fortnight of Vaiśākha. The Vikrama year corresponding to the Śāstra year 54 should be 1735 and not 1734 as mentioned in the record. Possibly here again we have a mistake similar to one already observed. The date may thus be equated with Tuesday, 23rd April, A.D. 1678. The mention of the regnal year is significant inasmuch as it shows that Śatrusimha's accession took place about A.D. 1664.

The inscription records the king's gift of six lāhaḍīs of land out of his personal property at Samoṭa² to two Gosvāmins, Balabhadragiri and Bihārigiri. The first of the two donees is stated to be a disciple of Rāmeśvaragiri, but probably the second was also a disciple of the same guru.

It is noteworthy that there is no indication of the grant being a perpetual one. On the other hand there seems to be an implication that it is liable to be seized in the case of the donees defaulting in their religious duty.

These may be enjoyed by both³ of them, adhering to their creed.⁴ The king should protect his pious gift for them.

(L. 13) Now the bhāṣā : the illustrious king Śatrusimha has made a gift of six lāhaḍīs (of land) out of his personal property at Samoṭa to Gusāi Balabhadragiri and his associate Bihārigiri. This pious gift is to be preserved by the king's descendants for them.

No. 78. CHAMBA PLATE OF UMEDASIMHA; V.S. 1805

(Plate XXX, B)

This plate⁵ is reported to have been in the possession of the former Rājaguru Paṇḍit Mohan Lāl, at Chamba. It measures about 9½" high by 11½" wide excluding the handle on its left. In its top left corner is engraved a circular seal with a four-line legend containing the king's name. In the present instance it is not only the legend that is written in Nāgarī characters, but the whole of the inscription, too, is in that script. The inscription consists of 27 lines in all, of which lines 19-21 appear in the left margin and lines 22-27 run inversely in the top margin.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The charter is dated in the Śāstra year 24, V.S. 1805, Śaka 1610, on the full-moon day of Māgha, which may be equated with Sunday, 22nd January, A.D. 1749. Its object is to register the

² Among the conventional epithets applied to the king are some which are not met with in any of the previous charters.

³ The reference is possibly not to Balabhadragiri and his guru, but to Balabhadragiri and Bihārigiri as implied in the Māṣā portion.

⁴ This probably implies that in the event of any misconduct on their part the grant might be confiscated.

king's grant of a house-site and two lāhaḍīs of land to a Brāhman named Chakra-pāṇi of the Bhāradvāja gotra. The house site is stated to be situated in the locality called Ukhrūdā in the city of Champaka (Chambā) and to have belonged to Miā. Ajab Singh. The locality is now known as Khrūdā Mohallā. The piece of land lay in the village of Kuḍī in the Hubār parganā of the Bhaṭṭi wazārat, which is identical with the modern Kuḍī there.

The two gifts were made on separate occasions. That of land is stated to have been made on an occasion when Umedasimha visited Lahore. The gift was a dakshinā to the Pandit for his reciting the Durgā-saptasatī, evidently invoking the blessings of the deity for safety and luck to the king during his journey. Such a journey in those days of poor communications was conceivably attended with risks and difficulties. ¹

The charter was written by one Pandit Paurakānta.

¹ [The danger threatening Umēd Singh on his way to Lahore came not from poor communications to which the hill people were accustomed, but from the chaotic conditions in the Punjab after the first invasion of Ahmad Shāh Durrāni in 1747-48. For Umēd Singh could probably travel with only a small retinue, as a strong following would have been interpreted as an assumption of higher rank and of more power than the Mughals conceded to the petty Zamīndār (what Umēd Singh was in their eyes), and thus, as an insult to the new Mughal Governor whose favour he was trying to win. We know of the visit also of number of other rājās and princes of Chambā and other Himalayan States to the Mughal court and always the following accompanying them seems to have been small. —H. No. 79. CHAMBA PLATE OF RAJASIMHA; V.S. 1833

(Plate XXXI, A)

This¹ plate is said to have been in the possession of one Chāma, presumably of Chamba. It measures 7½" high by 11" wide excluding the handle on its left. In its top left corner it has a circular seal with a four-line legend containing the king's name. As in the foregoing inscription, so in the present one, too, Nāgarī characters are employed both in the legend and in the record itself. The present inscription consists of 20 lines.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The charter is dated in the Śāstra year 52, V.S. 1833, Śaka 1698, on Tuesday, the 8th day of the bright fortnight of Śrāvaṇa, which regularly corresponds to Tuesday, 23rd July, A.D.

¹No. 56 of APRAS. NO, 1903-04, p. 10, where the locality of the plate is wrongly stated to be Kuḍi (Huvāra paragona).

SCALE: THREE-FIFTHS.

SCALE: TWO-THIRDS.

1776.¹ It records the king's gift of three lāhaḍīs of land at the village of Lower Gaṃgvāha in the Sāch parganā to a Brāhman, Vidyādhara Śarman by name of the Atri gotra. The record also acquaints us with the names of the father and grandfather of the donor as well as of the donee.

The village Gaṃgvāha has been mentioned in two earlier inscriptions as well (Nos. 18, 36). The present inscription mentions two villages of that name one being upper and the other lower. They are now called Gugāmh Uprā and Gugāmh Jhiklā respectively. Suratānapura, which is stated to be in their vicinity, is identical with the modern Sultānpur there.

The charter was written by Pandit Govardhana, evidently a disciple of one Pandit Śivabhūṣaṇa.

(L. 1) Om Hail ! Obeisance to the holy Gaṇeśa ! In the year 1833 of the illustrious king and hero Vikramāditya, the year 1698 of the illustrious Śaka Śālivāhana, the glorious Śāstra year 52, on Tuesday, the 8th day of the bright fortnight of Śrāvaṇa, the illustrious Mahārājādhirāja Rājasimhavarman, son of the illustrious Mahārājādhirāja Umedasimha (and) grandson of the illustrious P.M. Ugrasimha, has, here, out of devotion to Lord Kṛishṇa, granted a copper charter, marked with his own seal, with libation of water to the illustrious Brāhman Pāṇḍit Vidyādharaśarman, son of the illustrious Pāṇḍit Ugrasena (and) grandson of the illustrious Pāṇḍit Mādhava, of the Atri gotra, of the threefold Pravara of Atri-Śakti-Parāśara, of pure descent, a student of the Mādhyandini sākhā of the Yajurveda.

(L. 8) That is to be enjoyed, etc., (as usual).

(L. 9) I, the illustrious king Rājasimha, have given, out of devotion to Lord Kṛishṇa, three lāhaḍīs of land, with the defined limits, in the village of Lower Gaṁgvāha in the Sāch ṣarganā, with libation of water, by means of a copper-plate charter.

(L. 11) This pious gift is to be preserved by the illustrious king and all the descendants of the illustrious king, (and) is to be enjoyed by the descendants of Vidyādhara.

(L. 12) The boundaries hereof are: on the east above the table-land of Suratānapura; on the south below the steps of Makaḍenī, beyond Khamarā; on the west below the footpath of Upper Gaṁgvāha, on the north inwards from the Sācheḍi (rivulet). (The donated land) includes the watermill and the garden which was laid after having cut down the reserved forest of Suratānapura. Nobody should cut (wood) in the reserved forest of Suratānapura; it should be preserved as it is. The State is not to exact services or forced labour from the cultivators who dwell in the village; the illustrious king has exempted (them from that).

(L. 15) There are two watercourses (flowing) to this village, one belonging to itself (and) the other previously existing in Sāch. Both of them have been included in the grant. The pious gift is to be protected.

(L. 20) This has been written by Pāṇḍit Govardhana by the order of the illustrious Pāṇḍit Śivabhūshaṇa and by the order of the king.

Prosperity.

No. 80. TREATY BETWEEN RAJASIMHA AND SAM SARACHANDA

(Plate XXXI, B)

This plate¹ belongs to the State, and is now deposited in the Bhuri Singh Museum at Chamba, where it bears the catalogue number B, 36. It measures about

10½" high by 6½" wide, the inscription running breadthwise. The plate has no handle. Nor is there any seal on it. The inscription covers 16 lines, the last two appearing in the top margin. The document is written in a cursive hand in Tākari characters. It is stated in the document itself towards the end that it was written by Rājasiṃha. Thus, the present plate provides us with a specimen of the king's own hand-writing. The engraver engraved whatever the king wrote on the sheet of copper with pen and ink.

The language is Chambyālī throughout. The record is dated on the 25th day of Jeth (Jyeshtha) in V. S. 1845 (A. D. 1788). It is an unusual document inasmuch as it does not register any land-grant or the like, but contains a treaty between Rājasiṃha, the ruler of Chamba, and Samsārachanda, the chief of Kangra.

The terms of the treaty aim at the maintenance of friendly relations between the two rulers.

The treaty was written by Rājasiṃha at his camp at Nadona, now Nadaun, in Kangra in the presence of several witnesses mentioned by name in the record.

TRANSLATION

(L. 2) It is recorded that a solemn agreement between the illustrious king Rājasiṃha and the illustrious king Samsārachanda has been signed. The agreement is this that both the chiefs should maintain friendly relations. They both are to employ one officer (to be stationed) on their common frontier. Both of them should keep their pledge. (Rājasiṃha) is not to enter into alliance with any state except Kangra. The descendants of the illustrious king Ugar Singh, the illustrious king Umed Singh, (and) the illustrious king Rāj Singh are to abide by this agreement. Whosoever violates this agreement will be answerable to the holy Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa, Maṇimaheśa, the holy goddesses Chāmuṇḍā and Champāvati. The relations are to be preserved at all costs—through loss or gain.

(L. 11) The agreement is written on the 25th day of Jeṭh (Jyeshṭha) in the year 1845. The witnesses to this written agreement are Miā Padmasimha, Jhakhaḍ, Udār, Uttam, Sīdhu and Bijrām.

Prosperity !

(L. 15) (This) has been written by Rājasimha. The agreement is to be fulfilled according to this document.

No. 81. VADI GRANT OF SRISIMHA ; V. S. 1913

This plate is said to have been in the possession of Pandit Durjodhan alias Purshottam at Chamba. It is not included in Dr. Vogel's collection. It therefore follows that it was discovered subsequently, like the Chamba plate of Balabhadra of V. S. 1649 (No. 33). The plate consists of three small sheets of copper mixed with brass, dovetailed into one whole. It measures 8" high by 13" wide excluding the handle on its left. The reverse of the plate shows traces of what appears to be a rejected or cancelled inscription. Though nothing can be read of its contents, its script is Nāgarī which is also employed in the grant under discussion. The inscription consists of 15 lines. In its top left corner it has a circular seal with a four-line legend containing the king's name.

From the way the inscription stops abruptly, without completing the verse quoted from the Durgāsaptasatī, it appears to be an unfinished charter. The space left blank in line 1, for the numerals indicating the particular Vikrama year, leads to the same conclusion. Still, considering that the donee in this instance is a deity, the grant seems to have actually been issued and the document is, therefore, to be regarded as a valid one.

The language is partly Sanskrit and partly Chambyālī. The charter is dated in the Śāstra year 32, corresponding to V. S. 1913, on the new-moon day in the month of Māgha on the Ardhodaya occasion. Since this particular parvan falls only on a Sunday, the date is verifiable. It, thus, corresponds to Sunday, 25th January, A. D. 1857.

The inscription records that king Śrīsimha made an offering of the village called Vāṭikā or Vāḍī in the Panjlā parganā to the goddess Jalamukhī, the deity of that village. The inhabitants of that village were exempted from all sorts of taxes, forced labour, etc. The whole produce from that village was to be spent on conducting the daily worship of the goddess.

Vāṭikā is the Sanskrit name of the village Vāḍī which still exists in the Panjlā parganā. The other villages mentioned in the record are Bhujjā and Kikīhā which are identical with Bhujjā and Kākīhām respectively. The first of these is referred to also in an earlier inscription (No. 63).

No. 82. LAKSHMINARAYANA TEMPLE PLATE OF SRISIMHA;

V. S. 1915—1917

This plate is built into the left-hand wall of the main gate, leading to the spacious courtyard within which there is a group of six stone temples,¹ the principal one being that of Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa.

Like the foregoing inscription of Śrisimha, the present one, too, is in Nāgarī characters. A small portion in the beginning is composed in Sanskrit, while the rest is all in Chambyālī.

It records that on the 27th of Śrāvaṇa in the Śāstra year 34, V. S. 1915, king Śrisimha issued orders to Lāhadyāla Śiva and Mehatā Nagendra for the construction of a gate in front of the temple of Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa, that the work was started immediately and that on the 19th of Śrāvaṇa in the Śāstra year 36, V. S. 1917, the construction was completed. The gate is called Vaikuṇṭhadvāra in the inscription. Mehatā Nagendra is stated to be the Wazīr (Vajira)² to the deity of the temple.

The record also mentions various artisans and workmen by name who were employed in the construction of the gate.

Towards the end of the record two Sanskrit verses are quoted, announcing the high reward awaiting the builders of temples.

The inscription closes with the mention of its writer who is one Upādhyāya Mirachu, an original inhabitant of Viśvasthalī,³ but at that time a resident of Champā (Chambā).

¹ For a brief description of them, see ACS, Pt. I, p. 10.

² In the Sanskrit portion this term is rendered by mantrin.

³ This is identical with the modern Basohli State.

STONE INSCRIPTIONS

No. 83. LAKSHMI-NARAYANA TEMPLE NICHE INSCRIPTION; SASTRA 55

(Plate XXXII, A)

In the southern wall of the temple of Lakshmi-Nārāyaṇa at Chamba is a projecting niche with two small stone pillars, at a height of about 9' from the ground level. On the right-hand pillar is incised a short epigraph in three lines in the Devāśeṣha script. The letters are beautifully formed and deeply cut. Although the inscription is not hidden from view, yet it had remained unnoticed until recently.

When I copied it in June 1939, Paṇḍit Thakur Das told me that even he had not seen it till then.

It is dated in the year 55, which plainly refers to the Śāstra reckoning. As regards its contents, it simply records that the niche in question was caused to be built by one Paṇḍit Durugu. This name is followed by another read as nai Gyana and taken for nāi Gyānā,¹ i.e., 'Gyānā, the barber.' From this it follows that the niche was dedicated jointly by the Paṇḍit and the barber. Paṇḍit Thakur Das, who concurred with me in this interpretation, saw nothing strange in such a joint performance by two individuals of such unequal social standing as is exemplified by the present inscription.

It is not easy to assign a definite date to this record in spite of the fact that it mentions the year 55. As is characteristic with the Śāstra reckoning, the number of centuries is omitted here. Such omission is often supplied by some accidental evidence. In the present instance, the mention of paṇḍit Durugu furnishes us with that kind of aid. We know that the writer of Maṅgaloā plate of Pratāpasimha (No. 25) is also one Paṇḍit Durugu, and it may be presumed that he is identical with Paṇḍit Durugu of the inscription under discussion. This presumption is raised to probability when we observe that the above mentioned record of Pratāpasimha is dated in the Śāstra year 58, that is, only three years later than the date of the present epigraph, so to say. In the case of Pratāpasimha, however, we could equate the Śāstra year 58 with the Vikrama Samvat 1639 with certainty. Accepting the proposed identification of Paṇḍit Durugu of the two records, we may now equate the Śāstra year 55 with V. S. 1636, corresponding to A. D. 1579, which would be the date of the present record. It may be added that the characters of the inscription assort very well with this date.

raised platform paved with slabs of slate stone. It is situated on the left side of the road leading to Bhadravāh, at the northern end of the plateau on which the city of Chamba stands, and is not far from the Dak Bungalow there. It commands a splendid view of the Śal river, flowing in front of it deep in a gorge. About a furlong down, this tributary joins the Ravi. When I visited the chabūtrā in 1939, it had a sapling of a pīpal tree recently planted in its middle. The original pīpal spoken of in the inscription had long disappeared and subsequently replaced by several other trees one after the other. The sapling I saw, I am told, was also a successor of that pīpal which had been planted there over a quarter of a century previously and was seen by Prof. Vogel who has left us an account of it.¹

The epigraph consists of ten lines. Its script is Tākari and language Sanskrit. The average size of the letters is 1½". It records a pious act of public utility by a private individual, namely the planting of an āśvattha (Ficus religiosa) and the erection of a stone terrace around it by one Sundaradāsa, son of Viradāsa and grandson of Ballā Bhāgīrathadāsa, belonging to the Garga gotra. The terrace with the tree was intended to be a shady retreat for weary wayfarers during the heat of the summer. The date of the dedication is specified in full details as Vikrama Samvat 1717, Śaka 1582, Śāstra 36, the 13th day of the dark fortnight of the month of Vaiśākha, Wednesday, at the time of Vernal Equinox, which, taking the month as pūrṇimānta, regularly corresponds to the 28th March, A. D. 1660.

The preciseness of the details of this date is the chief interest of the present inscription, and it is perhaps on that account that it has been prominently noticed by Cunningham,² Kielhorn,³ Vogel⁴ and others.⁵ The use of three eras together in this record is a singular instance and has proved of great help in settling certain difficult points in the Chamba chronology.

Nos. 85—103. VAJRESVARI TEMPLE INSCRIPTIONS

(Plate XXXIII)

There is a beautiful old temple of Bhagavatī or Vajreśvarī at Chamba, situated at the entrance to the Saroṭa valley. It is believed to belong to the 11th century A. D. There is a short three-line inscription carved on one of the two pillars in front of the entrance to the shrine. Besides, there are eighteen brief one-line epigraphs that occur on the outer walls of the temple. The inscription on the pillar informs us that on the 17th day of Ahaḍa (Āshāḍha) in the year 92 the work was started in the temple. The work evidently refers to repairs or renovation and the year 92 to the Śāstra reckoning. Since the palaeography of this record does not differ much from that of the Chabūtrā stone inscription of V. S. 1717, the Śāstra year 92 of the present inscription may be equated with V. S. 1773, corresponding to A. D. 1716. This inscription as well as most of the remaining eighteen mention each the name of an artisan. If the equation of the date is correct, it will follow that the reparation to the temple was done during the reign of Udayasimha (Udai Singh).

MISCELLANEOUS

No. 104. CHAMUNDA TEMPLE BELL INSCRIPTION ; V. S. 1819

During my stay at Chamba in April-June 1939, I had occasion to inspect the bell suspended from the centre of the ceiling of the mandapa in front of the famous shrine of the goddess Chāmuṇḍā there, and found an inscription engraved on it in Nāgarī characters.

The inscription is divided into three parts, one on the top, one in the middle and one at the bottom section of the bell. The first is invocatory : quoting an appropriate verse from the Durgāsaptasatī. The second gives the date and the purport ; in the Śāstra year 38, V. S. 1819, on Bhṛiguvāsara, the 8th day—Mahāshṛāmī—of the bright fortnight of Chaitra, one Paṇḍit Vidyādhara made a gift of the bell to the goddess Chāḍā, that is Chāṇḍikā or Chāmuṇḍā. The third part of the inscription states that the bell weighed 27 seers, cost 27 rupees and was cast by a copper-smith, Ghamanḍi by name.

The given date regularly corresponds to Friday, 2nd April, A. D. 1762.

APPENDIX A

(Benedictory and Imprecatory Verses)

१ अन्धो द्वादश जन्मानि^१ दश जन्मानि शूकरः ।कुष्ठी जन्मसहस्राणि भूमिदानापहारकः^२ ॥ (Anushṭubh)

The confiscator of a land-grant (will become) blind for twelve births, a hog for ten births (and) a leper for thousands of births.

This verse occurs in the following inscriptions : Nos. 2, 11, 20, 27, 29, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 37, 38, 39, 40, 43, 63, 64, 78, 79.

२ अस्मिन्वंशे सुविस्तीर्णे यः कश्चिन्नृपतिर्भवेत् ।

तस्याहं हस्तलग्नोऽस्मि शासनं मा व्यतिक्रमेत् ॥ (Anushṭubh)

Whosoever may become king in this prosperous family, I solicit him not to violate (this my) grant.

This verse occurs in the following inscriptions : Nos. 16, 21, 27.

३ दानपालनयोर्मध्ये दानाच्छ्रेयोऽनुपालनम् ।

दानात्स्वर्गमवाप्नोति पालनादच्युतं पदम् ॥ (Anushṭubh)

Between a gift and its preservation, the preservation is more meritorious than the gift. By giving one attains to heaven, by preserving to the position from where there is no more falling (into this world).

This verse occurs in the following inscriptions : Nos. 3, 49, 61.

४ न विषं विषमित्याहुर्ब्रह्मस्वं विषमुच्यते ।

विषमेकाकिनं हन्ति ब्रह्मस्वं पुत्रपोषकम् ॥ (Anushṭubh)

Poison is not poison : a Brāhman's property is poison. Poison kills one ; a Brāhman's property sons and sons' sons (i.e., the Brāhman's curse will doom the confiscator of his property as well as the confiscator's progeny to death).

This verse occurs only in one inscription, No. 21.

५ पालनात्परमो धर्मः पालनात्परमं यशः^३पालनात्परमः स्वर्गो गरीयस्तेन पालनम्^४ ॥ (Anushṭubh)

From preserving (a gift results) supreme merit, great fame (and) the highest heaven ; hence preserving (a gift) is exceedingly worthy.

This verse occurs in the following inscriptions : Nos. 3, 7, 8, 9, 10, 16, 17, 19, 21, 22, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 34, 35, 41, 43, 48, 51, 53, 54, 59, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 69, 75, 76, 78, 79.

६ ये चैतद्ग्रामरत्नं नृपकररहितं पालयन्ति प्रतापे-

स्तेषां सत्कीर्तिगाथा दिशि दिशि नियतं गीयते वन्दिवन्दैः ।

ग्रामे गृह्णन्त्यमुष्मिन् किमपि नृपतयो हिन्दवो वा तुरुष्का

गोकोलकव्यमिश्रं नियतमनुदिनं भुञ्जते ते स्वधर्मम् ॥ (Sragdharā)

^१ In the inscriptions Nos. 27, 31, 34, 37, 38, 39, 40, this first quarter of the verse reads अन्धः सप्त जन्मानि.

^२ In the inscriptions Nos. 27, 32, this last quarter of the verse reads भूमिदानापहारकः, and in Nos. 35, 39 स्वयंदत्ता- पहारकः.

^३ In many cases यशः is replaced by तपः.

^४ Many inscriptions read पालयत् instead of पालनम्.

^५ This is not a verse from any śruti, though it is intended to pass as such. See remarks about it, under inscription No. 45.

Those who protect this jewel of a village given away by the king himself, their high renown on that account is regularly sung everywhere by panegyrists. Those kings, whether Hindus or Muslims, who seize anything of that village, certainly sin against their respective religions as if by daily partaking of beef and pork.

This verse occurs only in one inscription, No. 45.

७ वाचा दत्तं मनोदत्तं दत्तं पाणिकुशोदकः ।
यो हरेत् त्रीणि दानानि स घोरं तरकं व्रजेत् ॥ (Anushtubh)

Whosoever misappropriates three (kinds of) gifts—given by word of mouth given by intention (and) given with due ceremony of libation of water—will go to dire hell.

This verse occurs in the following two inscriptions : Nos. 4, 12.

८ सामान्यो'यं धर्मसेतुनंराणां
काले काले' पालनीयो' भवद्भूः ।
सर्वनितान्भाविनो' भूमिपालान्'
भूयो भूयो' याचते रामचन्द्रः ॥' (Śālini)

Rāmachandra repeatedly requests all these future kings : "Time and again you should protect this bridge of merit common to humanity !"

This verse occurs in the following inscriptions : Nos. 20, 27, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 43, 44, 45, 48, 49, 50, 52, 57, 60, 63, 64, 67, 68, 70, 77, 78, 79, 81.

९ सुवर्णमेकं गामेकां भूमेरप्येकमंगुलम् ।
हरन्नरकमाप्नोति यावच्चन्द्रदिवाकरो ॥ (Anushtubh)

Misappropriating one gold, one cow (or) even half an inch of ground, one gets hell so long as the moon and the sun endure.

This verse occurs in the following two inscriptions : Nos. 29, 43.

१० स्वदत्तां परदत्तां वा यो हरेत् वसुधराम् ।^१
^२षष्टि वर्षसहस्राणि विष्टायां जायते कुमिः ॥ (Anushtubh)

He, who confiscates the land given by himself or given by others, is reborn as a germ in faeces for sixty thousand years.

¹ In most instances this word is substituted by साधार which is plainly a mislection for साधारण.

² A variant is नृपाणां which occurs here in one case, No. 50.

³ Instead of काले काले Nos. 52 and 64 have स्वस्वे काले.

⁴ No. 81 has रक्षणायः in place of पालनीयः.

⁵ Nos. 50, 52 and 77 have भूयोभूयः instead of सर्वनितान्.

⁶ No. 43 has पाणिबेन्द्रान् in place of भूमिपालान्.

⁷ Nos. 50, 52, 77 and 81 have नत्वा नत्वा instead of भूयोभूयः.

⁸ Nos. 50, 52 and 77 present the two halves of the verse in the reversed order.

⁹ Nos. 15, 18 and 36 have the second quarter reading ब्रह्मवृत्ति हरेत् यः. Nos. 17 and 33 have the second quarter reading ब्रह्मवृत्तिहरस्तथा which may be corrected into ब्रह्मवृत्ति हरेत् यः.

¹⁰ The second half of the verse in N^o. 8 reads विष्टायां कुमिभूत्वा पितृभिः सह पच्यते.

This verse occurs in the following inscriptions : Nos. 1, 3, 4, 8, 15, 17, 18, 27, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 36, 37, 39, 50, 52, 63, 64, 67, 68, 71, 74, 78, 79.

११ हंसैर्युक्तं यानमारुह्य दिव्यं
भूमेर्दाता याति लोकं सुराणाम् ॥
तप्ते कुम्भे प्रज्वलत्तैलपूर्णं
तस्या हर्ता पच्यते कालदूतैः ॥ [Śālinī]

The giver of land, mounting a celestial car yoked with swans, attains to the sphere of gods. The confiscator thereof is fried by the messengers of Death in a heated cauldron filled with boiling oil.

This verse occurs in the following inscriptions : Nos. 14, 27, 37, 78.

A COPPER-PLATE GRANT OF BAHADUR SINGH OF KULLU

Among the copper-plates in possession of Paṇḍit Mohan Lāl, guru to His Highness the Rājā of Chambā, there is one, which presents the exceptional case of a grant, the grantee of which can be readily identified, whereas the identification of its donor affords a certain amount of difficulty. The grantee, "the great Paṇḍit Ramāpati, the son of Paṇḍit Surānand and a resident of the illustrious town of Chambā," was an ancestor of the present owner of the copper-plate and must have held the office of rājaguru for more than half a century, under three, perhaps even four, consecutive rulers of Chambā. His name occurs as that of the author of the title-deed on the copper-plates issued by Pratāp Singh, and on those of Balabhadra, the latter's grandson, during the earlier part of his reign. It is clear that Ramāpati must also have been the spiritual preceptor of Balabhadra's father Virabhāna, though it is not attested by any document. His name is last found on a plate dated Śāstra-saṁvat 86, Vikrama-saṁvat 1667, Kārttika bā. ti. 11.¹ The next grant issued by Balabhadra in Śāstra-saṁvat 5, Vikrama-saṁvat 1686, Māgha śu. ti. 12, is signed by a Paṇḍit Padmanābha, and all later plates by Ramāpati's son Laksmīkānta. We may therefore assume that the death of Ramāpati occurred between the two dates mentioned. The earliest mention of his name is on the copper-plate, which is here edited for the first time. We do not know who ruled Chambā in the Śāstra year 35 (A. D. 1559); probably it was Gaṇeśavarman, who was certainly still Rājā in the preceding year. That Ramāpati stood high in favour with his noble patrons, appears from the fact that three more plates, besides the present one, record grants of land bestowed upon him, namely, two of the four plates which we possess of Pratāp Singh and the first of the twenty plates of Balabhadra.

It is strange to find that the donor of the grant under discussion does not bear one of the four names enumerated, but calls himself Bahādur Singh. From his titles it may be inferred that he was an independent chief, but the name is not found in the genealogical roll of the Chambā rājās, nor in any other copper-plates. The simplest explanation would be to assume that Bahādur Singh was another name of Rājā Gaṇeśavarman, which would be in agreement with the custom of double nomenclature still in vogue among the Chambā rulers. This assumption would be the more plausible, as the inscription mentions as second donor the heir-apparent (yuvarāja), Pratāp Singh, and this was as stated above, the name of Gaṇeśavarman's son and successor.

The Śāstra-saṁvat is the same as the Saptarṣi-saṁvat, or Lokakāla, also known as Rāja-saṁvat, Pahāri-saṁvat or Kaccā saṁvat. Cf. Cunningham, Book of Indian eras, p. 6 sqq.

On the other hand, it is noteworthy that Chambā is only mentioned as the place of residence of the grantee, not as that of the donor, as is the case with all other copper-plates issued by Rājās of Chambā. It is also remarkable that the motto Satyam pramāṇam of the donor of this grant is not found on any of the Gaṇeśavarman's plates. A still greater objection is that none of the localities mentioned in the inscription are known to exist in Chambā. May we assume then that Bahādur Singh was the ruler of some other State? The supposition is admissible, for among the plates of Balabhadra is one which is issued in favour of the guru of his neighbour, the Rājā of Nūrpūr.

The surname Singh was only in use among a limited number of Rājput families, as in Kuḷlū, where it replaced the older Pāl. It is said that the first Rājā of Kuḷlū who adopted the surname was Sidh Singh. Now we find that the name of his successor was Bahādur Singh, and there is every reason to believe that he was the donor of the grant in question. The exact date of his reign is unknown, but Jagat Singh, who ruled in the middle of the 17th century, is separated from him by four Rājās. Assuming twenty-five years for each reign, we arrive at the conclusion that Bahādur Singh must have lived about the middle of the 16th century, which is, as we saw approximately the date of our inscription. Moreover, Bahādur Singh's successor was Pratāp Singh, who consequently must have been yuvārāja during his lifetime.¹

Our hypothesis will become a certainty if the localities mentioned in the grant can be identified with places in Kuḷlū. It is clear that a Rājā cannot dispose of land outside his own territory.

The "hermitage of Pulastya" (Pulastyāśrama) I am unable to identify with certainty. Though the worship of ṛṣis, locally called rikhis, is very prominent in Kuḷlū, no shrine dedicated to Pulastya is said to exist. Mr. H. Calvert, I.C.S., Assistant Commissioner of the Kuḷlū Sub-division, has, at my request, made enquiries regarding this point on the occasion of the Dasahra fair at Sultānpūr. But among the numerous ṛṣis, nāgas and other devatās gathered to pay their respect to Raghunātha, Pulastya was conspicuous by his absence.

The second locality mentioned in the grant of Bahādur Singh is the village of Haṭṭa. This, I believe, can be identified with certainty. On the confluence of the Biyās and the Ropru nālā, half a mile east of Bajaurā (map Bajaora; lat. 31° 50' long. 77° 13') we meet with a hamlet of the name Hāṭ, which would exactly correspond with Skr. Haṭṭa (Cf. ghāt, from Skr. ghaṭṭā, and gharāt, watermill, from Skr. gharaṭṭa). Hāṭ is also the name of one of the two phāṭis, in which the Bajaurā kōṭhī is subdivided.² The Sanskrit haṭṭa means "a market", a very appropriate name for the spot, where the Central Asian trade route, after crossing the Duloi Pass, reaches the Upper Biyās valley. The antiquity of Hāṭ is attested by a very fine

¹ Cf. the list of the Kuḷlū Rājās in Capt. A. F. P. Harcourt. The Himalayan districts of Kooloo, Lahoul and Spiti (London, 1871), p. 370-egg. The genealogical list of the Kuḷlū Rājās is evidently based on an authentic vaṃśavali. Unfortunately no proper system of transliteration has been followed, which renders it often impossible to decide on the correct form of the names. Compare, for instance, Shureedut Taeshur Pāl and Shirree Jerashur Pāl. It would be well to re-edit the list, if the authentic vaṃśavali were procurable.

liṅga temple, profusely decorated with carvings¹ and by the remnants of three more stone temples. One of these, known as Jhaumpru śail (śail-a stone temple from śilā-stone), was still extant in the summer of 1901, though much ruined and partly buried in the sands of the Ropru Khaḍ. This points to the fact that this stream has changed its course, which probably was the reason why Hāṭ became superseded by Bajaurā, situated at a safe distance from the dangerous confluence.

It will be seen that the Ropru nālā is the boundary between Kuḷlū and Maṇḍi, as noticed by the traveller Moorcroft,² who also mentions the Bajaurā fort, which must have been demolished shortly before 1870. Its site is now occupied by a tea plantation. I am inclined to think that this fort (or a previous one standing on the same spot) is referred to in our copper-plate if at least we may assign to the word draṅga the same meaning which it once had in Kāśmīr, namely, that of "a frontier fort, or a watch station."³

In the same passage Moorcroft says that the Ropru flows at the foot of an eminence, on which stood the village of Syri. This I feel inclined to identify with the Sīri-sthāvara of the copper-plate. Its position not far from Hāṭ would make the identification very plausible. I must, however, remark that according to the information supplied by Mr. Calvert, the correct form of the name would seem to be Sairi. On the survey-map the name Sirg evidently marks the position of the village referred to by Moorcroft. It is interesting to find that the land granted by Bahādur Singh consisted of saffron-fields. Cultivation of saffron, for which Kāśmīr is still famous,⁴ is nowadays practically unknown in Kuḷlū, though the physical conditions are probably as favourable there as in the valley of the Jhelam. Mr. Calvert informs me that there used to be saffron fields in Kuḷlū. There was one, he says, quite near and below the castle which is now a tea-field belonging to Mr. Minniken; and up to five or six years ago there were a few saffron plants remaining there. It will be noticed how well this agrees with the topography of our inscription. For it was the ancient castle of Bajaurā, near which the saffron fields granted to Paṇḍit Ramāpati must have been situated. The area of the granted land is expressed in prastha, a measure of grain, according to the custom, universally practised in the hills, of indicating the size of the land by the quantity of seed-corn required for its cultivation.⁵ The pathā (the modern form of prastha) is still the unit used in Kuḷlū for measuring grain. One pathā of husked rice is equivalent to $4\frac{1}{2}$ kaccā ser (nearly 2 pakkā ser or 4 lbs.). Twenty pathā make one lākh.⁶ The total area of the land given to Paṇḍit Ramāpati was therefore $4\frac{1}{2}$ lākh, and required 180 pakkā ser of seed-corn for its cultivation.

¹ Capt. Harcourt, op. cit. pp. 196 and 247 seq., gives an enthusiastic, but not always accurate, description of this temple and its decoration. The alto-relievs represent Gaṅgā and Yamunā on both sides of the entrance, and Gopas, Viṣṇu and Durgā Aṣṭabhujā in the outer niches of the south, west and north walls respectively. Cf. also Moorcroft Travels, Vol. I, p. 169 seq., and J. Calvert, Vasavi Rupi (London, 1873), p. 15 seq.

² "This river (the Ropareri, i.e., the Ropru) here divided Mundi from Kulu, and running under the walls of Bajaura, falls into the Byas on its right bank. Bajaura is a large square fort belonging to Kulu; it consists of square towers connected by a low curtain, the whole built of hewn stone strengthened with beams of fir." Moorcroft, op. cit., p. 169. Cf. also Calvert, op. cit., p. 13 (with a picture of the fort).

As we have thus been able to locate in Kuḷlū at least one of the places mentioned in the grant of Bahādur Singh, his identity with the Kuḷlū Rājā of that name may be regarded as certain. This conclusion adds considerably to the interest of the inscription. Kuḷlū is undoubtedly one of the most ancient principalities of the Panjab Hills. It is described by Hiuen Tsiang under the name K'iu-lu-to, and on two Chambā copper-plates² of the 11th century mention is made of the Lord of Kuḷūta, which is the ancient designation under which it is repeatedly referred to in Sanskrit literature. Nevertheless not a single pre-Muhammadan inscription has come to light in Kuḷlū, a fact which is probably due to the backwardness of its inhabitants, who are described by Hiuen Tsiang as "coarse and common in appearance" and "of a hard and fierce nature." The inscriptions found in Kuḷlū are all comparatively modern; they are without an exception composed in the local vernacular and written in a kind of Tākari derived from the ancient Śāradā.³ These two circumstances combined render their interpretation far from easy. One of the oldest epigraphs is that on the famous temple Of Dhungrī near Manālī, in the upper part of the Biyās valley, which is known as Wazīrī Parol.⁴ This shrine, profusely decorated with woodcarving, is dedicated to Hirmā Devī, the patron goddess of Kuḷlū, in whom students of Sanskrit literature will recognize the rāksasi Hīdimbā, the spouse of Bhīmasena the Pāṇḍava. The inscription is of special interest for my present subject, because it mentions the name of Rājā Bahādur Singh as founder of the temple. Its date is J(y)eth pra. 20, the 29th year of the Śāstra-saṃvat. The figures indicating the centuries are omitted, which is characteristic of this era, so that it would be impossible to fix its date without the aid of some other document. This we possess in our copper-plate which is dated Saṃvat 35, Kārttika śu. ti. 11. It is true that here also the date is expressed in the Śāstra-saṃvat but, as we know that the grantee died between A. D. 1610 and 1629, the figures for the century can be supplied with certainty. The corresponding Christian year must be 1559. Consequently the year of the Dhungrī inscription can only be A. D. 1553, and we have thus been enabled to date one of the most interesting monuments of the Kuḷlū valley.

Another prominent temple of the upper Biyās valley is that of Saṃdhyā Devī or "the goddess of dawn" in the ancient village of Jagatsukh, which traditionally is believed to have once been the capital of Kuḷlū. The temple of Saṃdhyā Devī has been largely renewed, but it contains some portions which are evidently ancient. On two slabs placed on the enclosing wall at the entrance of the courtyard an inscription¹ is cut in three lines of 40 to 48 cm. in length. I must, for reasons stated above, abstain from giving a full transcript and translation of this epigraph. So much is certain that the first line reads: Śri Maharaja Urdhan (read *Urdhan*²) Pāl. The second line commences with the name of Samdhyā Devī, and the third seems to contain a date, which I read Sam. 4 (?) ba, ti. 2. It refers of course to the Śāstra-saṁvat, and we must look for some other document to decide which figure we are to supplement for the hundreds.

⁴ Dr. Böhler, Indische Palaeographie, p. 57, speaks of "die sogenannte Takkari der Dogrā von Jammu und Nachbarschaft." In reality Tākari (or Takkari) is commonly used all through the Panjab Hills, and is also known in the plains.

⁵ The word parol, parol in the dialects of Kāngrā, Kuḷlū and Chambā, means "the main gate of any large building especially a palace or castle and, used as pars pro toto, the palace itself." It is a very appropriate name for that narrow part of the upper Biyās valley, which towards the Rohtang pass assumes the appearance of a gate. The word parol is presumably like Hindi paul derived from Skr. prastāh. See my note in Album Kern (Leiden, 1903), p. 236, *99.

The name U[r]dhan Pāl is found in the varṁśāvalī, as that of Bahādur Singh's third predecessor. The date of the temple of Samdhyā Devī is therefore separated from that of Hiḍimbā by the time occupied by the full reigns of Kailās Pāl and Sidh Pāl, and the partial reigns of Urdhan Pāl and Bahādur Singh. We may say by three full reigns. We shall therefore have to take either A. D. 1428 or 1528 as the date of the temple at Jagatsukh. In the first case the reigns of the intervening Rājās would have been very long, namely some forty years each; in the second case they could not have exceeded an average of seven years. The latter assumption seems to me the more plausible. Possibly the Jagatsukh inscription falls towards the end of Urdhan Pāl's reign and that of Dhungrī in the beginning of that of Bahādur Singh which would leave a somewhat larger space for the two intervening reigns of Kailās Pāl and Sidh Pāl.

The above topographical discussion points to the fact that Bahādur Singh ruled over the whole of Kuḷlū proper, i.e., the upper Biyās valley. This is quite in accordance with the tradition which holds that he was the first to extend his territory,³ which under the Pāl dynasty consisted only of Wazirī Parol. There is one point, however, still to be elucidated. The present Waziris, Lag Mahārāja and Lag Sārī, once formed an independent principality which was overthrown by Rājā Jagat Singh. This is fully confirmed by one of the Persian Sanads, dated the 3rd of Jumāda-th-thānīyah, A. H. 1067, addressed by Dārā Shikoh to Jagat Singh 'zamīndār' of Kuḷlū.⁴ As we have seen that Bahādur Singh's rule extended over Bajaurā and Dhungrī we shall have to assume that the principality of Lag, situated between those two places, though ruled by its own Rājā, was tributary to the Mahārāja of Kuḷlū. Another point closely connected with this question is that of the origin of Sultānpūr, the modern capital of Kuḷlū. This place, situated on the confluence of the Biyās and the Śarvarī stream, is said to have become the capital in the reign of Jagat Singh, who conquered it from the last Rājā of Lag. The latter's name is given as Sultān Cand in the Kangra Gazetteer, but in the same work it is stated elsewhere that Jay Cand was the last Rājā of Lag, and Sultān Cand his brother. According to Captain Harcourt's informants, Sultānpūr was named after this Sultān Cand.¹

It must, a priori, appear strange, that the new capital of the Kuḷḷū Rājās was named after a petty chief, by whose expulsion it fell into their possession. In the śaṇad, referred to above, the name of the Rājā of Lag, after whose death Jagat Singh annexed the territory, is neither Jay Cand, nor Sultān Cand, but Jok (read Jog) Cand. This also tends to raise a doubt as to the authenticity of the said tradition. Nor is it in accordance with another tradition preserved by Moorcroft that "the removal (from Nagar, the ancient capital) took place about three centuries ago,"² which would mean about 1525 A. D.

It will be seen that in our inscription Bahādur Singh calls himself by another name, Suratrāṇa-rāja. The word Suratrāṇa is often found in Sanskrit inscriptions,³ as the rendering of the Arabic sultān, so that the name can mean nothing else than Rājā Sultān. And the fact is still known in Kuḷḷū, as Mr. Calvert informs me, that Bahādur Singh called himself by that name. In connection therewith it is of great interest that there exists a tradition, different from that mentioned above, regarding the origin of Sultānpūr. During my stay there I was told by the old wazīr of the Rāi of Rūpī, the descendant of the ancient Rājās, that Sultānpūr was founded by Sultān Singh, and Dhālpūr, the suburb on the right bank of the Śarvarī, by his brother Dhāl Singh. It will be noticed how well this agrees chronologically with the passage quoted from Moorcroft. For Sultān Singh, alias Bahādur Singh, ruled in 1653 and it is only natural that, after conquering the valley as far down as Bajaurā, he removed his capital to a place situated in the centre of his dominions, while probably keeping Nagar as his summer-residence. Anyhow, it seems to me highly probable in view of the above, that it was not a defeated Rājā of Lag, but the victorious chief of Kuḷḷū, who gave his name to the modern capital.

We have already seen that the copper-plate grant under discussion mentions as second donor the heir-apparent Pratāp Singh, and thereby establishes the authenticity of the genealogical roll of the Kuḷḷū Rājās published by Captain Harcourt. Our inscription acquaints us, moreover, with Bahādur Singh's grand-wazīr (Skr. mahāmantrin) Nārāyan Singh, and with the Rājā's three daughters Sunu, Gaṅgā and Raṅgo. For it was on the occasion of the marriage of these three ladies, that the grant was given to the rājaguru of Chambā; from which it may be inferred that they were married into the ruling family of that State. The bridegroom was presumably Pratāp Singh, the heir-apparent (to wit, of Chambā), if he had not yet succeeded his father Gaṇeśavarman by that time. For a Rājā of Kuḷḷū could not give his daughters in marriage to any one below a ruling chief or heir-apparent. The saying is that in matters of war and marriage a Rājā deals only with his equals. For two or more sisters to be married at the same time and to the same person is by no means an uncommon practice among Hill Rājapūts. The liberality shown on this occasion to Paṇḍit Ramāpati indicates that Bahādur Singh attached much importance to a matrimonial alliance with Chambā. For we read at the end of the inscription that the Rājā "gave to Ramāpati the price of the land and again presented him with the same," viz., he gave him in addition to the land its full value in money. And on his annual inspection of his possessions in Kuḷlū he would receive a large hawk and a ser of saffron. The former may seem a somewhat unsuitable present to a pious Brahman, whose dharma forbids him to kill animals. But we know from elsewhere that the Rājās of Kuḷlū, and probably other chiefs in the same position, were in the habit of sending a hawk as a tribute to the Emperor of Delhi.¹ Bahādur Singh evidently wished to do special honour to Ramāpati by a present otherwise due to his suzerain.

Besides a shop inside the frontier-fort, the gurudaksinā comprised also "a very excellent thathikā to catch hawks," (śyena-bandhana-thathikā, parama-śreṣṭhā). The word thathikā is not Sanskrit, but evidently a sanskritised vernacular term which would seem to be the modern thātī of Kuḷlū dialect, a technical term particularly used in connection with hawking. I quote the following from the Gazetteer.² "The best way of catching hawks was the thātī, which is a sort of triangular enclosure erected at a prominent place on a ridge or spur, so as to draw the attention of the birds. Poles are set up at the three angles, and two of the sides are enclosed with nets, but the base of the triangle which is towards the hill top is clear; the apex is on the down hill side. A chikor is tied close to the ground inside the enclosure to attract the hawks by its call, and when one swoops down upon it, a man who is concealed in a thicket close by rushes forward, and drives the hawk into the net where he secures it."

Regarding the inscription under discussion the following points may be noted. The copper-plate, on which it is engraved, is of irregular shape, the average height being 21.5 cm., and the breadth 26 cm. at the top and 32 cm. at the bottom. To the proper right a handle of 2 cm. in length projects. The inscription consists of 20 lines. The first seven lines are only from 21.5 to 22.5 cm. broad, leaving an open rectangular space to the proper right, which is occupied by the motto, and by lines 18—19, which are written vertically and are about 10 cm. in length. The last line is written all along the proper right margin. It would seem that these three lines were added afterwards. The letters which measure 1 to 1.5 cm. are well engraved. The character is a transition from the ancient Śāradā to the modern Tākārī or Tānkārī. It is interesting to note that r after a consonant is sometimes expressed in the old fashion by a stroke to the proper right (cf. draṅga, line 10) or in the modern way by a stroke to the proper left (cf. caṇḍra, line 18). The peculiar script used in the copper-plates of this period is designated in Chambā by the name of Devāśeṣa. The language is Sanskrit, metrical only in the quotations from the Smṛti, which occur in the second portion of the inscription. Though by no means free from errors, the language, is comparatively correct, considering the date and the place of origin of the record. The mistakes are mostly due to negligence in observing the Samdhi rules and in the use of the signs of punctuation. I have made only such corrections as seemed necessary for the right understanding of the meaning. The lengthy Yamaka compound in lines 1-3 is regularly found in the Chambā grants of this period.

¹ In a letter dated the 8th of Rabī'ul-awwal A. H. 1087, Dārā Shikoh acknowledges the receipt of a hawk and a hill pony (tāngan) sent by Rājā Jagat Singh of Kuḷlū as a present to the imperial court.

² Kangra Gazetteer, Pt. II, p. 109 sq. In Diack's Grammar the word is spelled thāfi. That the second syllable of the thathikā is thi instead of fi or fi is possibly due to a clerical error. In the dialect of Chamba again the word is pronounced thāfi.

³ The visarga is omitted in the original.

⁴ In the original there is an anusvara over ṇā. Possibly it belongs to the next syllable.

⁵ The anusvara over gā has been omitted in the original.

⁶ The anusvara over pa has been omitted in the original.

⁷ The ungrammatical form upathuḥjanīyam occurs already in the Chambā copper-plates.

⁸ The original has svayamdatapaharakah.

⁹ The original has duhitur.

¹⁰ The correct construction would be ekam kuṅkumatejakam.

¹¹ The original has bhūmir.

¹² The anusvara over dī has been omitted in the original. After caturdaśa it has a visarga.

¹³ The original has Kartika, followed by a vertical stroke.

¹⁴ The original has sādhāro yam.

¹⁵ The original has parvataro, a form evidently due to vernacular influence: cf. the words parjā (Skr. prajā) parviṣṭa (Skr. praviṣṭa), etc.

¹⁶ The original seems to have dātām, but the second aksara is slightly damaged.

¹⁷ The visarga is omitted in the original.

¹⁸ The form samkalpadattā corresponds with the vernacular samkalp ditta. The meaning of samkalp is "a donation, a grant."

¹⁹ The last three words obviously belong to the original inscription, but lines 18-19 and the first part of 20 appear to have been added afterwards.

True warrant.

Om hail ! He of the valour of the three Rāmas,¹ dexterous in attacking the enemy ; he, whose heart has taken refuge at the lofty feet of the Beloved of Dakṣa's daughter ;² he, who is experienced in warfare and with the fulness of his glory, imitative [of the rays] of the autumnal moon, has filled the Universe; the supreme prince, the king of kings, the illustrious lord, His Highness Bahādur Singh ; the very illustrious heir-apparent Pratāp Singh [and] the excellent prime-minister Nārāyaṇ Singh offer to the great Paṇḍit Ramāpati, the son of aṇḍit Surānand, who resides in the illustrious town of Chambā, the spotless descendant of three houses, who worships at the three divisions of the day³ and delights in the six duties⁴ [as a token] of their favour an ornamental charter [recording a grant] of land [and] adorned with their own lotus-like hands⁵ and thereby a gift of land, with [its] seed-corn, rent⁶ and so forth. He has been favoured and presented at the time of the marriage of the Rājā's first born daughter, Sunu by name, with [a field requiring] thirty pathās of seed-corn, situated in the neighbourhood of Pulastya's hermitage. At the time of the wedding of the Rājā's daughter, Gaṅgā by name, with [a field requiring] thirty pathās of seed-corn in the vicinity of the village of Hāt [and] at the wedding of the Rājā's daughter, Raṅgo by name, with [a field requiring] thirty pathās of seed-corn on Sirī Hill, altogether a gift of saffron-fields with [their] seed-corn rent and so forth. [Further] a shop [kept by] Puru and Bhabho,⁷ inside the frontier-fort and a most excellent triangular net [thātī] for catching hawks. With all this as a gurudakṣiṇā has Paṇḍit Ramāpati been favoured and presented by the Rājā, the illustrious Bahādur Singh. It should be enjoyed by him and his offspring for as long as the moon, the sun, the polar star and the earth shall endure.

He who confiscates it is to be chastised and killed, and will go down to hell. At the time of the marriage of Rājā Sultān's daughters a large hawk and a ser of saffron has been presented [to the grantee], and this is to be given every year at that very time when Ramāpati or his descendants come [to Ku||ū].
